The new heating system for churches is now in use throughout Scotland.

Heating a church, church hall or local community centre is a costly business. Heat is required for short periods only but the size of the building necessitates a heating system usually found in factories and commercial premises. Not churches.

A new system is now available in Scotland which really meets the needs of churches and church halls. Broadly, it brings the area involved to the required temperature quickly, prevents draughts and dramatically reduces fuel costs.

The system is now installed in churches throughout the country and full details, (technical and non-technical) can be obtained from:

THE POPE IN SCOTLAND, 1982

Events more significant in the history of the Church may have happened, but none has captured the imagination of Catholics, other Christians, members of other religions and those of no religious convictions more than the Papal Visit to Scotland from 31st May to 1st June, 1982. In the age of the mass media this was inevitable. Yet even the media needed the presence of a Pope possessed of powerful spiritual and human qualities to make the Visit so historic and memorable. In the minds of people, Karol Wojtyla had such important qualities, holiness, humanity, firmness and approachability. A hymn or song, phrases from an address, a photograph or a souvenir will evoke in the minds and hearts the joys of the Visit. The arrival at Turnhouse, the Pilgrimage of Youth, the motorcade into the heart of Edinburgh, the welcome by the Moderator, the address to the clergy and the religious in the cathedral, fleeting glances of the events in the Cardinal's house, the visits to Rosewell and to Bearsden, the Papal Mass in Bellahouston Park—all have been woven into a beautiful national tapestry, one which reveals so many aspects of the Holy Father's character and the responses of a nation. Here are memories which will never fade in the national consciousness, the stuff of perpetuity. J. M. Barrie claimed that God had given us a memory so that we could have roses in December. The lasting effect will, we hope, prove that the Visit has been a pastoral watershed for the Church.

How does one record and comment, in a short article, on a series of events about which millions of words were written and spoken in every type of publication and on television and radio, which were photographed by the amateur and the professional, which stirred so many hearts? Certainly, no one saw or heard everything that happened. In the Scottish Catholic Archives, under the safe custody of the Archivist (at present Father Mark Dilworth, O.S.B.) will be a collection of materials, in typescript and print (newspapers, magazines and books), photographs, cassettes, souvenirs and much more, which will be perhaps the fullest record yet made of any event in the history of the Church in Scotland. Historians in the future, it is hoped, will be able to put into perspective and to assess what happened, how it happened and what the effect was on Scottish Catholics and so add their work to what will be there. This is the beginning—an attempt to encapsulate in a few pages the experiences of the thousands of people who prepared and the thousands of people who took part. It will be incomplete in many ways. Future readers of The Catholic Directory for Scotland will hopefully learn something of what happened and perhaps savour some of the emotion generated; present readers may have gaps filled in and recapture some of their feelings. Apologies are offered now for disproportion of emphasis, omissions and for other inadequacies in so vast a subject.

Each person who helped to prepare has memories of long hours of meetings, telephone calls, travel, changes of plans, getting to know people doing other jobs, feeling part of a great enterprise and a growing sense of achievement. Co-operation was the name of the game.

Preparations Begin

In September 1980, when a visit by Pope John Paul II became a possibility, the bishops requested Bishop Thomson to preside over a small committee to choose a suitable site for the largest event of the Visit. He invited a senior police officer, an engineer and a surveyor to join him and in October 1980 a number of sites were considered. From these, Bellahouston Park, provided that permission was given by Glasgow District Council, was chosen. This was agreed upon by the bishops in December 1980. At the same meeting, Bishop Thomson was appointed chairman of a co-ordinating council and Father Daniel J. Hart (to whom so much of the credit for the success of the Visit is due) was invited to accept the office of executive director. The first meeting of the council was held on 16th February 1981. Throughout the preparations, Father Hart was in constant touch with the English organisers. Eleven "vertical" committees were set up and it is a great tribute to the farsightedness, commonsense and mathematical precision of the bishop (after consultation with his fellow bishops) that this organisation was to prove so effective and to lead so smoothly to sub- and sub-sub-committees, working parties and eventually to the event committees which were finally set up. Alongside these worked parish papal visit committees. Hundreds of organisers were eventually planning, at all hours of the day and eventually almost all hours of the night, and in all sorts of places.

The danger of an administrative centrifugal action or even a diaspora was avoided, as far as possible, by committees submitting minutes and reports, which could be collated and circulated to bishops and committees. The national "Bulletins", designed to promote and sustain pastoral preparation, also proved to be indispensable means of passing on information, advice and instructions, to put as many in the picture as possible. The bulletins were printed by John S. Burns & Sons, who worked day and night for so much of what appeared in print.

The Visit in Doubt

Twice the Visit hung in the balance, after the attack on the Pope's life in St. Peter's Square and during the war in the South Atlantic. Both events were harrowing. Each was saddening in itself, the Holy Father's life in danger and the universal concern this caused, and then the loss of life and limb, the grief and worry of relatives and of friends in the Falklands conflict.

Through prayer, his own indomitable physique and spirit and the skill of his doctors, the Holy Father recovered and it was with great relief, on Thursday 22nd October, 1981, that we read or heard the statement:

Papal Visit to Scotland, England and Wales

A statement from Cardinal Gordon Gray and Cardinal Basil Hume: "Last Saturday October 17th Pope John Paul II received us in private audience at his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo. The Holy Father told us that he was already preparing for his Pastoral Visit to Scotland, England and Wales at the end of next May. We expressed our delight and told him that he would receive a great welcome when he came to us. Our preparations for the Visit will now proceed. Plans will be submitted to the Holy Father as soon as possible for his approval and final decision. The official announcement of the Visit will be made by the Holy See at a later date in accordance with Vatican practice. We know that our people will be pleased to learn that the Holy Father has made a remarkable recovery and is in excellent spirits. The Pastoral Visit of the Pope will help to strengthen our faith and deepen our spiritual lives, so that we may be better able to respond to the demands that God is making upon us all, and that we may better serve our Church and society as a whole. We do not wish to overload the Holy Father with too many engagements. We ask you, therefore, to be sensitive to the need for preserving the good health of our visitor. Our spiritual preparation is of the first importance so we may achieve the true aims of the Visit."

The more serious threat to the Visit was the War. That this threat was avoided we are indebted to Cardinals Gray and Hume, presidents of their hierarchies and to Archbishops Thomas Winning and Derek Worlock, all tireless in their efforts to convince the Holy Father (if he needed convincing) that a pastoral visit to Britain would be acceptable and welcomed. To arrange to concelebrate Mass with the British cardinals and archbishops and some Argentinian cardinals was the decision of a holy, strong and wise man. Father Tom Connelly summed it up: "This is the Church in dialogue, when brothers in Christ are meeting together to rise above the political problems and to see the whole question in the light of their Church's faith, and so, hopefully, give an example to the world." To plan to visit Argentina soon after the British Visit was equally in character. Once more the Visit was on.

During these two crises, the many organisers worked on notwithstanding, assuring themselves and others that all would be well. The assassination attempt undoubtedly led to increased security, but the Pope was never over-cosseted. As the days of the Visit went by, while great caution and security were still maintained, there certainly seemed to be less apprehension.

Committee Work—Security and Police

The first of the original committees was "Police, Security and Traffic Control". Its remit was far-ranging. Convener Father Noel Woods and vice-convener Father Charles Barclay were, like their corresponding members on other committees men for the moment and the occasion.

Both Strathclyde and Lothian and Borders Forces cannot be praised too highly for their superb handling of the situation. To both Chief Constables and to their Forces, Catholics and others in Scotland are very much indebted. The exercise was a model in efficiency, diplomacy, firmness and friendliness. Our police "are wonderful". On not a few occasions they were cheered when they marched in their ranks, greeted and congratulated as individuals. In the West, key policemen were Depute Chief Constable Alex Morrison, Assistant Chief Constable John Boyd and Chief Superintendent John Dickson. John Dickson was seconded full time for the Visit, with a distinguished record in police training and in traffic control which were to prove invaluable. In the East, key men were assistant Chief Constable W. Rogers and Superintendent Charles Boulton.

Countless hours were spent on the security of the Holy Father and of others, but much of this was and is confidential. One feels and hopes that the two Forces themselves polished up techniques which can be taken out of the file and used for other great occasions. The Police were deeply involved in every event and had close links with every committee. The planning and liaison paid off. Their advice was of prime importance and proved to be sound, not the least in accreditation of individuals.

Logistics

Vehicles also had to be accredited—details of cars and buses obtained and routes fixed to parking places. The vastness and complexity of producing such detailed plans—capable if necessary of last minute adjustments—could not be described here. For Bellahouston and for other venues first aid personnel, stewards, musicians and many other individuals and groups had to be cared for. Great credit is also due here to British Rail, to the Scottish Bus Group, to the Greater Glasgow Passenger Transport Executive and to the AA and the RAC for their skilled and ready help.

Committee 1 had close links with Committee 2 “Hospitality and Special Transport”, the functions of which were most ably dealt with by Father Maurice Ward, Father John Ramsay and Mr. William Maguire. Father Woods, Father Barclay and the police were greatly involved in the transport of the Holy Father, bishops, entourage and special guests. Along with Captain Hunt of British Caledonian they chose landing sites for the helicopters (later to be approved by the Civil Aviation Authority). RAF Turnhouse was chosen for arrival and departure. In a combined effort, routes were planned to achieve maximum security for the Pope and for others. Smoothness, split-second timing and back-ups resulted from a high level of planning. The police and others could not have been more helpful and considerate in helping Committee 5 in the complex arrangements at Murrayfield and at Bellahouston, to reach the fine detail of achieving the minimum inconvenience in transporting the sick and handicapped to their places and in providing for the speedy and safe evacuation of any casualties. At Bellahouston, over one thousand singers and instrumentalists were in position in good time. A monumental joint effort in transportation.

Guests

Father Ramsay and Father Ward had the daunting task of advising the Council on the preparation of VIP guest lists. Anyone who has ever had to choose guests will know the feeling. They reserved and arranged overnight accommodation of VIPs—the Holy Father, entourage, Scottish and other bishops, representatives of other Churches and other persons. They had to arrange catering and to issue information to guests. More to come—“provision of personnel to welcome VIPs at airports and railway stations, to escort them to residences, to advise them on programmes, to escort them to their places on arrival at functions and on their departure to their transport, and to arrange for their final departure”. This was done. In the “special transport” part of the remit, Bill Maguire was a key man. He richly merited some photographs which prompted the query: "Who is that with Bill Maguire?" You can say it quickly: "Provision of helicopters as required by the Pope, entourage, VIPs and key personnel, provision of 'Popemobile' and driver as required and provision of road transport for VIPs from arrival to departure and between all functions". This was done. Choosing and looking after guests proved to be a logistical exercise which was a model of its kind. Mysteries of protocol were soon unwoven and everyone truly put in her/his place—many hundreds of hours of hard work, dedication and expertise.

Where and How

Committee 3 had a formidable task—"Function Preparation and Stewarding". Function preparation included every event except the Papal Mass. "Negotiation of the site for the function and its arrangement, in co-operation with the airport or other local authority, including the provision of any necessary seating, other furnishings, equipment, bunting, flags". Mr. Tom Farmer was appointed Chief Superintendent, with Mr. Andrew Mulhern as his deputy and each site had a superintendent and a deputy. Ready co-operation was received from Local Authorities, in particular with Edinburgh District Council for Murrayfield and with Bearsden District Council. The committee played its part in preparing the Cathedral and the Cardinal's house, Rosewell and Bearsden. It was involved at Bellahouston in the layout of the gating systems, the design and location of certain corral areas, as well as the areas for guests and for the sick and handicapped. This was inevitable because of the close association of the park design with ticketing.

In ticketing, Bellahouston was the major operation, but each of the events was handled with equal attention to detail. The backcloth for security at each venue was to be ticketing, apart from such events as the meeting with the Moderator. At most events each person had to have a pass of some type or a ticket. For the "Pilgrimage of Youth" tickets went out through schools, youth organisations and parishes. For the Cathedral, priests and religious were invited to apply through the Papal Visit Office, for Bellahouston applications had to be made to parishes. Murrayfield and Bellahouston tickets were allocated pro-rata. At these two places some persons were invited to apply for special tickets, while Rosewell and Bearsden were totally by invitation. Those who accepted invitations received an admission ticket shortly before the event. Anyone who was to be near the Holy Father needed a special pass with passport photograph. Up to the last moment, Father McAllister and Father Lynagh were sending forms and photographs to the Police, retrieving the passes and delivering them to individuals. Police had complete details of all these people. No one was exempt. At Bellahouston only three groups had corrals specially reserved, the deaf, guides and scouts (for the Guard of Honour) and the Polish community. For others it was first come, first served, the only course in the circumstances. At over three hundred turnstiles at the eight gates at the Park, colour-coded and numbered corral "stickers" were given in exchange for the stub of the ticket and stuck on the reverse side, which had various other details. Tickets were then worn conspicuously. Distribution of tickets to stewards on the day was a massive operation. Sick and handicapped, guests, choirs and bands, Ministers of the Eucharist, the medical teams, concelebrants, liturgical participants and VIPs had special gates. All stewards were issued with passes of some type (signed), catering and sales staff had entry passes. Greater freedom of movement was given to special passes. Press, media, ancillary services, contractors—all had means of identification. This meant that about three hundred thousand persons in the Park had passes, tickets, security passes, Papal lapel pins, special branch lapel badges or a police warrant card. Some detail has been deliberately included here to show the massive nature of the operation.

Mr. Buchan Chalmers was the "inflexible" man on Committee 3 who had special responsibility for stewarding. This was one of the first steps in the preparation for the Visit. Buchan's experience had prepared him well. Again, a few words but a vast task: "the stewarding of ALL functions, including those at Bellahouston Park . . . recruitment of stewards, and also parking attendants as required . . . from societies and parishes, briefing and organisation of stewards, distribution to stewards, of distinctive uniforms, catering (for stewards)" Under him Buchan Chalmers had a hierarchy of stewards. A year before the Visit, each parish was asked to nominate a parish recruiting agent who would enlist volunteers. Yellow plastic bibs and a variety of coloured berets denoted rank and function. The greatest of praise and thanks to all stewards is due, no matter what their particular job—not least to those who did not even see the Holy Father in person. Because stewarding was so intimately related to the police operation, there was a joint decision on role and duties of stewards and a joint effort on notes and training programmes. Co-operation at all times was essential and was achieved. Committee 3 had a wide remit. "Youth Involvement" was the function of Committee 4. This was placed in the experienced and capable hands of Father Charles Cavanagh and of Father Patrick Fallon. Their story is to be found in this article in the commentary on the "Pilgrimage of Youth" to meet the Holy Father at Murrayfield.

The Sick and handicapped

Automatic choices as convener and vice-convener of Committee 5 were Father Desmond Maguire and Father Charles Hendry. The remit of their committee embraced the Pilgrimage of Youth, the Holy Father's visit to Rosewell and the Papal Mass. Its function again was simply stated: "Sick and Handicapped Groups—to work for the organisation of groups of sick and handicapped to attend functions during the Papal Visit, to recruit volunteers to care for such groups during functions—medical and nursing emergencies—to organise first aid posts and to provide personnel for them as necessary at any functions at which they are required." The committee, ably chaired by Mr. Joe Kerr, met in Father Maguire's office in Park Circus. Like other committees, it had much to discuss and arrange, the numbers of sick from each parish or organisation, types of handicap and transportation. The sick also needed helpers, some wheelchairs. For first aid, the key man was Dr. Desmond Reilly. An East of Scotland committee was soon set up.

The sense of common purpose in Committee 5 was moving, the combined expertise it assembled was impressive for both its functions. Father Maguire's own words capture the atmosphere. "1st June. As convener I had fulfilled one of my ambitions—to be redundant. I was just going to enjoy the day. My observations are about what others did. At 6.45 a.m. I joined the group of minibuses and cars setting off from George Square, with parents of mentally handicapped persons going to meet and hear the Pope at St. Joseph's, Rosewell. We arrived shortly before 8.30 a.m. Back at Bellahouston, from 7.30 onwards, doctors (60), nurses (150), first aid workers (300) and Hospitalité of Our Lady of Lourdes members (200) had been taking up their posts. In parishes from Wick to Galloway and the Borders, cars, minibuses, buses and ambulances were setting off with sick and helpers.

At Rosewell, parents, nurses, teachers and instructors from a selection of hospitals, adult training centres and schools for the mentally handicapped from all over the country were gathering to join the patients and staff of St. Joseph's. One thousand two hundred persons were spread throughout the hospital, nine hundred waited outside for a glimpse of the Holy Father. Stewarding and policing was careful but unobtrusive. Patients and guests were sharing places in the chapel, the main hall, three large sitting rooms and the large assembly hall—Ozanam Hall.

I found myself a corner of the chapel where I could stand and see the Holy Father, without blocking anyone else's view. At nine o'clock a service of prayers and hymns began in the chapel, relayed through the hospital and grounds. Suddenly, as the service went on,

Pope John Paul was with us, slipping quietly in by a side door. The atmosphere had been one of prayer. He came in, like any parishioner slipping into a church unnoticed, without disturbing the service. After a moment of silent prayer he spoke to us. His message—respect for the handicapped person—understanding of the discouragement and distress which parents sometimes feel—their need of support, to be looked for and found in Jesus.

After his talk, those in the chapel remained in their seats, while Pope John Paul went on to meet more of the handicapped, parents and helpers. Having been close to him in the chapel, I was worried in case those in the sitting rooms wouldn't get a chance to see the Holy Father. I need not have worried. Instead of stopping in the doorways, he had gone round and grasped the hand of everyone of the one hundred and eighty persons who were there, before going on to meet and greet those outside.

After a picnic in the hospital grounds, our motorcade set off back for Glasgow, many going on to Bellahouston to finish their day there. We may have looked like ordinary, normal people as we drove along the M8, but we felt about ten feet tall.

At Bellahouston, as the sick and their helpers arrived, the men of the Hospitalité helped the sick out of their cars and buses, while stewards were on hand to lead them down to their places or wheel them in chairs. In the sick corrals, lady helpers and nurses were on duty to look after their guests. Passing round cups of tea and water, sharing picnics with the sick, and helping them to the toilets seemed the main occupations of the day. First-aiders and nurses stood by in case of sudden illness. It says much for the care given to the sick that the specialist-manned first aid tent in their area was one of the least busy.

By the time I reached Bellahouston everyone was in place, so I had no trouble getting in. As I walked over the hill behind the altar I heard a roar from the crowd as Pope John Paul arrived. I slipped into the sick enclosure in time to join the welcoming crowds as he passed. I remember very little of that afternoon. I was so pleased with the Rosewell visit that I spent most of the time in a quiet corner of the first aid tent, relaxing and enjoying the happiness of the people around me and thanking God for the day he had given us.

The Mass was over, the crowds hurried away, the work of the helpers in the sick area was just starting a new phase. With police help, transport for the three thousand sick and helpers was brought back. Three and a half hours later the last sick were safely in their cars and ambulances and on their ways home. Wheelchairs were gathered into the first aid tent and by 10.45 p.m. we were all on our way home.

At the end of the Mass I had the privilege of meeting Pope John Paul before he boarded his helicopter. I was completely tongue-tied and didn't say a word. He said "Thank you" to me, which was really "Thank you" to all the sick and handicapped committee, the doctors, nurses, first-aiders, Hospitalité members, stewards, parish groups and above all the sick and disabled and their relatives.

My final memory of the day—the joy of the parents of the handicapped after they had met His Holiness."

Father Maguire's account has spanned one full day and this effect of total impact is perhaps what most people felt.

Medical Services

Under the direction of Dr. Desmond Reilly, the medical arrangements were gone into and arranged in fine detail. A mobile intensive care unit, manned by Professor Iain Ledingham and colleagues was never far from the Holy Father when he was in the West, and in the East precautions had been taken also. First aid arrangements were provided at any site where it was considered necessary to have them, but obviously the greatest need would be at Bellahouston, where the medical HQ had been set up in the Sports Centre, in the same complex as the Police Command Post and the Site Director's (Father Woods') control. Dr. Reilly and Dr. Andrew Reid have compiled a report on the arrangements for the Park and this indicates the scale of the preparation and the treatment given. The summary must be quoted: "The Medical Planning for this historic event began some eight months beforehand. Three hundred thousand people were expected and they all arrived. It was a fine sunny day and the temperature reached 77 degrees Fahrenheit with little wind to dispel the heat. The first-aid posts had to attend to almost 2,000 casualties, many of whom suffered from the effects of the heat. More than 20 litres of calamine lotion were used and the total bill for medical supplies approached £600. The co-operation received from doctors, nurses, Red Cross, St. Andrew's Ambulance Association, Strathclyde Police, Hospitalité de Notre Dame de Lourdes and the clergy was magnificent." The Greater Glasgow Health Board and the Scottish Ambulance Service also contributed. The command centre had ultimate responsibility. Twelve first-aid posts were sited throughout the Park, each manned by three doctors, six registered nurses, first-aid personnel, one recorder, one steward, two police officers, one police cadet or special constable and one priest. Patrolling first-aid workers could refer cases to a post, which could then consider sending the case to hospital. Other situations were covered. An excellent communications system was in operation. The medical report also contains a plan indicating all points, a list of pharmaceutical medical supplies, the equipment in each post, first-aid supplies, statistics of the "Casualty Workload".

Only 19 patients were sent to hospital. Twice as many women as men were treated—was this the balance in the Park? Ailments are analysed (treated on site, sent to hospital). More than two thirds of the casualties suffered from the effects of the sun or prolonged waiting. Blistered feet were also common and minor injuries consisted mainly of bruises and sprains. There were no births and no deaths. Every conceivable eventuality was covered and the ambulance services and hospitals were relieved of a considerable burden. The report is to be commended. Would that the Pastoral results could be so finely quantified!

Celebration and Ceremonial

Committee 6 had another wide range of responsibilities. Father Daniel Friel had to form a team of masters of ceremonies to co-operate with the Papal master of ceremonies in the direction of all the liturgical and paraliturgical functions during the Visit. For these functions he had to recruit and train servers. The provision of all liturgical vestments and furnishings, as required, had to be arranged and they had to be prepared and removed at each function. Father Friel had also to arrange for the distribution of Holy Communion at any large celebration of Mass, to recruit and direct priests, deacons and acolytes for the distribution of Holy Communion, and to arrange for the reservation of unconsumed Hosts . . . another daunting task. That the Papal master of ceremonies found no occasion, as he seems to have done during other Visits, to intervene, is a wonderful testimony to the work of Father Friel and his helpers. Regrettably some of the ciboria, designed by Mr. Brian McCrossan and lovingly and painstakingly made by secondary schools and destined for local parishes and feeder primary schools were, in the euphoria of the day, not returned. Perhaps some day they will. All the vestments, beautifully designed by Mrs. Netta Ewing, were made by schools and by others and were all retrieved. Father John McKelvie was in charge of Liturgy Preparation. His role was to co-operate with the music section in the preparation of suitable liturgies and to co-operate with Committee 10 in the publication of booklets or leaflets containing books and texts for the use of the public. Father McKelvie's own remarks are worthy of quoting: "While each of the previous stages, Murrayfield, the Cathedral, Bearsden, each had its own distinctive flavour, the visit to Bellahouston Park, Glasgow, was without doubt, the highlight of the Visit. This was not only the biggest gathering of the Scottish Visit, but the biggest in the history of the nation. This huge crowd had gathered to celebrate, with the Pope, his one Mass here in Scotland, the first Mass celebrated by a Pope in this country. Surrounded by the bishops of Scotland and from elsewhere, by clergy (one from each deanery and others) and laity from every part of the country, visitors from other local Churches and members of the Papal Household, the Pope had come to confirm us in the Faith.

In the words of Archbishop Winning, in his address of welcome, "to heal the wounds of the past and set us on our course towards our common Father". Above the crowds on the hillside, with the trees in the distance, the "sanctuary" had been created, with its two focal points of ambo and altar, the tables of God's Word and Sacrament, and the beautiful chair from which the Pope would preside over the whole celebration. The dais itself was surrounded by banners in Papal colours. The flowers and the grass between the dais and the people formed almost half of a Celtic Cross. The whole scene was reminiscent of the biblical setting in which Jesus proclaimed the Sermon on the Mount—a passage from which would be the central reading of the Mass. This is an example of the kind of catechetical instruction given in the early Church to the first Christians. These words bear the stamp of Christ's own insight and vision. The Beatitudes give us a picture of life in the Kingdom of God, a portrait of the disciple of Christ. God reaches out to us, speaks to us, gives himself to us, in Christ. What the Beatitudes do is to present us with an image of the life we are called to lead; they open up for us a sight of "life as it should be"; they fill us with a sense of life for the future, when "God will be all in all". As the celebration of the Mass unfolded, we had the strong male voice of the west of Scotland proclaiming the reading from the book of Deuteronomy in contrast to the reading from Paul's letter to the Ephesians proclaimed by a lady from the Highlands. The intentions of the Prayer of the Faithful were read by both religious and lay people, while in the procession of gifts, children walked ahead of their elders, with the senior citizens bringing up the rear.

It was truly an assembly of God's people, a unique celebration which united and bound together all who were present:

"It is therefore of the greatest importance that the celebration of the Mass, the Lord's Supper, be so arranged that everybody—ministers and priests—may take their own proper part in it. It is indeed the presence and active participation of the faithful which most clearly manifests the ecclesial nature of the celebration." (General Instruction on the Roman Missal).

The Bellahouston Mass was truly a celebration with all the ingredients which one might expect in a good liturgical celebration, especially one presided over by the Holy Father. The tremendous hush which descended on the people as, the Popemobile journey over, the crowd awaited the beginning of Mass: the noise, cheering and singing which greeted his entry on the dais, and which punctuated his homily. The silence as Pope and people recollected themselves to begin Mass, to reflect on the Word of God proclaimed in the readings, to give thanks after Communion. The whole Mass was both joyful and serious, noisy and peaceful.

The celebration of the Eucharist followed the Roman Rite as it had been revised after the Second Vatican Council. In keeping with the wishes of the Fathers of the Council it had the noble simplicity which characterises all the revised sacramental rites. And yet it was unmistakably Scottish—the warmth of the reception given to the Holy Father, so many of the sung parts of the Mass composed by Scottish composers. The Church, at once local and universal, was reflected in the Papal colours fluttering alongside the various Scottish tartans.

“Even in the liturgy, the Church has no wish to impose a rigid uniformity in matters which do not involve the faith or the good of the whole community. Rather she respects and fosters the spiritual adornments and gifts of the various races and peoples. (Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy, Vat II).

Without doubt one of the most important factors in the Mass was that the Pope presided. It need hardly be said that John Paul has a charism for communication. Murrayfield alone was evidence of that. Yet there is more to it.

He presided over the vast assembly with great dignity and humility. Pausing at the beginning of the presidential prayers to allow time for recollection, his subsequent delivery was clear, deliberate and unhurried. Always he was sensitive and attentive to what was going on around him—listening to the readings, joining in the singing when he was familiar with the music, praying quietly with the rest of the assembly.

The Papal Mass, along with the other liturgical celebrations of his Visit, put the seal on the liturgy as it had been revised . . .” (The feelings of Father McKelvie, in charge of Liturgy Preparation.)

Father David Trainer, refreshing himself from time to time by his urge to “climb every mountain” was “Officer i/c Music”. His job was to co-operate with the Liturgy preparation in the provision of music for all functions, to recruit choirs and to issue directives to parishes for the musical preparation of parishioners and to provide musical accompaniment at functions along with choir leaders, both for choirs and general public. Of great energy and expertise himself, Father Trainer had a small but hyperactive committee dedicated to choosing wonderful liturgical and other music. It must be said that he was not responsible for all the singing that was heard, but no doubt enjoyed it as much as the Holy Father did. Nor were his committee members expert only in choosing and arranging music . . . when the time came to give it a "local habitation".

The committee, slightly augmented, was equally skilled in dealing with TV and Radio, publications, architects, police, contractors, bus companies, suppliers of music stands and many other necessary agents. Music was one of the very great features of the Visit and it will linger long in the memory. Fortunately, much of it has been recorded for our successors, otherwise a thrilling dimension would be missing from any record of the Visit. Mrs. Barnes' thrilling 14 to 18 choir which sang at both Murrayfield and at Bellahouston, Aine Carey and her group at Murrayfield, John Pitcaithley's wonderful organ playing at both events, the total, moving experience of the massed adult choirs at Bellahouston, Josephine McQueen the soloist, the renowned Bellarmine Strings, the Croy Parish Silver Band, the Battlefield Band—all capable of entralling a congregation or audience by themselves, but under the baton of George Farmer, conductor of St. Mary's Cathedral Choir in Edinburgh, producing music which may never be heard live in Scotland again. So central, too, the role of the cantor at the Papal Mass, Monsignor Benjamin Canon Donachie, V.G. One could never attempt to assess the thousands of hours of practice and rehearsals, travel in the late, snowy reaches of the night, long periods often in cold halls or churches, reaching for perfection, which brought about the music of the Papal Visit. From it, one hopes, will come a resurgence of interest.

The Ecumenical Dimension

Relations with other Churches was the work of Committee 7 and much of the Scottish Catholic effort toward Christian Unity over the period 1981-1982 was the planning and preparation of the ecumenical aspects of the Pastoral Visit of the Holy Father. Monsignor Hugh G. McEwan records how, in the early spring of 1981, he was appointed convener of this committee. It was soon agreed that the membership of this committee should coincide with the membership of the Scottish National Commission for Christian Unity. An executive committee was formed, consisting of the convener, Father James Quinn, S.J., and Father John Fitzsimmons . . . for the most part the work of planning was carried out by the executive committee . . . the executive committee took the following initial decisions. It was decided to write to those Churches which make up the Scottish Churches Council and to invite their leaders to take part in a simple meeting with the Pope, ending with prayer . . .

It was also decided not to issue formal invitations to specifically Catholic functions . . . but to issue invitations through the Catholic parishes to all interested non-Catholics. The decision was also taken to contact representatives of the Jewish and Muslim communities in Scotland. It was further agreed to invite members of the Joint Catholic-Presbyterian Commission of Doctrine, and members of the Joint Catholic-Episcopalian Study Group to be present at the delivery of a homily on ecumenical dialogue by the Pope on the morning of 1st June, 1982. In connection with these joint groups, as indeed with the Church and religious leaders, a point worth noting is that the formal invitations to meet Pope John Paul II were answered with unusual warmth." Most groups approached wished to be represented. As the Church of Scotland is the established Church of the land, it was left to the Cardinal to arrange the suitable inclusion of the Moderator in the Visit. "During the months of preparation, Mgr. McEwan kept in touch with the various Churches, informing them of the progress of the preparations and forwarding them copies of the Papal Visit Bulletins."

Through the parishes, it is estimated that more than 10,000 non-Catholics officially applied for tickets. The welcome by the Moderator will be recorded later. Early on Tuesday 1st June, the Pope also welcomed the Moderator and met ten Church and religious leaders—Bishop Taggart (Episcopalian), Rev. Henry Cook (Congregationalist), Rev. Haddow Tennant (Methodist), Father John Messoloras (Greek Orthodox), Rev. Raymond Bade (United Reformed Church), Christine Davis (Society of Friends), Commissioner Eva Burrows (Salvation Army), Alexander Dand (Unitarian), Rabbi Dr. Weinberg (Jewish Community) and Mr. S. M. Sharif (President, Muslim Mission). His Holiness then proceeded to the Cardinal's private chapel where he delivered a short homily on the importance of ecumenical dialogue. The congregation in the chapel consisted of the Church and religious leaders . . . members of the Joint Commission and of the Joint Study Group, about thirty-five persons in all. After the presentation to His Holiness of an English edition of the Bible, this gathering ended with a brief and cordial exchange of greetings, the Pope shaking hands with everyone present. Distinguished personalities in the Church of Scotland sent a letter to The Glasgow Herald which ended "May his visit further our basic unity in Christ and bring all of us closer to each other in God's will and in his ways with a deepening of our faith and commitment." During the period of the Visit, before and after, there was very little sectarian bitterness. After the Visit, the convener received a number of letters expressing deep appreciation from several non-Catholic sources, including copies of addresses of welcome drawn up by the Presbyteries of Dumbarton and Hamilton.

The Spiritual Preparation

The Holy Father's Visit to Britain was a pastoral one. In Scotland, the pastoral preparation was intensive and thorough. Bishop Joseph Devine was the priest to whom this central role was allotted and his Committee was No. 8. Rather than slot in the Bishop's account here, it is felt more fitting to keep it as a conclusion to the article, both as an end and as a beginning.

Finance

The financing of the Visit was under the direction and supervision of Bishop Thomson himself. Financial administration was the province of a firm of accountants, financial appeals in the control of the bishop and financial promotions was the remit of Father Denis O'Connell. Finance was naturally a major aspect of the arrangements, but one need not dwell unduly on it here. The Catholics of Scotland were generous and this was fortunate. The efforts of the Promotions Committee were painstaking, widely cast, carried on by a committee of outstanding expertise and dedication. Apart from many meetings unrecorded, on 21st June 1982 the Promotions Committee met for the 25th time! For reasons that cannot be stated here, the income from promotions (sale of souvenirs and returns from catering) bore absolutely no relation to the skills and work of the committee. Jim Pate's name must be mentioned—but in the same breath as names which cannot be mentioned, a young but senior official of a Scottish bank (who arranged with her bank for skilled bank persons to deal with money at Murrayfield and Bellahouston) and the Bank itself, the managers of two well-known Scottish stores and many assistants, who manned the souvenir tents, and the stores themselves. Why income was not generated lay elsewhere than in the outstanding contribution of these three officials, their employers and the employees. Other members of the committee gave lavishly of their services and time, and Father O'Connell proved an able leader.

The Media

Committee 10 had to deal with News, Information and Telecommunications. Convener was Bishop Charles Renfrew, vice-convener Father Thomas Connelly. The committee had to stimulate interest in the Visit by a continuing supply through the Catholic Press Office of news of the activities of the Co-ordinating Council and its committees, to be the sole agent for replying to queries from the Press and from radio and TV companies and, to this end, to be empowered to contact the conveners of all committees for information, to co-operate with the responsible committees in the provision of facilities for the Press at functions during the Visit, and to provide personnel to liaise with the Press at all such functions, to form a direct source of information to the clergy and laity through the publication of bulletins or in any other way, and, in particular, to co-operate with the work of the Pastoral Preparation Committee. The committee had also to notify TV and radio companies of the programme of the Papal Visit, to authorise their coverage of events and to co-operate with them in their preparations, to provide personnel to liaise with radio and TV companies at all functions during the Visit, and to co-operate with the committee responsible for any function in the provision of an amplification system, etc.

Well in advance of the Visit, Bishop Renfrew invited several journalists to help. The committee in the first instance stemmed from the Press Committee of the Catholic Communications Commission. Jim Coffey's work, as chairman and adviser, must go on record and be highly commended. The committee was to make the major preparations (e.g. a Press kit, biographies, background details, history of the Church in Scotland) while the Press and Media Office handled the day to day enquiries. The work of Father Connelly, who took over as Press Officer in Scotland in October, 1981, was extensive. He was Director of the Catholic Broadcasting Centre. He attended all Committee 10 meetings and event committee meetings, to acquaint himself with needs of the media. The South Atlantic crisis intensified interest, with calls coming in from all over the world. Optimistic bulletins from the Press Officer, in constant contact with Archbishop Winning in Rome, regularly appeared and Father Connelly was also on call for TV and radio interviews and daily bulletins to the Press. Also on his agenda was the complex business of media accreditation.

As the event drew near, the Press Office was supplemented by opening two satellite offices, one at the Holiday Inn in Glasgow, one at the Royal Scot Hotel, Edinburgh. To both of these managements we are indebted. John Dundas was put in charge, and, as a man of long experience of great events, he chaired a major Scottish and International Press Conference at the Holiday Inn.

Each event had a director acting on behalf of the Press Office. His report was phoned to the Holiday Inn, whence the news was spread. In May, 1982, Hugh Farmer, a professional journalist, joined the press team, as well as Jim Cantwell, Press Officer for Ireland.

Immediately before the Visit, volunteers gave wonderful back up, often helping out language-wise. Secretaries typed copy, and were on rotas at offices and events. From 24th May until after the Visit, the nerve centre was the Holiday Inn. Final total of telephone lines was 111. Press photographs were ferried by a motor cycle despatch service. The committee and the Press Office were widely thanked for what they had done.

The contribution of TV and radio was vast and brought a very special dimension to the record of the Visit. For the first time BBC and STV pooled their resources, in order to give the events full coverage. Grampian TV relayed Turnhouse, BBC covered for all at Bearsden, STV covered Rosewell. At major events, TV and radio from other countries had their own crews. Base for Vatican Radio was in the Cardinal's greenhouse.

Much of the material which will be deposited in the Scottish Catholic Archives will be articles from the Press, press photographs, television and radio records—a time capsule from the world of the media.

* * * * *

To relate the events of the Visit as they happened chronologically would it is felt, not have done justice to the account. An element of "stream of consciousness" has therefore been used, for that is the impression of very many of those involved. Through the work of the committees, views and eyewitness accounts, already many details of the Visit have been covered. A more sequential story will help to bring these details and thoughts together.

Arrival

Our first view of the Holy Father was at RAF Turnhouse, which, for security reasons, had been used. With the exception of Bishop McGill (waiting at Glasgow Airport in case of a diversion) the Scottish bishops and some others welcomed the Holy Father as he was escorted out of the BAC 1-11. Speculation ended—he kissed Scottish soil and that piece of turf is now in the Cardinal's garden. This was not a state occasion and it fell to Group Captain Watson RAF—a good friend—to give the formal salute. The welcome from the Reception Party, and from RAF personnel not on duty and their families, made up in its warmth for the necessary functional drabness of the spot. There was not much time (the plane being late) for a rest or for sampling the tasty afternoon tea. Just as well as it that the first plan for the Pope and the others to fly by helicopter from York to Edinburgh had been changed in favour of a fixed wing plane. With over 45,000 eager youth awaiting the Pope at Murrayfield, it was soon time to set off by road.

Murrayfield—An Explosion of Joy

Father Cavanagh takes up the story. “‘He’s got the whole world in his hands’. The millions watching television on 31st May 1982 were left in no doubt that John Paul II had captured the minds and hearts of the 45,000 young people gathered at Murrayfield Stadium. . . . The ecstatic welcome that greeted the Pope’s entry to the home of Scottish rugby shook those who in the past had witnessed scenes of joy after many famous victories. No rugby hero was ever like this. Before them was a man who has love for life and an ardent desire to be with people. They could relate to him. . . . they knew in their hearts that he shared their hopes for a better world.”

Yet “the day that the Lord made” for Scottish youth might never have taken place. . . . Having witnessed the joyful youth of Galway and having heard a report of the French youth’s meeting with the Holy Father at the Parc des Princes, Fathers Cavanagh and Fallon requested the Bishops and the Council to find some way of including a Youth Event. (Their lobbying was superb). Convincing Bishops and Council was an easy task—more difficult was persuading the Vatican envoy who came later that it was necessary to have two youth events during the Visit. Happily both events took place.

Detailed planning began. There were two major considerations, the security part and the expense of having the event in an open area. It was decided to use a sports stadium. After long consideration, the Youth Committee (No. 4), accompanied by depute executive director Father James Rae, approached the Scottish Rugby Union, from whom the Church was to receive every possible aid. The first meeting of the committee was on 15th May 1981 in Motherwell Diocesan Centre. This was the only committee to have representatives from all dioceses. Other members were co-opted to give added expertise. Apart from deciding the age group, it was intended that this should be a moment of great spiritual importance. It was therefore essential that part of the event should be the celebration of a Mass. October 1981 was to prove of great moment. Fathers Cavanagh and Fallon visited Galway on a fact-finding mission and Bishop Casey and his secretary were most helpful and constructive. The bishop insisted that the event could only have a lasting impression if we in Scotland saw it as a pilgrimage and that prayer was central. From then on we spoke of the 'Youth Pilgrimage to the Holy Father.' In November 1981 planning started with Committee 5 to make the day memorable for those who spend most of their lives at home or in hospital. Many other committees were working with the Youth Committee: Liturgy and Music were planning for the Eucharist, Stewarding and Ticketing were busy. Because of the reconstruction being done at Murrayfield, attendance had been cut from 70,000 to 45,000 and the age ranged altered from 12-21 to 14-21. In December 1981, Bishop Joseph Devine requested the Youth Committee to draw up a Pastoral Plan for secondary schools and for older youth. This was undertaken by Father David Gemmell and Mr. David Chalmers and distributed to every school and parish in the country. The early months of 1982 were given over to drawing up plans for the liturgy. It was now known that Bishop Vincent Logan would be principal concelebrant at the Eucharist, along with a recently ordained priest from each diocese. Music was to cause some headaches, not least of all because of the problem of finding the owners of copyright. John S. Burns & Sons (so helpful at all times) and the Music Committee did wonderfully in tracing owners and getting permission to print. By the middle of February, Father David Ward was appointed M.C. for the Eucharist and assumed preparation. The Youth Committee had given their views and Fathers Henry and Burns entered into the planning as animators.

Aine Cary and Cara, the Lothian Ensemble, were involved. Paul Coia was to play a part in the pilgrimage. All members of the Youth Committee were actively involved in their own diocesan preparations. Most dioceses had included a Youth Mass and a penitential rite. Schools were actively preparing, spiritually and in making vestments and ciboria for both Murrayfield and Bellahouston. Banners were in most cases blessed at diocesan Masses. Youth groups all over the country met to discuss the Pastoral Plan and to evolve a programme for their local needs. Constant contact was made with the police and with the media.

As the Pope and his motorcade left RAF. Turnhouse on the evening of 31st May, all this preparation had been made. This day will long be remembered as the day on which the youth of Scotland expressed its joy at the presence of the Vicar of Christ in its midst. The picture portrayed by TV did not do it justice. Those who were present really experienced the Eucharist. United, the youth suffered some discomfort, yet they prayed and sang with fervour and devotion. The silences in the Mass were poignant and will remain in the minds for ever.

The joy at meeting the Holy Father simply flowed from their joyful experience of the Eucharist. Theirs was a real celebration of the Christian community waiting in joy for the coming of the Lord. Bishop Logan's homily was not heard on TV or radio. When read, it shows that the Bishop had his finger on the pulse of his young congregation. Christ "binds us together . . . with cords which cannot be broken . . . The family to which we belong spans the whole world and spans history too, Peter, Andrew, James, John, Ninian, Columba, Margaret, John Ogilvie all belong to one family." They were all privileged to welcome Peter's successor, Pope John Paul II into our midst. It is a meeting, as it were, of Peter and Andrew, Peter in the person of John Paul II and Andrew, represented by us who in Scotland are under his patronage." This was merely a beginning: "The journey which began in our hearts a few months ago, the journey that led to Murrayfield, must not end here. Rather, the celebration of this Mass today and the words of Pope John Paul later will strengthen and encourage us to continue that journey of Faith, that adventure of travelling through life in union with Jesus our Lord in the midst of his Church". The Pope would soon be speaking to the representatives of the youth of Scotland.

"May his words and the experience of his Pilgrimage bind us all more closely to Jesus Our Lord and to one another, so that through our words, our actions and our life together we will proclaim the good news of Jesus to the world."

When the Holy Father entered the stadium the cheering and clapping drowned the playing of the St. Francis' Pipe Band which led his vehicle. They were not, as one rumour went, playing "Silent Night". The overwhelming noise of the welcome seemed to revive the Holy Father. He may not have eaten much at Turnhouse, but this was meat and drink to him. After the Cardinal had spoken, Anne McNeill of Barra sang and John Mone spoke an address. Anne Balsitis and Maria McGuinness, stalwarts in the Papal Visit Office and able to cope with anyone and any thing, presented the Pope with a SCIAF project and a shepherd's crook. The Holy Father could not deliver his address in full, so many were the rapturous cheers. The Youth did not want him to go (no-one did throughout the Visit). "You'll never walk alone", "He's got the whole world in his hands", "Pope John Paul, we love you" and the emotive hymn, "God be with you till we meet again". But the Pope had to go and moved off with his motorcade to the centre of Edinburgh, to Princes Street and to the Mound.

The Moderator

The historic first meeting of a Pope and a Moderator on Scottish soil was signified by a firm handshake. The Right Rev. Professor John McIntyre welcomed John Paul as religious leaders and as friends at the foot of the steps leading up to the Assembly Hall of the General Assembly. Though the Pope looked slightly tired as he entered the quadrangle, he was soon his brisk and attentive self. To his "brother in Christ" the Moderator offered a sincere welcome from the Church of Scotland. "At a time of international tension and conflict in the Falkland Islands, you come to us as a man of peace. We join with you in prayer for a just and lasting peace, for we share a Gospel which effects reconciliation between God and between nations and peoples". This was a dignified, intimate and informal ceremony, long thought out, perfectly carried out.

St. Mary's Cathedral—Clergy and Religious

The Papal vehicle and the others moved to St. Mary's Cathedral. Long before the arrival of the Holy Father, of course, the Cathedral was full, with priests, nuns and brothers. They joined in a Holy Hour—which had to be extended. The cheering outside told them that the moment had come; stewards alerted themselves; the media got ready. Again, a rather tired-looking Pontiff (a long day in both England and Scotland) entered the first post-reformation Cathedral in Scotland. He was warmly welcomed, but his movement down the aisle seemed slow and laboured. He welcomed the help of Cardinal Gray as he mounted the steps to the altar. A few minutes of prayer in the company of the Cardinal helped him to compose himself. His mind and body now seemed revived by the triumphal welcome from the priests and religious. These are occasions when nuns stand on chairs. Members of enclosed orders were present by dispensation—a rare treat for them. No doubt through pressure of time, the Holy Father omitted some passages from his address (this often happened, without affecting his message.) His audience listened intently.

“... You represent all the priests and men and women religious of Scotland. You are the closest collaborators of the bishops in their pastoral ministry. You are present in every area of the community's life, hastening the coming of the Kingdom of God through your prayer and work. In you I feel the heartbeat of the entire ecclesial community. ... During my pastoral visits to the various countries of the world, my meetings with the priests and religious are special moments of ecclesial significance. ... My greeting goes first to the priests, both diocesan and religious. ... As priests you are at the service of Christ the Teacher” ... (And then to the Religious), ... “Brothers and sisters, members of the religious communities! How I wish I could greet each of you personally! ... So, thank you on behalf of the Church. Thank you for the specific witness you give and for all the gifts you contribute. ... Those of you who belong to contemplative communities serve the People of God ‘in the heart of Christ’. ... Your lives testify to the absolute primacy of God and to the kingship of Christ.” The Holy Father left the Cathedral to rapturous applause, to drive to St. Bennet's, the Cardinal's house. Tuesday, 1st June was to be another full day. After dinner and sleep at the Cardinal's house, the Holy Father rose early and breakfasted. It was his turn then to welcome the Moderator and other Church leaders and leaders of religious communities. “The grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brethren. It is a joy to meet with you this morning and I am very appreciative of your courtesy in coming at this early hour”. This was the culmination of the efforts of Mgr. McEwan, Father Quinn and Father Fitzsimmons, recorded earlier.

Rosewell

The Pontiff was soon to leave and make his way to Rosewell. We already have read Father Desmond Maguire's account of his reaction to the visit. John Coultas, organiser of this visit, as well as the Council, pays tribute to the calm patience of Sister Patricia, the matron and to the caring, professional manner of the police. There was an air of expectancy, stilled with the start of the pre-visit liturgy of prayers, readings and hymns. Outside, just before 9.30, the noise of the helicopters was heard, cheers were loud and flags were waved vigorously. Bishop Monaghan welcomed the Holy Father, introduced Sister Patricia and others and was conducted through the hospital, accompanied by Cardinal Gray and the Papal entourage. Father Maguire has written of the Pope's desire to greet patients, staff and parents. He tenderly caressed the severely handicapped. In the chapel, he spoke of his reasons for coming and referred to the Venerable Margaret Sinclair. After his tour, he stepped into the warm sunshine, stopping for the local aged and handicapped. He again greeted patients, staff, sisters and visitors and the Pipe Band played him onto his helicopter. A memory to treasure. The two helicopters gained height and flew off westwards across the country to Bearsden.

Bearsden—Education

The Bearsden Event evolved. Between Rosewell and Bellahouston, the Holy Father—as well as those accompanying him—had to rest and have lunch. A planned stop to visit Carfin Grotto, the great Marian shrine in Scotland, had to be omitted because of the time and security. What was to be rest and lunch in St. Peter's College in Newlands—with a meeting with West of Scotland dignitaries—finished with a programme of lunch and rest at Notre Dame Convent in Bearsden and an address to a wide spectrum of people from the world of Education in the hall of St. Andrew's College of Education—staff and students of the College (those who were not selected for the hall being in the grounds), certain teachers and catechists, university and F.E. students, religious in teaching, other university personnel, members of the Catholic Education Commission, and the Board of Governors, Principals of Universities and Colleges, persons from the Educational Directorate and representatives of the Scottish Education Department and of the Church of Scotland, and other figures from the Scottish educational scene. It was impossible to find room in the hall for all, the rest of the students, College staff, some of their relatives and others heard the Pope's address relayed to the grounds, which were cordoned off and stewarded by a most efficient band. All had creature comforts provided. Within the hall, people saw a relay of the Pope's progress, those outside saw the helicopters arriving and the Pope being welcomed and driven to the College. Within the doorway he met Polish children and their parents, while the bishops and the entourage passed by him into the hall. A few moments later, the platform party entered the hall to loud applause. After a welcome from Archbishop Winning, the Pope began his address.

He referred to the wide range of those before him. He spoke of the Scottish educational tradition from St. Margaret to the founding of the original four universities, Scotland's contribution to the Third World, the contribution of the Church of Scotland to education and the present close ties between the Church of Scotland and the Catholic Church in matters educational. In education there was need for a vision. The Holy Father praised the provisions for Catholics in the 1918 Act. Even when higher education led to unemployment, we could reflect on the true purpose of education as the completing of the person. "To be educated is to be more fitted for life; to have a greater capacity for appreciating what life is, what it has to offer, and what the person in turn has to offer in return to the wider society of man." He welcomed the education of the whole man, not only intellectual ability, but also emotional, physical and social development. To be fully human is to be Christian as well. Parents should be involved in education, it was essential to have specialist teachers of education and he welcomed the decision that Religious Education should be inspected. Developing the whole person, parental involvement and the spiritual dimension are at the core of the Catholic school. "The Catholic school is committed... to the development of the whole man, since in Christ, the Perfect Man, all human values find their fulfilment and unity. Herein lies the specifically Catholic character of the school."

After the Pope had left the hall, he was enthusiastically cheered to the convent. In the brilliant sunshine the atmosphere was one of joy. People had their picnics and walked through the beautiful grounds, until the time came to watch the Pope and Cardinal, and the rest of the passengers in the helicopters fly off to the waiting hundreds of thousands at Bellahouston. Thanks go to Sister Margaret, Principal of the College, to the convent staff and to Mr. B. J. McGettrick who took charge on the day.

Bellahouston—The Day Made Memorable by the Lord

Three hundred thousand welcomes awaited the Holy Father at Bellahouston Park, the largest gathering of all time in Scotland. This was where most building had to be done and most money spent. The architects were adequate to the task of designing the huge layout and the managing contractors proved to be speedy and efficient. By reason of its contours, the wisdom of choosing the Park became evident. It was accessible, it could be made secure. The District Council readily gave the let of the Park and of the sports centre (the latter to become an invaluable police command centre, Event Director's, medical services and ambulance headquarters). Father Hart had taken on himself the daunting task of chairing the event committee. Father Noel Woods was to be an excellent director, just as Father Joe Mills was to excel as animator. Tributes have been paid elsewhere to others of the dramatis personae. The Region readily gave the use of the Palace of Arts. The problem of removing some trees—naturally opposed by conservationists, was solved after months of diplomacy. In the end, a firm of experts removed the trees and replanted them elsewhere in the Park, where they are healthy and awaiting replanting. The problem of "ponding" after rain was solved by the combined efforts of the Parks Department, the architect and the sub-contractor by land drainage, and this will be a permanent asset. While drinking water had to be piped in, water for other uses was ingeniously won from the underground disused mine workings—millions of gallons lie therein—another bonus for the future. Drains dating back to the 1938 Empire Exhibition were put to use.

Then was undertaken the vast task of erecting the dais, the choir and band stand, the TV tower, the installation of electricity and of telephone wires, tents for first aid, catering and toilets, corrals, gates and turnstiles and all else that was needed. It all seemed like a film speeded up. How all those who attended in their various capacities acquitted themselves is recorded elsewhere. An invaluable guide to so much of what was to happen was the Bellahouston "Souvenir of the Papal Mass", edited by Father John Fitzsimmons. Thanks to Holyrood Secondary School for helping to sell it.

At this point, gratitude must be expressed to the Regions for making it possible for children to be free to attend this family gathering.

Before the Holy Father's arrival, there were three Services of prayer, built round the three-fold thrust of the pastoral preparation programme. "Yes to God" was performed by representatives of the two Scottish senior seminaries, who brought to life figures from the history of the Church in Scotland who had said "Yes to God" in their lives, leading up to modern times, the establishment of seminaries, the restoration of the hierarchy and the promotion of the cause of the Venerable Margaret Sinclair. "Yes to each other" was portrayed by the students and staff of the Catholic College of Education. The message was based on the Gospel and on the documents of Vatican II, especially those on the Church and on the Church in the Modern World. A "Justice and Peace" group presented "Yes to Life". The script told the story of three witnesses who had suffered injustice, travelling folk, the unemployed and the exile. The Papal Mass has been written of elsewhere in this article, with particular reference to the liturgy, the sick and handicapped, the medical services. It was Holyday and holiday. The weather was wonderful, as the thousand ministers of the Eucharist distributed Holy Communion, each accompanied by a steward with yellow umbrella, indicating the presence of the Eucharist and as protection from sun or rain. Father Woods, at the press of a button could contact Father Friel, Father Mills, Father Trainer, Father Byrne (in the Palace of Arts), and others, through the massed crowds, and so direct events, receive advice. Not just a wonder of modern technology, but requiring great presence of mind.

The account of the Papal Mass would not be complete without some quotations from the Holy Father's homily. From the opening words of the Pope's address, there was rapt attention, then applause. "Dear sons and daughters of the Catholic Church in Scotland. It was Andrew, the heavenly patron of your beloved Scotland, who introduced Peter to Jesus! Today marks another significant moment in the history of our salvation: the successor of Peter comes to visit the spiritual children of Andrew! Dear brothers and sisters, we are gathered together on this Scottish hillside to celebrate Mass. Are we not like those first disciples and followers who sat at the feet of Jesus on the hillside near Capernaum? . . . The new spirit is to be gentle, generous, simple and above all sincere. . . . There is no one among us who does not have a divine vocation! . . . What response has Scotland given in the past to God's invitation? Christian history narrates that from very early times, perhaps even as early as the second half of the fourth century, Scotland embraced the Gospel of Jesus Christ. For over one thousand five hundred years, his holy name has been invoked in this land. . . . Although situated geographically at the remote edge of Europe, the Church in Scotland became especially dear to the Popes, at the centre and heart of Christianity, and they conferred upon it the exceptional title

SPECIALIS FILIA ROMANAE ECCLESIAE, 'Special Daughter of the Roman Church.' What a magnificent designation! . . . You are the heirs to the sacred heritage. . . . A complete transformation of Catholic life has taken place in Scotland. . . . You originate in a glorious past, but you do not live in the past, . . . you are not alone. The spirit of God is operative in the Church. Never before as in recent years has the teaching of the Catholic Church been so extensively reformulated, precisely with the issues which trouble the modern conscience in mind. I assure you that we are acutely aware of the problems you have to face in life. . . . Your commitment to the sure ways of Christian living could well be decisive in bringing salvation to many. . . . With admiration and satisfaction I have followed the intense programme proposed by the bishops for a spiritual renewal of the Catholic community." The Holy Father then addressed those outwith the Catholic community: "We are only pilgrims on this earth, making our ways towards that heavenly kingdom promised to us as God's children. Beloved brethren in Christ, for the future, can we not make that pilgrimage together hand-in-hand?"

"Let us now remember all those on both sides who are affected by the conflict in the South Atlantic, . . . for your dearly-loved Scottish homeland I wish to adapt and make my own the words familiar to many of you: 'Lord, let Scotland flourish through the preaching of thy word and the praising of thy name' Amen."

The Mass has finished. Cheering and singing accompanied the Pope as he drove to his helicopter and met various of those involved. In the swirl of dust raised by the machines, the Holy Father and his companions entered their vehicles, which rose, circled and set off for Edinburgh, so that the Pope could return to the Cardinal's house for dinner and bed.

To The Bishops

Once in the Cardinal's house, the Holy Father spoke to the bishops of Scotland: "Dear Brothers in the Episcopate, we have assembled this evening in the name of Jesus Christ, who is 'the Shepherd and Bishop' of our souls, 'the chief Shepherd of the flock' . . . basic to the whole identity of a bishop is the fact that he is meant to be the living sign of Jesus Christ. . . . Like Jesus we are called to preach conversion, . . . our fidelity to the love of Jesus and our friendship with him are essential for all the apostolic works that are parts of our daily lives. . . . Indeed everything in your lives, the whole apostolate of Scotland, will be seen from the vantage point of the Christ who has chosen you to preach his 'unsearchable riches', to plead for peace, and to give your lives, as he did, for the flock. Dear brother bishops, in this collegial meeting this evening, we have the wonderful opportunity to rededicate ourselves."

Departure

Early in the morning of Wednesday, 2nd June, the Holy Father and his entourage left the Cardinal's house, drove to RAF Turnhouse and boarded his plane for Wales.

* * * * *

To make the Pope's coming possible, thousands of people gave of their expertise and efforts and time. Office equipment and many other items were donated. Many contributed in ways which there has not been time to record here. The names mentioned have been but a few of those to whom the Catholics of Scotland are indebted. Many more who made the Visit possible will be mentioned in the Archives. To all we owe our thanks and prayers.

How the Pope Saw It

At his general audience in St. Peter's Square a week after he left Britain, the Holy Father reviewed his Visit: "The Papal journey to Great Britain had been prepared for a long time: it had been arranged two years previously and for eight months had been carefully elaborated in the individual dioceses and parishes of England, Scotland and Wales. Today, speaking from the perspective of the now completed visit, I cannot but emphasize especially the dimensions of this preparation and its high level. It is a matter here not only of material means, but above all of the spiritual dimension of this great common labour..."

A Pastoral Visit—Not Just an Event

This was a Pastoral Visit. It is appropriate, therefore, that Bishop Joseph Devine, convener of the first of the eleven national committees to be set up (it appears in the list as No. 8) should have the last words on the spiritual preparation and the spiritual follow-up.

"At Bellahouston Pope John Paul acknowledged the quality of the Scottish preparation for his visit and his awareness of it in these words: 'With admiration and satisfaction I have followed the intense programme proposed by the bishops for a spiritual renewal of the Catholic community, to ensure that the effects of my visit will produce fruits that will endure. I thank each and every one of you for the prayers which have accompanied this preparation, for every effort that has been made to guarantee its success'. It was a quite remarkable tribute from the Pope and deeply appreciated by those who heard him. A few seconds later they were to show this by cheering him for an unbroken seven minutes.

That cheer had its origins fully eighteen months before in the setting up of the first of the eleven national committees of preparation, the committee given the responsibility for the spiritual and pastoral formation of the Catholic community. Under the convenership of one of the bishops the committee was composed of clergy, religious and laity. Though only twelve in number the committee had representatives from six of Scotland's eight dioceses.

The inauguration date for the spiritual plan was the Feast of St. Andrew, our national patron, on 29th November, 1981, exactly six months before the Pope was due to arrive. On that date, throughout Scotland, all the parishes celebrated a special Mass of dedication and commitment to the programme of preparation. It was important to start with the parishes and in the parishes, for the whole plan was directed to parishes as the natural locus for all significant preparation and renewal. That decision had been taken months before by the committee which then sought a formula or a slogan which would both capture the spirit of the plan and be easy to remember. The slogan found was TO FOLLOW CHRIST MEANS SAYING YES TO GOD, YES TO EACH OTHER AND YES TO LIFE. In effect, therefore, the whole plan simply teased out what each of those affirmations meant in practice. Once this had been done it became obvious that the best way in which those ideas could be communicated would be in the form of a short article with questions for the parishes to consider. In all some eighteen articles were written and all by the members of the committee.

But how were we to share those articles with the parishes and the Catholic community? It was in answer to that question that the committee made a most crucial recommendation to the bishops, namely, that there should be produced a National Bulletin in each of the months from December 1981-May 1982. Roughly half the space in the Bulletin would be devoted to the unfolding of the spiritual plan while the other half would contain items of interest and information on the Visit and the preparations for it. The bishops readily agreed and the National Bulletin was perhaps the key to our success. Over 60,000 copies were distributed monthly and additional special material was also prepared for secondary schools (70,000 copies in February) and for primary schools (90,000 copies in March).

With a clearly worked out plan and an excellent vehicle for communications at its disposal the spiritual preparation committee realised that a final ingredient was necessary before the plan could be properly implemented. This final element was the establishment of a Papal Visit Committee in each parish. In the vast majority of cases parishes formed such a committee and the committee in turn coordinated many of the practical arrangements for stewarding, travel and ticket distribution as well as the more important work of helping their own priests at the local level in developing each parish's spiritual programme of renewal. In a questionnaire to the parishes shortly after the Holy Father had returned to Rome it was clear from the replies to the questions that the National Bulletin had been well or very well used in over 60% of the parishes and the parish Papal Visit Committee was judged to have been effective in every two out of three parishes. It is rather more difficult to establish a verdict on how parishes judged the plan of preparation which was offered to them. However, it is perhaps highly significant that two-thirds of the parishes have expressed the need for help in establishing a pastoral plan for the future and no less significant that the substantial majority have requested that such help should be set in a diocesan rather than in a national context.

The response of the bishops to this request is contained in their letter of 22nd September, 1982. They have accepted the suggestion of the parishes and each ordinary has committed himself to establishing a commission for pastoral planning in his own diocese. Such diocesan commissions will spearhead the follow-up to the Visit of the Holy Father and it will now be for them to produce the fruit that will last."

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND

THE HIERARCHY OF SCOTLAND

I

FROM THE EXTINCTION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1603 TILL ITS RESTORATION IN 1878

The ancient hierarchy ended with the death of James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, at Paris on 24th April, 1603, aged 86.

Rome showed little interest in Scottish affairs in the years following the reformation. From 1598 to 1621 Scottish Catholics were nominally subject to the English archpriests but there is no evidence that they concerned themselves with their Scottish subjects. The appointment of the first English vicar apostolic, William Bishop (1623-1624), was of a different order since his jurisdiction was episcopal and included Scotland. In a petition to Gregory XV, the few Scottish secular priests still on the Continent appealed to the papal bull, Cum universi, dated 13th March 1192, which declared the Scottish Church subject only to the Roman see; and the point was conceded. Nevertheless, the brief in 1625 appointing the second English vicar apostolic, Richard Smith, again included Scotland but on this occasion the issue of jurisdiction does not appear to have been raised. Smith's stay in England, in the event, was short and he had left by 1631. The work of the Irish Franciscan mission in the Highlands and Islands was the main burden of the missionary effort in Scotland during these years; and it was not until 1650 that a group of Scottish seculars met in Paris under the leadership of William Ballantine to consider what should be done.

Dates of events which occurred in Scotland before 1752 are given in Old Style while those which took place in European countries before 1752 are expressed in New Style. Consecrations qualified by the phrase "in secret" are those for which extraordinary measures were taken to conceal both the event and the news that it had taken place.

Their names should be recorded: William Ballantine, James Crichton, William Leslie, Thomas Lumsden, John Smith and John Walker. They reached two important conclusions: to send William Leslie to Rome as agent for the Scottish secular clergy; and to petition Propaganda for the incorporation of the clergy into a missionary body, adequately subsidised by Rome. This was done by a decree of the Congregation de propaganda fide, dated 13th October, 1653; and it is to Ballantine that the credit for this first step is due.

PREFECTS APOSTOLIC

1. William Ballantine: born 1618, son of Thomas Ballantine (or Bannatine), minister of North Berwick, and Margaret Cockburn; brought up as a Presbyterian in Douglas where his father was incumbent from June 1621; educated University of Edinburgh (matriculated 1635, but left without graduating, presumably in 1636); received into Catholic Church, probably at Paris, date unknown; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 1641, and took the oath, 1st November; "factus ob infirmitatem citius sacerdos," 3rd December 1645; left the College, 15th March 1646; prefect of studies at Scots College, Paris; arrived in Scotland, "immediately before the Hellish Murder of the Best of Kings" [30th January 1649]; returned to Paris, 1650, and arranged meeting of six Scottish priests at which it was agreed that he and John Walker should petition Propaganda for the appointment of a prefect and missionaries with subsidy and that William Leslie should go to Rome as agent for Scottish secular priests; appointed prefect, 13th October 1653; resided at Gordon Castle, Moray; arrested at Rye, Sussex, England, September 1656, imprisoned until July 1658, released on personal order of the Protector, Oliver Cromwell, with a gift of £60 to take him to France; returned to Scotland, 18th May 1660; died at Elgin, 2nd September 1661, and is buried in the Huntly aisle, Elgin Cathedral, Moray; author of A preparation for death or, The practice of dying well (2nd edition, 1715).
2. Alexander Winchester: born at Garmouth, Moray, c. 1625 [parents' names unknown]; studied for four years at Rheims and for four further years under the Jesuits at Dijon; entered Scots College, Rome, to study for priesthood, 27th May 1651; ordained priest, 21st May 1656; left College, 1657 [at a meeting of Propaganda, 3rd September 1657, described as a member of Scots College in Rome who had just finished his studies]; returned to Scotland, 1658; resided principally at Gordon Castle, Moray; appointed prefect 12th June 1662; school with 60 pupils established on Skye, c. 1663, by Ewen McAllister, schoolmaster, but subsequently driven out and re-established with 24 pupils in Glen Garry, 1665; absent in France, 1668-1672, during which period John Walker substituted as prefect but was not formally appointed as such by Propaganda; apostolic visitation of Scotland by Alexander Leslie, 1677-1680, with report submitted to Propaganda, January 1681; proposed by John Leyburne, vicar apostolic of England, to Propaganda as bishop for Scotland, 19th February 1686; Dean of Chapel Royal, Holyrood, 1687; escaped north to Gordon Castle at the Revolution in 1688; resigned July 1697; died at Banff, 14th January 1708, and is buried in St. Ninian's churchyard, Tynet, Moray. [There is little prospect of discovering Winchester's real name. The parish register for Urquhart in the presbytery of Elgin, which includes Garmouth, has nothing earlier than 1647. During his life he was known under many aliases, especially that of Dunbar; there is a Nicholas Dunbar, a merchant of Moray, included in the list of Catholics in Prefect Ballantine's report to Propaganda in 1660. Clapperton, however, says that his father's name was John Gray and implies that he was born in 1629. "Winchester" is a north-east of Scotland name, pronounced "Winster", and it is in the latter form that his name appears in the Scots College register and in the ordination registers of the Roman Vicariate].

In practice the prefecture apostolic covered only the Scots-speaking parts of the country. From 1612 to 1647 Gaelic-speaking Catholics in the Hebrides and Western Highlands of Scotland were ministered to by priests from the Irish Franciscan mission who were formally commissioned in this work by Urban VIII on 4th September 1623. At first they worked from the Irish Franciscan College of St. Anthony, Leuven, Belgium, but in 1626 they were granted as their headquarters the friary at Bonamargy, County Antrim, Ireland, traditional burial place of the MacDonnells of Antrim, descendants of the Lords of the Isles. The Irish spoken by these missionaries was understood by the people of the Highlands and Islands. The most effective period of their work was during the years 1624-1637. Although Patrick Hegarty worked from Bonamargy as prefect of this mission from 1631 to 1647, he did not visit Scotland during this period and the priest who spent the greatest number of years on the mission was Patrick Brady who laboured, chiefly in Sutherland, from 1619 to 1637. The last priest to leave was Cornelius Ward in the summer of 1637. Although the mission was formally re-established on 22nd January 1647 under Edmund McCann, no details of this new enterprise have come down to us and there is no evidence that any missionaries ever reached the Highlands and Islands.

Further attempts to carry on this mission were made by the Vincentians of whom the best known is Francis White, "a truly Apostolic man," who was sent to Scotland by St. Vincent de Paul in 1654 and who worked in the West Highlands until his death on 28th January 1679. On 20th April 1665 and 20th September 1666 Propaganda in Congregation considered requests from the prefect, Alexander Winchester, that Irish-speaking priests should again be sent to the Highlands. It was eventually decided by Propaganda that a separate prefect apostolic for the Highlands and Islands should be provided and, on 17th September 1669, St. Oliver Plunkett, nominated only two months earlier to the archbishopric of Armagh, Ireland, was appointed additionally to this office and continued in it until his martyrdom in 1681.

THE VICARS APOSTOLIC OF SCOTLAND

I: 1694-1727

The report on the state of the Mission requested in 1677 by Propaganda, prepared by Alexander Leslie and presented by him to the Congregation in January 1681, recommended, inter alia, the appointment of a general superior for Scotland, with authority over both seculars and regulars. At their meeting on 4th March 1681, Propaganda accepted most of Leslie's proposals but took no action on the nomination of a bishop. However, the disarray in which the Church in Scotland found itself after the "Glorious Revolution" of November-December 1688 and the subsequent triumph, by the settlement of 7th June 1690, of presbyterianism over episcopalianism as the form of Church government in Scotland confirmed the need among Catholics for a single episcopal superior towards whom all could look for leadership and support.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XI approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic for Scotland under a titular bishop (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 37v) and on 27th July 1694 Thomas Nicolson's name was proposed by Propaganda in Congregation for the appointment ["per tale Ministerio D. Tomaso Nicolson, sacerdote scozzese antico e benemerito Missionario il quale ha qualità, dottrina e costumi ecclesiastici com'è stato rappresentato più particolarmente all'Em. Prefetto'"] (APF Acta (1694) vol 64 fo 130v/131r) and confirmed by decree of Propaganda, 17th August, 1694. On 5th September 1694 Innocent XII approved the appointment of Thomas Nicolson as first vicar apostolic.

1. Thomas Nicolson: born at Birkenbog, Banffshire, c. 1645, son of Thomas Nicolson of Pitmedden, Aberdeenshire, and Elizabeth Abercromby of Birkenbog; brought up as an Episcopalian; educated University of Aberdeen (matriculated 1660); regent [i.e. professor], University of Glasgow, 1666-1681; after the Test Act passed by the Parliament of Scotland, 13th August 1681, he "demurred to take the Test appointed by act of Parliament", and was deprived of his regency, presumably in the autumn of 1681, (by inference from an entry in Register of the Privy Council); received into Catholic Church, 1682; visited Scots College, Douai, 3rd July 1682, when he was described in College diary as being 36 years old and formerly professor of Greek, mathematics and philosophy in University of Glasgow; appointed to staff of episcopal seminary at Padua, Italy, and later decided to enter the priesthood; prefect of studies, October 1685 to August 1687; ordained at Padua, 9th March, 1686; returned to Scotland as missionary, December 1687, and stationed at Glasgow where he stayed in the town house of the Baillie family of Castlecary; name proposed by James VII as bishop, July 1688; arrested at the Revolution and imprisoned in Stirling Castle, November, 1688; exiled to France on bond of his brother, Lord Kemnay; chaplain to English Benedictine nuns at Dunkirk, 1689-1694; nominated titular bishop of Peristasis and first vicar apostolic of Scotland, 7th September 1694, and consecrated by Jules de Mascaron, Cong. Orat., Bishop of Agen, France, assisted by Henri de Barillon, bishop of Luçon, France, and Martin de Ratabon, bishop of Ieper, Belgium, in secret at Paris, 27th February 1695; left Paris for Scotland, 8th April 1695, but for lack of a passport was unable to cross to England and was forced to spend the rest of that year and most of the next in Holland and Germany where, at Würzburg, he received in August 1696 from John Ambrose Cook, O.S.B., abbot of Ratisbon, the promise of complete submission to his authority of Benedictine monks while on the mission; arrived in England, November 1696, arrested, and subsequently released, May 1697; arrived in Edinburgh, July 1697, but took up residence at Preshome, Banffshire, which thus became administrative centre of Church in Scotland; divided Scotland into fixed districts to which missionaries were attached and prepared rules for their direction, April 1700, which were approved by Propaganda in 1706 and remained in force until 1780 [Statuta Missionis—see under George Hay (6) below]; received from William Aloysius Leslie, S.J., submission of Jesuit missionaries to his authority at Aberdeen, 7th February 1701; undertook extensive visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; ordained Peter Fraser priest, 11th March 1704, probably at Preshome, the first ordination in Scotland [? British Isles] since the reformation; “a very great man, both in learning and piety, under whom the Mission was always free from intestine embroils”; imprisoned at Fochabers after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715 but obtained his release “by the judicious use of money”; died at Preshome, 12th October 1718, and is buried in St. Ninian’s churchyard, Tynet, Moray.

2. James Gordon: born at Glastirum, Enzie, Banffshire, 31st January 1665, son of Patrick Gordon of Glastirum and Margaret Seton; entered Scots College, Paris 1679, sent first to Louvain but returned to Paris, 1683; B.A. (Paris, 1692); ordained at Paris [date unknown]; returned to Scotland, August 1692; missionary in the Enzie, 1692-1702; assistant to Scots agent in Rome, 1702-1706; English agent at Rome, 1703-1706; nominated titular bishop of Nicopolis and coadjutor vicar apostolic, 21st August 1705, and consecrated by Marc’Antonio Barbarigo, cardinal archbishop-bishop of Montefiascone, assisted by Giuseppe Cianti, bishop of Sutri, and Onofrio Elisei, bishop of Bagnoregio, in secret at Montefiascone, Italy, 11th April 1706; arrived in Scotland, July 1706; a great apostolic bishop who during the whole of his long episcopate made heroic visitations of Highlands and Lowlands; founded with seven boys [Hugh MacDonald (see (10) below) being one of them] seminary at Loch Morar, Inverness-shire, 1714; in hiding with rest of clergy during persecutions after failure of Jacobite rising in 1715; re-opened Loch Morar seminary and transferred it to Scalán, Banffshire, 1716; succeeded as vicar apostolic, 12th October 1718; translated on division of vicariate to Lowland District, 23rd July 1727.
3. John Wallace: born at Arbroath, baptised 8th April 1654 [Arbroath Parochial Register in New Register House, Edinburgh], son of Patrick Wallace, merchant [mother’s name unknown]; [the Wallace family played a leading part in the affairs of Arbroath in the 17th and 18th centuries, and many with the name of Patrick Wallace were provost; they were, in religion, Episcopalian; politically, after 1688, Jacobites; in trade, tobacco and linen merchants with a taste for smuggling]; brought up as an Episcopalian and licensed to preach and baptise in Episcopalian ministry; tutor to children of Earl of Perth, 1681 "in Lent"; left Scotland for France, 1686, and probably received into Catholic Church there; after Revolution with Jacobite court at St. Germain-en-Laye; private almoner to James VII; retired to live at Scots College, Paris; was persuaded by Bishop James Gordon in July 1706 to return to Scotland and did so in October 1706; ordained at Preshome, 3rd April 1708; missionary at Arbroath; in February 1709 the Presbytery of Arbroath recorded that "popery was prevailing in Arbroath, by the industry of Mr. John Wallace, and by reason of his interest in the place and in the country about" and he was therefore summoned to the justiciary court at Perth, 1709, for apostasy and for trafficking and perverting but, for want of evidence, the diet was deserted; from 1709 lived mainly in Edinburgh where he was chaplain to Duchess of Gordon; nominated titular bishop of Cyrrhus and coadjutor vicar apostolic, 30th April 1720, and consecrated by James Gordon, titular bishop of Nicopolis and vicar apostolic of Scotland, assisted by Alexander Drummond, priest, and James Carnegie, priest, in secret at Edinburgh, 21st September 1720; arrested Edinburgh, 1722, and outlawed; died at Edinburgh, 30th June 1733 [place of burial unknown].

II: 1727-1827

On 23rd July 1727 Scotland was divided into two vicariates, the Lowland and Highland Districts. Alexander John Grant was nominated titular Bishop of Sura 16th September 1727, and vicar apostolic Highland District, 19th September 1727. He was born at Wester Boggs, Enzie, Banffshire, c. 1693, son of Peter Grant and Ann Reid, and elder brother of James Grant (see (5) below); entered Scots College, Rome, 2nd April 1711; ordained priest [sub-deacon, 18th December 1717, but dates of diaconate and priesthood not traced]; left the College, 5th June 1719; at Scots College, Paris, July 1719 to July 1721; arrived in Scotland, August 1721; and was superior at Scaln, 1721-1726. In anticipation of his appointment he went to Paris, November 1726, and to Rome, March 1727. Although he was duly elected by Propaganda on 16th December, 1726, there was, for a number of reasons, a delay of some seven months before this was approved by Benedict XIII on 6th August 1727. In the meantime, Grant left Rome in April 1727 for Loreto and eventually reached Genoa in August where he became ill. He was last heard from in a letter dated 28th December 1727, seriously ill and living in great poverty in Genoa. It is presumed that he died there since no further trace of him has been discovered.

A successor was not appointed until 12th February 1731 when Hugh MacDonald was provided to the Highland District. The brief issued by Clement XII approving this nomination contained a clause empowering Bishops Gordon and MacDonald to define the limits of their respective Districts. This was done at a bishops' meeting in Edinburgh in October 1731 following Bishop MacDonald's consecration and was formally ratified by Propaganda in Congregation on 7th January 1732. The division was made on a basic recognition of the linguistic and cultural differences which separated the two peoples of Scotland at that time. In general terms, the two Districts were divided along a line which may be thought of as running from Dumbarton to Nairn, with the Scots-speaking area to the south and east comprising the Lowland District and the Gaelic-speaking area to the north and west in the Highland District, but with a number of localities where each overlapped the other.

A map showing the division in these terms appears in The Innes Review, xvii (1966), 130.

FROM THE RESTORATION OF THE HIERARCHY IN 1878 TO THE PRESENT DAY

The Apostolic Letter "Ex Supremo Apostolatus Apice" of Leo XIII, 4th March 1878, divided Scotland into the Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh (with four Suffragan Sees) and the Archdiocese of Glasgow, which was directly subject to the Holy See. By the Apostolic Constitution "Maxime Interest" of Pius XII, 25th May 1947, and the Apostolic Constitution "Dominici Gregis" of the same date, the Archdiocese of Glasgow wa. erected into a Province and divided into the Metropolitan See of Glasgow with the Suffragan Sees of Motherwell and Paisley.

A pamphlet entitled Diocesan Map of Scotland, showing maps of each of the dioceses of Scotland, was published by The Mercat Cross in 1953.

THE PROVINCE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

The Province of St. Andrews and Edinburgh consists of the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh and the four Suffragan Sees of Aberdeen, Argyll and the Isles, Dunkeld, and Galloway.

ARCHDIOCESE OF ST. ANDREWS AND EDINBURGH

Comprising the Metropolitan Cathedral City of Edinburgh; the entire Lothian and Borders Regions; in Fife Region, the districts of Dunfermline (except the parish of High Valleyfield), Kirkcaldy, and North-East Fife south of the River Eden; in Central Region, Falkirk District and those parts of Stirling District situated in the geographical county of Stirlingshire; and, in Strathclyde Region, the Banton, Kilsyth and Queenzieburn areas of Cumbernauld District, and the Lennoxtown, Milton of Campsie and Torrance areas of Strathkelvin District.

The bishops associated with Kinrimumd, St. Andrews, had assumed ecclesiastical primacy in Scotland from Dunkeld by the beginning of the tenth century. The last of the Celtic bishops died in 1093; the line of the medieval bishops began in 1109 but the Church and the bishopric were not securely established until 1144. The independence of the Scottish Church from the metropolitan claims of the archbishops of York was established by Celestine III with the Bull Cum Universi, 13th March 1192. St. Andrews was erected a Metropolitan See by Sixtus IV, 14th August 1472. The See was vacant from the execution at Stirling on 6th April 1571 of John Hamilton (1547-1571) until the restoration of the hierarchy in 1878.

He received his secondary education at Langbank and Blairs and his ecclesiastical education at the Pontifical Scots College and the Pontifical Gregorian University, Rome. He was ordained priest by Bishop Renfrew in St. Thomas' Church, Riddrie, on 27th June, 1982. After a temporary appointment at St. Helen's, Langside, Father Martin has returned to Rome to complete his ordinary course of study.

DIocese OF PAISLEY

Rev. Daniel Joseph McLoughlin, Dip.Th., was born in Paisley on 2nd November, 1955. He received his secondary education at St. Mirin's Academy, Paisley, and the National Minor Seminary of St. Mary's, Blairs, and his ecclesiastical education at the Royal Scots College, Valladolid, the Pontifical University of Comillas, St. Patrick's College, Thurles, and the Pontifical University of Maynooth. He was ordained priest by the Right Reverend Stephen McGill, P.S.S., Bishop of Paisley, in St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley, on 20th June, 1982. Father McLoughlin is now an assistant at St. Paul's, Paisley.

OBITUARIES—1982

Very Rev. Peter Canon Boland—2nd November, 1981

Canon Peter Boland who retired as parish priest of St. Patrick's, Anderston, died on 2nd November, 1981, at St. Paul's Convent, Bushmont, Clonakilty, Co. Cork. His death came unexpectedly but on a very appropriate day, the feast of All Souls. It was perhaps a fitting day for someone in his 91st year to die.

With the Canon's death it could be said an era ended, the closing of a chapter in the history of the Archdiocese of Glasgow. The Canon spent sixty-two years of his priestly life living and working mostly in the city of Glasgow, a city and its people which he grew to love so much. He was ordained in 1914 and spent the following eighteen years of his life serving in St. Alphonsus' and St. Mary's parishes. These typical busy city parishes were the basis for the formative years of the Canon's priesthood, and had a lasting effect on his ministry. With the exception of seven years in Lanarkshire his priestly life was spent in the city of Glasgow and in 1944 he took charge of St. Patrick's, Anderston. This dense and thriving parish, served by six curates and a parish priest, was where he was to spend the next thirty years and more of his ministry. He grew to love Anderston and its generous and loyal people, and became more and more absorbed in his love for the city of his adoption.

The Canon was a man of many talents which unfortunately were not all exploited to their full potential. His rather austere appearance and seemingly gruff manner were in reality a camouflage for a shy and gentle nature and a very deep understanding of his fellow man. His great love of history and respect for the past made him a most entertaining conversationalist, and his fund of knowledge, enriched with a wide experience and an understanding of the average Glaswegian, made him a much sought after counsellor among his fellow priests.

He had a deep love of his native land and could be called indeed a staunch nationalist. This trait involved him in extending the hand of friendship to a people deprived of their homeland but not of their Faith, namely the Poles. He made them very welcome in Anderston and gave them the use of the chapel-of-ease in the parish, the little church of St. Bride in Cheapside Street. In that little church, through his kindness, the Polish Community with their chaplain met to offer with great fervour the Holy Sacrifice, to receive the Sacraments and to bury their dead. His kindness was rewarded with a special decoration from the Polish Authorities, and in that he derived much pleasure.

His ability as an after-dinner speaker was well known and in that capacity he was much sought after and he was looked on as what would be called, in present terminology, a super-star, and that in an era when there was indeed no dearth of eloquent orators.

But enough of the man; Peter Boland would wish to be remembered only as a good priest, and that indeed he was. To him the Sacerdos qui placuit Deo was the whole reason for his being. He was indeed a holy priest, constant and reverent in the offering of the Holy Sacrifice, regularly in the confessional, diligent in the preparation of his sermons and faithful in the recitation of the Divine Office; he was a priest whose beads were never far from his hand. Those who lived with him did not need an afternoon time check—at ten to four the Canon was always on his way down to the church “to do” as he said, the Stations and the Rosary. Many of his talents may not have been exploited to the full, but he himself used to the full his capacity for prayer.

His long priestly life spanned the lives of many Popes but for him it could have been just one, because to him the Pope was always the Pope irrespective of name or personal qualities. He loved the Church with the fullness of his being, her teachings, traditions, and the beauty of her culture. He never wavered in that solid loyalty to Holy Mother Church which was the hallmark of the priesthood of his time. He was what might be termed the personification of the axiom Roma locuta est causa finita. He was indeed a Sacerdos Magnus in body and mind and the priesthood of the Archdiocese of which he was so conscious, and to which he was so loyal, was the poorer for his going.

His death came quietly and quickly as he would have wished it. It was an appropriate day on which the whole Church was praying for the faithful departed, and Peter was indeed so faithful. He was laid down to rest in the little cemetery at Redford just outside Greystones overlooking Greystones harbour, and nestling beneath the Sugar Loaf, a picturesque scene which he loved so well. His Grace, Archbishop Winning who had travelled over for the funeral was the chief concelebrant and preacher at the Mass offered with a number of priests among whom were his two priest nephews, Fathers Peter and John O’Farrell. Among the congregation were his nieces and their families and friends, old acquaintances for Greystones, and a few faithful parishioners of Anderston which he had loved so much.

Thus came to an end the life of one of the great priests of the Archdiocese who in many ways could be termed an institution therein. May the soil of his native land rest gently on him until the great dawning when he will hear the welcoming words of his Master whom he loved and served so well: Pastor bonus et fidelis intra in gaudium Domini tui.

Ar dheis Laimh De go raibh a anim.

Rev. William Loftus—23rd November, 1981

Father William Loftus, parish priest of Jedburgh, died suddenly at Jedburgh on 23rd November, 1981, in the 77th year of his age and the 24th of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass on 26th November following in St. David’s, Dalkeith, prior to interment in Dalkeith Cemetery, the principal celebrant was His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Gray, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, who preached the following panegyric:

Today my sorrow is as deep and grievous as your own. I knew Father William Loftus for fifty years and more. Let me briefly give you the story of his life.

William Patrick Loftus was born at Bonnyrigg on April the 6th, 1905. With the faithful Catholic community of that little village, his parents brought him Sunday by Sunday to Mass at St. David’s in Dalkeith which at that time contained Bonnyrigg within its boundaries. He attended the Catholic school in Dalkeith and later Holy Cross Academy in Edinburgh, the nearest secondary school within travelling distance. He left school about the age of sixteen to start his apprenticeship as an engineer. But always the idea of the priesthood lived in his mind. Home circumstances prevented his embarking on the long years of training for the priesthood. His mother died in the mid-thirties but even then he did not feel free to leave home. He felt that it was his duty to remain with his ageing father and to offer him help and companionship.

However, within a fortnight of his father's death—as I had anticipated—he came to see me to discuss the possibility of his offering the rest of his life to the service of the Church as a religious brother or a priest. He was then forty-seven years of age but he did not shirk the prospect of going back to a desk. A place was found for him at Osterley where he settled down to revise his schoolday studies and to attain a sufficient standard in Latin. It took courage and a firm conviction of God's will to take that decision—thank God he did. Within two years he was considered ready for a senior seminary. In 1954 he entered the Beda College in Rome and in March 1958 was ordained a priest in St. John Lateran's.

For some months he served in a temporary capacity at Lochgelly and was then appointed assistant priest at St. Peter's in Edinburgh where he remained until October 1966. He was then appointed chaplain to the Convent of Marie Reparatrice at Elie and remained there until March 1973 when he took up duties as parish priest at Jedburgh. On his first Sunday he told his new flock that he had come to live with them and he hoped to die with them.

Yes, I knew Father Loftus well. I knew him in each phase of his long and varied life. I knew him as an engineer when he spent many an evening helping my then retired father in the construction of a remarkable working model of a paper-making machine.

I knew him as a student at the Osterley College for late and mature vocations and at the Beda from whose principals came glowing reports not only of his successful application to the whole range of studies—from the mastery of Latin to the mysteries of Thomistic philosophy and the study of Theology and the Sacred Scriptures. But—far more important, I received glowing reports of his deep spirituality, his application to every aspect of his priestly formation.

And, during the last twenty and more years I knew him in his pastoral work at St. Peter's, conscientiously and regularly visiting the homes of his parishioners, bringing spiritual consolation and the sacraments to the sick and dying in the five major hospitals served from St. Peter's and offering generous service to the Carmelite nuns at Spylaw Road in whose convent he so frequently offered Holy Mass. Above all, during his years in St. Peter's, I recall seeing him surrounded by the children of the local parish primary school whose affection for this kindly, friendly priest was just as great and sincere as their expectation of the ever-present and eagerly awaited bag of sweets that he must have replenished several times a day for their enjoyment.

I knew him during his priestly apostolate at Elie House in Fife. His apostolate there was of a different nature to what he had experienced and the move from St. Peter's from his beloved children and the care of the sick, must have cost him much. But he gave himself and his priestly qualities wholeheartedly and generously to the Sisters and retreatants, and many must acknowledge the spiritual help he gave to them by both example and by word. For seven long years. And then to lovely Jedburgh as parish priest. He was overjoyed when he received his appointment to Jedburgh in 1973 and of his work in that little town you are fully aware. Despite advancing years and occasional ill-health, he served his people with selfless and generous dedication. And he quickly became a well-known and loved figure in the town. He had a big heart and he wanted to be a friend to everyone he might meet and I feel that in Jedburgh he was not disappointed. He was a humble and realistic character and he would never have thought of himself as a theologian qualified to enter the complicated area of ecumenical dialogue. His ecumenism was of a practical nature. For, utterly convinced of his own religious beliefs and position, he nevertheless recognised and admired the utter sincerity of the beliefs of his fellow Christians whose church traditions and beliefs differed from his own. He was a true Christian whose sheer goodness was radiantly apparent to all.

His contributions to the Catholic Church in Jedburgh were many and important, but none more beneficial than the successful efforts he made to bring to this little town in 1975, the wonderful dear Sisters of Loretto. For himself they quickly became a source of strength and support. For the parish a rich grace and blessing.

He left us as he would have wished. Quickly, quietly, without fuss or trouble to anyone. Well prepared to meet his God whom he had so loyally and generously served—to meet his God whom he had welcomed at Holy Mass on the altar of the little church of St. Mary's in Jedburgh and whom he had received in Holy Communion just three hours before.

In his twenty-three years of priestly ministry, he had brought the Lord Jesus to many a deathbed in Holy Communion, in Holy Viaticum. On Monday morning to himself, unknowingly, he brought the Lord Jesus to himself as his Viaticum. Last night the people of Jedburgh bade their parish priest and friend a sorrowful farewell—a crowded church—a wonderful tribute.

After a lifetime of dedicated labour, may he now enjoy eternal rest. That is our prayer for him today as we sadly say our goodbye, dear Father Bill, until we meet again in God's good time.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Donal MacMenamin—25th November, 1981

His exile ended on 25th November, 1981, when his Master called him to his eternal home and when his mortal body was laid to rest in the churchyard of his native town of Strabane, Co. Tyrone N. Ireland on 28th November, 1981. Father Donal, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis MacMenamin, was born on 9th April, 1924. He attended Primary School in Strabane and National School in Ballybofey and Lifford, Co. Donegal, before going on to St. Columb's College, Derry City. In 1942, he entered St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny City, to train and study for the priesthood.

During his course in St. Kieran's, he opted for Glasgow and was adopted for the Archdiocese for which he was ordained by Most Rev. Dr. Patrick Collier, Bishop of Ossory, in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kilkenny on 6th June, 1948. He was accompanied by five of his ordained class-fellows on his journey to Glasgow in 1948 and on the return journey to his native Strabane churchyard.

His first appointment, on his arrival in Glasgow, was as curate in St. Ninian's parish, Knightswood. In 1951 he was transferred to Our Lady of Lourdes, Cardonald, where he served for twenty-three years until his appointment as parish priest of St. Nicholas', Glasgow in 1974. After a few years he was given charge of St. Martin's, Renton, and in 1981 he was recalled to Glasgow City to take over the parish of All Saints', Barmulloch, where his reign was all too brief.

There was widespread sorrow and regret at his sudden death in hospital on 25th November, 1981, after thirty-three years of faithful and fruitful pastoral life. His visitation of his people, his care of the sick, his concern for the lonely and troubled and his friendship with his friends were a shining example.

His celebration of Mass and his administration of the Sacraments were an edification to his congregation. He enjoyed his priesthood and often referred to it that under God "he would never have missed it".

It was a well-known fact that his friendship was loyal and lasting, with a special bent for the exiled sons and daughters of Tyrone and Donegal. Anyone coming from the homeland calling on Father Donal always received a céad mile fáilte.

It was a great joy to him to meet anyone from home. Irish people in Glasgow have lost a loving priest and true friend.

In parishes where he served, he was much loved and revered. He mingled with everyone, had a few sporting interests and made hosts of friends who admired and looked up to him. His priesthood was a full and dedicated one. His motivation was his love of God with deep devotion to the Holy Eucharist, the Holy Spirit whose symbol badge he always wore, and his unbounded confidence in the care and concern of Our Blessed Lady.

In his homily Archbishop Winning paid him this tribute. Taking as his theme, the Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount, he said, "if you are poor in heart, practise what you preach, and even pushed around because you are a priest, these are the true qualities that will prevail. Father MacMenamin was a man that Christ was talking about in the Beatitudes".

His Grace, Archbishop Thomas J. Winning was the principal concelebrant of the Solemn Requiem Mass in All Saints' Church, Barmulloch, along with a large number of priests. Many parishioners from Cardonald and Renton joined the congregation in offering the Mass for the happy repose of their priest and friend. His remains, taken to Strabane for burial, were received into the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Bishop Edward Daly of Derry, who extended his sympathy to Father MacMenamin's two sisters and commented that Father Donal was one of a long line of Irish priests associated with Scotland since St. Colmcille.

Scottish and Irish priests joined in the Solemn Requiem Mass with Archbishop Winning who expressed gratitude for the work of Father MacMenamin and the many other Irish priests working in Glasgow. Bishop Anthony MacFeely of Raphoe honoured his personal friend with his presence in the sanctuary. The remains were then carried on shoulder by his classmates to the churchyard grave.

In his own native language: "Sunas Siorrai Da anam I Bfocair Na Maideanna Muire Agus Na Naomb Uile—Eternal peace to his soul in the company of the Virgin Mary and All Saints".

Rev. Ian McLaughlin—3rd December, 1981

Just one day before he would have reached his 70th birthday, Father McLaughlin died in the Royal Infirmary, Glasgow after almost twenty years of illness. During these years he spent almost as much time in hospitals as he did in his own home. He remained hopeful of recovery and bore his infirmity with resignation and dignity.

In hospitals to use his time efficiently, he decided to write his memoirs. He wrote many pages but never got past his earlier years. These were notable ones for him as he relished his years of education and the places. Mount St. Mary's, Sheffield was his first senior school and it was to the Jesuit Fathers there that he attributed his vocation: from there sprang his deep devotion to St. Aloysius. From there he went to Blairs and then to Scots College, Rome where he was ordained in December, 1936.

The Italian influence on him was profound. In Rome he learned to love Italy with all its grandeur and culture. His favourite haunt was Florence. In all the parishes to which he was assigned he shared this appreciation of the arts in a real and lasting way.

The parishes he served as assistant were: St. Anne's, Glasgow for two years, Motherwell for nine years, Shotts seven years. He specialized in youth activities in all of these, and while football and sport had their place his standards and aims were higher. In Motherwell amongst these ordinary interests he introduced the youth to holiday camps abroad, widening their horizons and the open life he loved; and was never averse to roughing it with them.

Amongst them he had a few instrumentalists with whom he started a little orchestra which grew to become the Cecilian Amateur orchestra, one of over thirty people with all instruments represented. Players came from most parts of Lanarkshire and many walks of life to study, rehearse and perform mostly classical music.

The growth of the orchestra owes a lot to his time in Shotts. Here he found talent enough amongst the youth to start an Operatic Society, and gifted musicians to augment the orchestra: together they were self-sufficient and proceeded to go through the repertoire of Gilbert and Sullivan operas. Those who were not singing or playing were behind the scenes doing various supports: the whole parish was in harmony.

In every parish he worked, whether among children, youth and adults, Theatre, Music and Art were means to greater appreciation of their faith—the church as patron of the arts.

He was the first priest at St. Ninian's, Hamilton, where he had to undertake the building of the church and house. To this task he set all his energy and gifts: it may be truly looked on as his memorial. From the drawing-board to the pebble-dashing and furnishing, he supervised every step of its design, construction and decorating. He even went abroad to artists and craftsmen he knew, to produce the finest for St. Ninian's.

Among the clergy he was a most popular figure, very much admired. He had priest friends all over the country and also abroad, keeping in touch with them all in a variety of ways. At any social gathering he was in demand for his remarks and stories, uniquely told, which were drawn out, every word slowly chosen and delivered with a boyish sincerity which commanded the attention of all. Often his stories were against himself—his memory was not the best—he still enjoyed telling them and above all, the humour and laughter he aroused and loved.

Friendship and "camarderie"—his word—among the clergy led him to organise golf outings, diocesan and interdiocesan, which were highlights of relaxation and enjoyment as also exceptional feats on his part. House parties, musical evenings and sing-songs were other ways he used to encourage clerical company and unity.

It was sometime after the church was opened that he first became ill. He recovered and later proceeded to St. Mary's, Coatbridge where he had to face difficulties none could have expected. This he did bravely and discreetly, and also spent himself beautifying and modernising the church for the new liturgy using his great gifts. In spite of recurring illness he spent much time and effort with the sick and elderly, even in entertaining them. From here, through increasing indisposition he retired four years before his death, ones which brought increasing weakness, dependence and suffering.

A quite uncharacteristic change came over Father Ian due to the medication he had to take. No one was more aware of it than himself. He referred to it saying that whereas formerly by nature he found himself very slow in finding words to express his ideas, now words dominated and he could do little to stem their flow. He was kind to everyone and patient with all: in his changed condition only a few were patient with him. When confronted with a slight he just produced a smile which was gentle and forgiving.

The Sisters of Charity cared for him at St. Margaret's Hospice, Clydebank during the last months of his life. There he received kindness and charity for which they are noted and of which he gave so lavishly in his own life. There he died on Thursday, 3rd December, 1981.

Bishop Thomson of Motherwell was the principal celebrant and preacher at the Funeral Mass in St. Mary's, Whifflet, Coatbridge, on the Saturday following, 5th December. Among many concelebrants was the Archbishop of Glasgow. The interment, at which Bishop Thomson officiated, took place in St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Austin Ruane—20th December, 1981

Austin Ruane died on 20th December, 1981, after eight or more years of declining health. He was the victim of an hereditary disease and, almost certainly, he was aware of the fact that he had it and the effects of it. Looking back on his life it is evident, in the light of this, he was a man of fine qualities, not least of which was his courage. He was a brave man in the face of a living death. He was a man of prayer. This hind-sight view merely confirms what his friends and colleagues thought of him when he was alive. For Father Austin Ruane, his priesthood was his life but he had to suffer even in achieving his goal. His first desire was to be a missionary and, after leaving St. Jarlath's College, Tuam, in 1941 he went to St. Patrick's College, Kiltegan. Unfortunately he became unwell with a chest illness and this resulted in his being laid up for almost a year; it also put paid to his dream of going to the missions. After recovering from his ill-health he entered St. Peter's College, Wexford, in 1943, setting out once again to become a priest. Six years later he was ordained for the Glasgow Archdiocese in the chapel of St. Peter's College, Wexford, on 5th June, 1949.

His first appointment was to St. Joseph's, Helensburgh, where he served the people faithfully for eight years, especially the youth. He started the Legion of Mary, an apostolate he encouraged throughout his priestly years. At this time St. Joseph's was responsible for looking after the spiritual well-being of the men on the Loch Sloy electric scheme and also for providing Mass for the Catholics in Rhu and surrounding area. He had many a hair-raising and interesting tale to tell of his journeys to these places during the winter months but the journeys were always made because Austin's priesthood was his life, people were his concern. There are those who remember his faithful visitation and kindness to the patients in a small T.B. hospital at Camiseskan just outside Helensburgh.

In 1957 he was transferred to the east-end of Glasgow to the parish of the Sacred Heart where he is remembered with great affection. Here he was to spend almost all the remaining years of his active priestly life, a period of fifteen years during which he became a well-known figure. He was a happy, jovial, pipe-smoking priest who was often seen spending the time of day with parishioners, indeed, with anyone whom he would meet on his rounds. He had a smile and a welcome for everyone, there was always a friendly gleam in his eyes. These were happy times for Austin but when the disease that would eventually bring about his death began to show itself in his unsteady gait he had to suffer much at the hands of gossips, and even public humiliation. A life-long Pioneer he accepted it all, as he did any adversity, with great serenity.

Above all, Father Ruane was a priest's priest; he was always at his best and happiest in the company of his priest friends whether at deanery meetings, on the golf course or just the company of his colleagues in the chapel house. After his priesthood Austin's other loves were going to see his favourite local football team and, because of his declining health, the pleasures of ordinary men which gave him great satisfaction. His health demanded changes from him but did not change him. He was a regular player at Troon and showed great courage in his determination to carry on playing the game he loved with his priest friends whose company he treasured and who had a special place in their hearts for him, for he was a lovable person.

At the latter end of 1971 it became obvious to Austin and others that something was wrong, seriously wrong. The fear that he had inherited the disease which had taken the lives of other members of his family was realised although never openly stated. He returned to Ireland for a short time to a home at Lucan, Co. Dublin. On his return he was sent to St. Ninian's, Kirkintilloch, but it soon became clear he was no longer able to cope physically with the demands of parochial, life so he retired to St. Anne's, Musselburgh. There he celebrated his silver jubilee in 1974 in the company of His Grace, Archbishop Winning, who had only recently been appointed Archbishop of Glasgow, some priest friends and colleagues and lay friends. It was a happy occasion but the happiness was short-lived. Austin's condition continued to get worse and eventually he had to be transferred to St. John of God's, Stillorgan, Dublin. Peace finally came to this fine priest shortly before Christmas 1981. His Grace was the principal celebrant at the Requiem Mass which was celebrated at Knock, the shrine Father Ruane had visited so often and where he was one of the sick pilgrims at the Pope's visit in 1979. He was buried in the family ground in Claremorris cemetery. His passing allows us to pay tribute to a fine, humble priest. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Charles Canon Sheridan—4th January 1982

The Very Reverend Charles Canon Sheridan died in Stobhill Hospital on Monday, 4th January, 1982, in the seventy-second year of his age and the forty-ninth year of his priesthood. The Funeral Mass in Holy Cross, Croy, was celebrated on 8th January by a great number of priests, Archbishop Winning being the principal celebrant. The interment followed in St. Kentigern's, Lambhill. The Croy Parish Silver Band accompanied the cortege through the village of Croy playing the Funeral March. At the graveside, as their silvery notes pierced the icy sky the final tribute was paid to a great and noble priest.

Charles Sheridan was born in Kelvinside, Glasgow, but his parents were from the heart of Donegal. They had brought with them a deep love of their Faith and the Church. Together with his five brothers and one sister he was moulded and shaped in a truly Catholic home where charity, kindness, thoughtfulness and courtesy were the fruits of a sincere love of God, his Blessed Mother and all that was sacred. He received his early education at St. Charles', Kelvinside and St. Aloysius' College. He began his studies for the priesthood in St. Mary's College, Blairs and completed them at St. Peter's College, Bearsden. He was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1933. He often spoke with deep emotion of his home—his schools and colleges. Each had influenced, in the best possible way, the young priest, blessed by nature and grace. His close family roots and the happiness of his home enabled him to strive at all times for good Catholic homes and to help in so many ways, those preparing for marriage and be a support to those already married. The students of St. Peter's College had the privilege of travelling to Dublin for the Eucharistic Congress. In those days it was a privilege in more ways than one. They attended the final Mass of the Congress celebrated in Phoenix Park. The demonstration of Faith shown on that day was something he cherished all his days and he never tired of trying to foster that same love of the Holy Mass, the Blessed Sacrament and the priesthood, which he had witnessed. He frequently spoke at length on these subjects and many a priest and his own archbishop of later years owe much to the sincerity of his words and deeds. He not only preached but lived what he preached, with all his heart.

His first appointment was to St. Patrick's, Shieldmuir. He remained there only three short years but much was achieved in that time. The depression of the 'thirties had struck the area severely but the vitality and zeal of the young priest eased the burden and helped them bear the hardships they had to endure. At an early age in his priesthood he carried the burdens of his people but not in vain. He had deepened their trust in God and shown them the Church as their strength and salvation.

He was moved from Shieldmuir to Our Lady of Lourdes, Cardonald, where his new parish priest was the esteemed and legendary Canon George Galbraith. He remained in Our Lady of Lourdes for eighteen years and again new challenges were offered. The Empire Exhibition was opened in Bellahouston Park and the Catholic Pavilion was the hub of much activity. The local priests had to be in attendance daily. Thousands of people passed through the Pavilion and were helped by the young priest who had the gift of answering all questions lucidly and tactfully. The days of the Empire Exhibition were days he remembered proudly because he had the honour of unfolding the treasures of the Faith of the Catholics of Scotland to countless people from all parts of the world. After the Exhibition the new church of Our Lady of Lourdes was opened and the old church became the parish hall. Here again all his gifts and talents were put to great use as he helped to unite the parish spiritually and socially. The success of his work was soon to be seen. With the outbreak of World War II, Our Lady of Lourdes, Cardonald, became the refuge of many distressing cases. The parishioners were untiring in their efforts to help prisoners of war, the Polish Forces and their own members of the Forces. It was as a result of all this involvement that Father Charles had to undergo his first major surgery.

Immediately after the War the Lourdes Pilgrimages were started again and his life-long devotion to Our Lady of Lourdes enabled him to travel yearly to that hallowed shrine, a practice he continued to the last year of his life. Here again the eloquence and sincerity of his preaching on the Mother of God was not only in word but in deed. He was a member of the Glasgow Archdiocesan Lourdes Committee for over twenty years and throughout his life encouraged and helped many pilgrims and sick to go to Lourdes. While in Cardonald much of his time was given to Nazareth House where the good nuns, the elderly and the children were encouraged by his gentleness, cheerfulness and thoughtfulness.

His third and final appointment was to Holy Cross, Croy, where he remained as parish priest for twenty-seven years. It took only a short time for him to realize that he was in a unique parish. To many it may have appeared as a quiet country parish but it was one of the most active of all parishes because unlike so many other places, the lives of the people revolved round the church and the priests. The faith was alive and was kept alive by the shepherds who cared. His first task was to build a new church to replace the temporary church which had served the people so well. His one desire was to build a church worthy of God and the people. The Feast of the Exaltation of the Cross in 1958 was a proud and blessed day for all people and priests when Archbishop Campbell blessed and solemnly opened the new church.

Over the twenty-seven years as parish priest he saw a new town come to birth. He saw four new parishes opened and four churches built in what was part of his parish. As a member of the local District Council for many years, he helped the way for new churches and new schools in the expanding town of Cumbernauld. He was, in a sense, sad when the Croy links with Condorrat and the old village of Cumbernauld were severed. The loyalty of the Catholics in these areas over the years was outstanding. Distance or miles did not matter—it was the Mass that mattered. He was however happy and proud that they had achieved something which had been but a dream—churches of their own.

Few priests have the privilege of celebrating two Silver Jubilees in the same parish. Father Sheridan celebrated his Silver Jubilee in the priesthood and his Silver Jubilee as a parish priest in Croy. He was elected as a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter of Canons but regarded this as an honour not for himself but for the parish. His tireless efforts for his people and his interest in all that concerned them began to tell on his health. He struggled on valiantly and in spite of major heart surgery, still tried to do what he could for the people, spiritually. In the end he realized that a younger priest was needed for the people's sake. The people had to be visited, the sick cared for, the children to be drawn to the church, the strong to be nourished, the weak encouraged, the wanderer found. A younger more active shepherd was needed.

Sadly in June 1981, he bade farewell to his beloved people and the parish he loved. He retired to the scene of earlier days—Nazareth House, Cardonald. His retirement lasted only a few months. He suffered much during these last few months, but to the end, his concern was not himself but others. The training received in the shelter of his family home of charity, kindness, thoughtfulness and integrity had remained with him always. He was to the end a gentleman, priest and true shepherd. May he rest in peace and be richly rewarded for his devoted pastoral care.

Rev. Hugh G. Heslin—10th January, 1982

On the 24th of August 1924, a son was born to Hugh and Alice Heslin in Kearny, New Jersey, U.S.A. A few days later, he received the name Hugh Gerard, when he was baptised in the Church of St. Cecilia. While still young, he came with his parents to their native Paisley, where he received his primary education in St. Mary's School.

Like so many young boys from that town, he felt the call to the priesthood. He was accepted for Blairs College, Aberdeen, in 1937 and remained there until he took his Higher Leaving Certificate. As a student, he is remembered for his quiet and gentle manner, always considerate and kind, characteristics which pervaded his entire life.

Before beginning Philosophy, he left the seminary and was called up for service in the armed forces.

Soon he found himself in India. His experience there had a lasting effect on him. We have heard that many soldiers benefited from his good example and the encouragement they received from him. It was during his years in the army, that he felt sure that God was calling him to the priesthood.

Cautious by nature, he did not apply immediately to return to seminary life after leaving the army. He was accepted for the Teachers' Training College at Jordanhill, and, on completion of the course successfully, served on the teaching staff of St. Mary's, Greenock, for a short time.

Expressing once more his desire to serve God in the priesthood, the Bishop sent him to St. Sulpice, Paris, to study Philosophy and Theology. He was ordained priest by the late Bishop Black, in St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley, on June 29th, 1954. Unlike today, there was a surplus of priests in the Diocese of Paisley at that time, and he went on loan to the Archdiocese of Glasgow, receiving an appointment as assistant in the parish of St. Robert Bellarmine, Househillwood, where he is still remembered with affection and gratitude.

Three years later he was recalled to his own diocese and became assistant priest in St. Patrick's, Greenock. This was one of the most demanding parishes in the diocese, having within its boundaries, the Greenock Royal Infirmary, Ravenscraig Hospital and Her Majesty's Prison at Gateside. St. Columba's High School was also served from St. Patrick's in those days.

He entered wholeheartedly into the various activities of the parish and edified everyone by his prayerful life, his love of the Mass, and his devotion to Our Lady. He will be long remembered for his work in the Legion of Mary.

He did not spare himself in the service of God and His people. Good priest that he was, he was constantly about his "Father's business". Consequently, his health suffered seriously, and he was told by his medical advisers that he would have to lead a less active life in the vocation he loved. He required quietness and relaxation. This he found in Mount Carmel Convalescent Home, Rothesay, where he was chaplain for several years. He never forgot the many kindnesses shown him, during his stay there, by the sisters, the residents and the priests on the Isle of Bute.

It was while in Rothesay that he came in contact again with his former Spiritual Director at Blairs College, the present Bishop of Paisley, His Lordship Bishop McGill, who was at that time Bishop of Argyll and the Isles.

Only those close to Father Heslin knew how lonely he sometimes was in Rothesay. His days were long, he had little or no pastoral work to do. He felt isolated from his priest friends on the mainland, and out of touch with his own diocese. I think the Bishop was aware of this, and soon after the Bishop's appointment to the See of Paisley, Father Hugh returned once more to his native diocese and was appointed to St. Andrew's, Greenock, where he carried out light duties for a few years. He was happy to be in parish work again—happy, too, in the company of his fellow priests. These light pastoral duties soon became too much for him and he retired, leaving St. Andrew's, Greenock, to live in St. Fergus' Presbytery, Paisley. A little over a year later he was back in Greenock, in St. Andrew's parish.

In 1979, realising that he required constant medical care, he obtained the Bishop's permission to go to St. Vincent's Home, Kingussie in Inverness-shire (his sister was on the nursing staff at St. Vincent's). He left Greenock and the Diocese of Paisley for the last time in Holy Week 1979.

His letters from St. Vincent's were always cheerful. Towards the end of 1981, we learned that his health was deteriorating, and that an operation had been advised. He entered hospital early in the New Year. Things seemed to be going well (indeed, he had arranged to come down South to convalesce) when he died very suddenly and peacefully in the late afternoon of Sunday, January 10th.

We were in the grip of one of the most severe winters for some years. Because of this, neither the Bishop, nor any of the priests of the Diocese, were able to travel North to attend his Requiem Mass in Kingussie, where he was buried on Wednesday, January 13th.

There was a large and representative congregation in St. Andrew's, Greenock, on Monday, January 18th, at his Requiem Mass offered by Bishop McGill with many concelebrants from several dioceses.

The Bishop, who had known Father Hugh as a student and priest for over forty years, spoke movingly of this good and much loved priest and expressed his sympathy, and that of the diocese to his two sisters (both religious) his brother and his many relatives and friends.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Anthony Donnelly—30th January, 1982

Father Anthony Donnelly was born in Partick on 27th November, 1924, the twelfth and youngest child of Charles and Bessie Donnelly. He was baptised in St. Peter's on the Feast of St. Ambrose, 7th December, and the Office of the day quotes the words of the Saint: "Hold fast to the rudder of Faith, that you may not be shaken by the heavy storms of this world", advice that was to find a prophetic echo in the life of Father Tony.

After primary days in St. Peter's School, he began his studies for the priesthood in St. Mary's College, Blairs, from where he progressed to the Diocesan Seminary of St. Peter's. The upheavals of war, and the moving of the College to four different sites in about as many years began a pattern of continued disruption that was to become an unwelcome feature of his life. It was in the Senior Seminary that his contemporaries first began to observe in Father Tony a patience and forbearance in the face of criticism, just or unjust, that was truly remarkable, betraying no bitterness or resentment even towards those from whom he might have expected better understanding.

Ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1949, his first appointment was to St. Alphonsus', the church at the "Barrows", and in that colourful atmosphere his keen observation of his fellow Glaswegians flourished, contributing considerably to his ability as a wit and raconteur. It was in St. Alphonsus' that he blossomed as a preacher, a talent he carefully cherished throughout his days by meticulous preparation, of which a large quantity of sermon notes remain the testimony. When he moved from St. Alphonsus', it was to begin a continuous series of changes that saw him serve amongst other charges in the diocesan parishes of St. Anthony's, St. Pius X, St. Margaret Mary's, St. Constantine's, St. Stephen's and finally St. Robert's. These frequent changes were occasioned by the needs of the diocese, but also by an illness that began to manifest itself early in his priesthood, and was to be a cross that he bore for the rest of his life. It was a cross that he bore manfully with patience and resignation, but it was one that severely limited the quality of his life, and though he jokingly referred to his visits to a variety of hospitals as his "Missionary Journeys", there is no doubt of the enormous burden it was to him.

Although his malady was such a limiting factor, among other things precluding his advancement to parish priest, he would not let it completely overtake him, and it was remarkable the skills and culture he continued to develop in himself. Music became a passion, and his extensive collection of John McCormack records was only surpassed by his devotion to Mozart. He read assiduously, biographies, philosophy, psychology, and in particular all things medical, and his reading was determined largely by the pursuit of knowledge and seldom from the principle of pleasure. His knowledge of medical matters was extensive, and whenever you confessed to a symptom or two, he was immediately on hand with thermometer and a barrage of questions. From the answers these provided, a diagnosis would be given, a cure pronounced to be verified by the doctor (and inevitably it was), and then a broad smile of satisfaction would crease his face. He stood in the tradition of St. Luke, and would joyfully have combined the rôle of priest and physician had the opportunity been his.

Father Tony was superior company, for he had an absolute fund of general knowledge, knew and remembered the characters and incidents of diocesan history, and topped it off with a humour and ability with words. As fellow curates we marvelled at, and if truth be told envied, his competence in answering the general knowledge quizzes of the superior Sunday newspapers; when it came to the "Pop" questions of the more lowly Sundays he rejoiced in knowing nothing; here in his opinion it was folly to be wise.

Outside the presbytery he was of course appreciated for more major qualities, more especially by those who like him were experiencing suffering in their own lives, and at his death many such were left inconsolable at the loss of a real Soul-friend. The parishioners of St. Stephen's, Sighthill, on the occasion of his Silver Jubilee presented him with an illuminated address that spoke of their love, respect and affection for him, his qualities of zeal and integrity, and above all the consolation he had frequently brought to the sick and dying. These were sentiments his other flocks would vigorously endorse.

Two other qualities must be recalled, his thoroughness and his abhorrence of violence.

His thoroughness was total, every form was completed, every penny accounted for, every book in its place. Going through his effects after his sudden death was a revelation, everything in complete order to bootlaces, pins, paperclips all packaged with an almost obsessive neatness. We who were careless must have been a great trial to him, but he never commented, and we never suspected. Violence was anathema to him, and its presence on TV. he constantly condemned, even the mildest Western or Gangster Movie, so that he seldom watched TV. preferring the peace and calm of his record player and his beloved music. However for all that we may speak of him as a good companion, as someone loved and valued by many of his flock, as a man of quality and ability, there hangs over much of his life the shadow of his cross, his malady or the threat of it, and to its part in his life we must finally return.

The spiritual life of a priest, indeed of any man, is a pilgrim journey where we live out daily the Resurrection and Death of Christ, and there can be little doubt that his most closely resembled the journey to Calvary. Like the Master, Father Tony carried a heavy cross, his illness, and like Him he experienced rejection and misunderstanding, and indeed there was great symbolism in the many women and children who wept at his funeral Mass. Scripture reminds us that "The life and death of each of us has its effect on others", and if we look to the life and death of Father Tony the effective lesson is to understand and never reject those who suffer. Marcel Proust wrote: "There is in sickness a Grace which brings us close to the realities which lie on the further side of death", Father Tony's simplicity and patience are surely among the realities he learned and teaches to us.

He died suddenly on 30th January, and was buried from the packed church of St. Robert's on Wednesday, 3rd February, 1982. God be good to him!

Rev. Denis Bradley—17th February, 1982

It is easy to slot people into categories, and Father Denis could have been very comfortably and neatly summed up as "Late Vocation." Yet within a few days of his death, tributes were received from people in England who wished to acknowledge their debt of gratitude to Denis for the spiritual guidance, inspiration and encouragement which they received from him—and all this at a time when he was still working as an electrical engineer.

In other words, the long and varied career of Denis Bradley was all part of his vocation; all these seemingly unrelated episodes fitting together into a wonderful mosaic of one complete purposeful life.

He was born in Cambuslang on 10th August, 1915. The second youngest of five children, he was still only a toddler when, in 1919, his father died as the result of a burning accident. Shortly afterwards, some Irish relatives in Donegal offered to take the lively little lad over to the freedom of their farm and into the loving heart of their family. Thus the young Denis spent a few formative and very happy years in the lovely surroundings of Innisowen.

Returning to the land of his birth a few years later he was educated at St. Bride's Primary School, and then at St. Mungo's Academy—both Primary and Secondary.

School days over, he became involved in several business enterprises before training as an electrical engineer.

In those days his mother was to see the proof of her son's love and devotion when she became ill: throughout her long illness he was most attentive with his time and his care, and whether it might be in the daytime or at any hour of the night, she could always count on the willing and good-humoured administrations of her son.

Soon after his mother's death in 1940 he found himself being moved to England in what was mysteriously described as "work of national importance."

Leisure activities were always given their rightful place in Denis' well balanced life. He was a highly proficient ice-skater; he used to give demonstrations of this art, and included a routine which involved jumping over a goodly number of chairs and tables on ice. His balance and poise on the dance-floor were also much appreciated and admired by the discerning.

As a sportsman he had a keen interest in many sports, but his premier predilection, especially in the later years of his life, was for golf. He considered his valuable time well spent in this activity in the company of his family, friends or his fellow priests . . . time for relaxation, conversation and sheer simple fun. Incidentally, he was a very good player. It was only after his sudden death that it became apparent just how highly Father Denis was held in the esteem of his fellow members at Cawder Golf Club—the spontaneous expression of sympathy and genuine sense of loss showed the tremendous good will which existed towards Denis. With his mature and all-embracing attitude to hard work, physical exercise, relaxation with friends, making time for his family and relations etc., etc., it would seem probable that he was well ahead of his time in what has come to be known as the "holistic" approach to life.

It was during that period in Birmingham and Coventry that Denis' awareness of being called to the priesthood gradually deepened. He decided to take up his studies again, concentrating on Latin which was at that time a pre-requisite for entry into the Senior Seminary. In furtherance of this objective he simply walked into the sacristy one day after Mass and asked the priest if he would help him with his Latin. The surprised priest, a Franciscan, was delighted and agreed most willingly to help.

The next obstacle to be overcome was the reluctance of the authorities to release him from his important work in his reserved occupation. A long and determined struggle ensued involving appeals to the Home Secretary. Finally, Denis won his point and began the foundation course of studies at Campion House, Osterley, in preparation for admittance to the Senior Seminary of St. Peter's College, Cardross.

The community at Cardross very soon realised that they had in this new student a real asset. His brightness of character and highly individualistic sense of humour added much to the quality of life in the college. He wasn't so good at telling funny stories, though, because he would become helpless with laughter at the thought of the punch-line coming.

Signs of vocation at this early stage? A certain Rev. Brother Robert suggested the following rule of thumb: "Every candidate for the Priesthood or the Religious Life must have three bones—a wishbone, a backbone and a funnybone." Without doubt, Denis Bradley had all three.

One fleeting incident in college seemed to sum up his approach to life and its problems: a group of young students were debating among themselves whether or not it was possible to jump a wooden gate at the end of the driveway. They were still discussing the question as Denis hitched up his soutane and cleared the fence like a deer. Obstacles were there to be overcome!

The day of ordination to the priesthood arrived, June 29th, 1953, the Feast of Saints Peter and Paul. Denis Bradley was ordained priest by Archbishop Donald Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow. The sense of wonder, appreciation, pride and joy in being a priest remained fresh with Denis right up to the end of his life.

His first appointment was to the parish of St. Catherine Labouré, Balornock. He soon became very attached to the people there, and he valued the friendship and help of the parish priest, the late Father Bill Lowery.

In Balornock, as elsewhere in his priestly life, he had his priorities clearly set before him; his personal relationship with his maker, the daily offering of the holy sacrifice of the Mass, helping his people to share more and more in their life with God through the sacraments and preaching the Gospel.

Evident in his life was his trust in the Mother of God, and his love and devotion towards her. Those who were wont to travel with him by car will well remember his pulling out the beads with the invitation: "Let's say the Rosary."

Denis was a "man of the people"—he understood them and they understood him, and they would say of him. "There's no side with him." He related well to people—priests, religious, layfolk, non-Catholics . . . he was at home with everyone because he really cared for people, and it showed. He loved a chat, but you would be well wide of the mark if you thought it was always just idle chatter; if something had to be said, rest assured, Father Denis would say it. He was seen by his parishioners as a man with a sensitivity and concern which brought them to him with their problems and worries. They found him to be a good listener, one who listened not only with his ears but with his heart.

A great cross was looming up on the horizon . . . within a year of ordination Denis was involved in a very serious car accident which almost proved fatal. He sustained multiple injuries, those to his face being particularly severe. Indeed, so badly mutilated was he that the priest who was called to anoint him failed to recognise him even though they had been in college together for five years. Father Kieran Gallacher recognised Denis' wristwatch.

A very long, painful, tedious convalescence now began. It would be impossible to praise sufficiently the wonderful work of Mr. Tough the Plastic Surgeon and his devoted team. By the grace of God, their good work, together with Denis' own spirit of determination, his courage and patience brought about a happy recovery.

And so it was with renewed enthusiasm and real joy that Father Denis returned to St. Catherine's and to the priestly work he loved so well.

After St. Catherine's, Father Bradley had a brief appointment to the parish of St. Mary's, Pollokshaws, and from there he was transferred to St. John's, Portugal St. The high concentration of Irish families in the Gorbals at that time made Denis feel quite at home, and many's the old yarn that was shared around the hearths in the Gorbals about the hills and the homes of Donegal.

Many of the saints have told us that Our Lord shares the sufferings of his Passion with those he loves. As St. Thérèse says, "To those who love him more he gives more sufferings; to those who love less, less." Denis was to be given yet again another share of suffering. It was after he had been moved from St. John's and had settled in the parish of The Immaculate Conception, Maryhill, that he suffered his first heart attack. Life was never to be quite the same again, but Denis accepted this new cross with the same generosity and patience as before.

The Marist Congregation had played a significant part in his early education, and he had maintained his close links with the Marists over the years due to the fact that his brother Pat had entered the Religious Life with them as Rev. Brother Anastasius. Now, at this time of great need, Denis found the Marists faithful and generous friends in the wonderful hospitality and care they provided for him during the period of his recovery from the heart attack.

Just how difficult Denis found it to slow down and curtail his many activities no one will ever know. Thankfully he found great understanding and support from the priests and people of St. Dominic's, Bishopbriggs, the parish which was to be his last appointment.

The last evening of his life was spent in the company of his family and friends—how fitting for one who really valued God's gift of family, and was always so devoted to those whom God had given him to love and cherish as his very own.

It has been said that men are like wines: with age the bad get worse and the good get better. Father Bradley's final hours were "vintage Denis." . . . a strong faith and a deep peace in receiving the sacraments of his Church; concern, not for himself, but only that those around him might be inconvenienced or worried. And he was full of thanks towards those who were with him and looking after him. True to form, he even tried to make it easier for those at his bedside to hear by removing his oxygen mask—much to the consternation of the nurse in attendance!

He died on 17th February, 1982.

The Requiem Mass took place in St. Dominic's, Bishopbriggs, on 20th February. The number of people assisting at the Mass (many from outside the church entrance, because of the crowds) and the great number who received Holy Communion was both remarkable and edifying. He was buried in St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth.

"Do you remember Father Denis Bradley?" If one single word were to be chosen to describe the feelings evoked by this question, that word would be WARM. "We remember his smile." "He was always joking and laughing." "He always had time for you." "He always had a word for you."

He related well with young people from his earliest days in the priesthood, even though he was somewhat older than the average "young curate." The reason was that he instinctively knew how to deal with the young. How? As explained by an expert at a recent seminar, "The way to deal with young people is to treat them in exactly the same way as you treat anyone else, whether they be children, middle-aged, or very old—you simply treat them as people, you listen to them and you love them." That was Denis to a "T".

He had been energetic and enthusiastic about building up clubs for the young boys and girls. The importance of fostering a good parish spirit had been one of his concerns, building up a living, dynamic Catholic community. And how he enjoyed those social evenings which he himself helped to organise.

Father Bradley is remembered from many years back for his fidelity to house visitation—he loved being at home with people in their own homes, by their fireside. His especial care was for those who were ill, or housebound and unable to feel fully part of the living Catholic community except through his visits and administration of the sacraments. What consolation, support and joy he brought to so many over the years.

Looking back, it must be said that Father Bradley had something going for him; he settled into his priestly work and way of life at a time when priests were not so impeded from home and family visitation by so many other activities (meetings and more meetings!) But this was Father Denis' way in any case, happy to be involved in the day to day living of his people.

"Beati qui multum non expectant quia non disappointabuntur."

This Denisism reflects the contentment of Father Denis; he didn't look for much for himself in this life, but he knew he had received much and counted his blessings. But, full of the virtue of hope, he did look for much in the next life. In fact, he confidently looked for everything—for complete fulfilment and happiness with his God in heaven. May he now be enjoying just this. R.I.P.

Reverend Matthew McGovern—20th February, 1982

Matthew McGovern was born on 18th October, 1925, at Netherburn, St. John's Parish, Blackwood, Lanarkshire. He was the elder of two sons of James and Susan McGovern. He attended St. Mary's School, Larkhall. He left school at fourteen, and went to work in the Southfield Coal Mine. One of his teachers from St. Mary's, recognising his keen mathematical mind encouraged him to further studies. So it was that he enrolled in Coatbridge Technical College for night classes. By this time Matt's mother had died, and between his work in the mine by day and his evening studies, Matt also cared for his widowed father. He remained very devoted to his father all the years down. His younger brother married and went to live in England.

Matt was brilliant at mathematics and in due course he became a surveyor and was employed by British Rail. He worked in St. Enoch's Permanent Way. He continued to live with his father in Netherburn but also became involved in the Wayside Club.

The idea of the priesthood had been on Matt's mind for some time, but with caring for his father the years passed and he felt he might not now be accepted. He applied and was accepted by Cardinal Gray for the Archdiocese of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. He resigned from British Rail in 1973 and entered St. Andrew's College, Drygrange to begin his studies for the priesthood.

It was the measure of the esteem in which he was held and of the value placed on his work by British Rail, that when he resigned they continued to pay him for a year in the hope that he might return. Further they sought him out after he had left and urged him to return during the college holidays. He had a big part in the design of the new Argyle Line under the centre of Glasgow.

Although in his late forties when he went to Drygrange, Matt related with ease and very happily to his much younger fellow-students. Indeed, his affability and great good humour made him a good and very popular companion.

It was while at Drygrange that Matt suffered his first heart attack. It must have been a shattering blow to his hopes for the priesthood, but, thank God, he made a remarkable recovery and was soon back at his studies.

In May, 1976, Matt's father died, R.I.P. and in the following February his only brother died very suddenly, R.I.P. So within months of his ordination Matt was bereft of all the family he had.

Early in 1977, Matt was raised to the diaconate, and soon his ordination day was fixed for 30th June, 1977. He had given up his home in Netherburn after his father's death and so as the day of ordination approached he was without family or home ties. His friend, the former parish priest of Blackwood, was now parish priest in Bothwell and he gladly consented when Matt asked to be ordained in Bothwell. The whole parish took him to their hearts, he was that kind of person anyhow, and when 30th June arrived, and Cardinal Gray came to perform the ordination there was unequalled rejoicing. It was the first ordination ceremony in the recently built St. Bride's and it was unforgettable.

Less than five years of priestly ministry lay ahead for Father Matt. He served successively in St. Mark's, Oxfangs, St. Peter's, Morningside, and finally in St. Mary's, Stirling. It was while convalescing after a heart attack that he died suddenly on the morning of 20th February, 1982. Only six months later, St. Mary's was also to lose its revered parish priest, Father T. J. McLaughlin. R.I.P.

Father Matt was a genuinely humble man—a man who by his great simplicity and sincerity won the hearts of all. He was a priest who never lost the wonder of his priestly calling, nor his very sincere gratitude to all who helped him to this goal. He marvelled to think that he had so many wonderful friends. In his humility he was unaware of the great impression he himself made on people. At his Requiem, in St. Mary's, Stirling, bus loads of workers from British Rail came to pay their final respects to this man who had always won their respect in life. Wherever he went, his simplicity and genial good nature won him lasting friends. His fellow workers in the mines or British Rail, his fellow students at Drygrange, his priest friends, his parishioners—all esteemed and loved him.

Bishop Monaghan was celebrant of the Mass. Bishop Thomson also attended. Mgr. T. Fehily, present parish priest of Blackwood, delivered the panegyric.

I am sure Matt must have smiled . . . indeed I could almost see him throw back his head and laugh . . . to see what a vast following he had on that February morning when he was laid to rest in St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston.

May the Lord grant him eternal rest and fellowship with all the saints in heaven.

Right Rev. Monsignor Thomas Reilly, LL.B., B.Sc.(Econ.)—7th March, 1982

Thomas Reilly was born in the Calton district of Glasgow on 29th March, 1911. At the age of five he was enrolled as a pupil at St. Patrick's Primary School, Belfast. The year was 1916. This may explain why, some months later, we find him being enrolled in St. Anne's Primary School, Glasgow, where he remained until 1923, when he proceeded to St. Aloysius' College. He gained his Higher Leaving Certificate in 1928, but since he had not included Latin and Greek in his studies, he went to St. Mary's College, Blairs, for two years to make good this omission. Always quick at learning languages, Tom found he had time on his hands and in the library at Blairs he found what his eager, enquiring mind was seeking. Books. He was like a hungry young boy in a cake shop. He devoured them. Not just novels and detective stories. Serious works by Belloc, Chesterton, Knox, Geurry, Marmion, poetry, particularly the works of Francis Thompson—he could recite "The Hound of Heaven" off by heart, but, being Tom, he never did so in public. This love of books, this thirst for learning was never to leave him, and when he went to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, in 1930, it earned him the nickname of "The Professor". This was not a title of derision but of genuine respect from his fellow-students, for despite his erudition, he was always unassuming. In the cut and thrust of student conversations, he enjoyed listening more than participating. He was ordained priest in 1936, and appointed curate to St. Augustine's, Langloan, Coatbridge, remaining there a year, when he moved on to St. Mary's, Abercromby Street. Those were the days of glory for St. Mary's, before it was decimated. Parishioners had a deep sense of belonging, of being members of a community and took a great pride in their parish. Father Tom played his part in contributing to the vigour of parochial life. After seven years he was appointed to Holy Cross, Croy where he was to work for another seven years, and is still remembered not just for his learning but also for his affability. In 1951 he moved on to St. Mary's, Duntocher, and after four years there he went to St. Constantine's, Govan. It was during these years of his curacies that Father Tom's search for further education led him to enrol at Glasgow University, choosing classes which were timed so as not to interfere with the execution of his parochial duties. Despite this precaution, he was reported to the Archdiocesan authorities and ordered by them to desist. This, of course, he did, but nevertheless felt free, in his endeavours to cultivate his God-given talents to the full, to enrol as an external student at London University, taking a correspondence course, and ultimately graduating as a B.Sc (Econ. Hons. 2nd Cl) and an LL.B. After four years in Govan, Father Tom was appointed parish priest of Sacred Heart, Cumbernauld. At that time, Cumbernauld was in its infancy, with very few facilities and no church. He did his best to overcome these drawbacks by setting up prayer groups and study groups in the homes of the handful of Catholics in his parish. Round about this time he was also engaged in giving weekly lectures in ethics to male students for the teachers' Religious Certificate, and shortly afterwards he was appointed an assistant Schools Examiner in Catechism, as well as a Member of Council of Catholic Truth Society (Glasgow). In 1960 he was appointed parish priest of Blessed John Ogilvie, Glasgow. Three years later he was made Vice-Postulator in the Cause of Blessed John Ogilvie, and the work for which the rest of his life had been a preparation really began. We have written about Father Tom's intellectual qualities, which were quite outstanding. He had other qualities of character which were to be tested to the full before this particular task was completed—unfailing optimism, dogged tenacity, the ability to work with and get the best out of his collaborators, boundless energy and an all-embracing geniality which made life-long friends out of those who shared his zeal for the cause of Blessed John. Most of his holidays were spent among dusty tomes in the libraries of Europe in quest of more information about Blessed John. When not on holiday he spent much time in giving lantern lectures and spreading knowledge of and devotion to Blessed John. He attended to letters from all over the world for information about, or detailing cures received through the intercession of, John Ogilvie. Seldom did he get to bed before 3 a.m. He co-ordinated the work of the team of doctors who assisted him by gathering reports from the doctors, surgeons and pathologists concerned in the case of John Fagan. Undeterred by setbacks and disappointments he continued until he saw his, his predecessors' and collaborators', clerical and lay, and the doctors', efforts finally crowned with success in St. Peter's on 17th October 1976, by the canonization of St.

John Ogilvie. It was surely no coincidence, that the miracle that proved the sanctity of the new saint took place in Easterhouse. (When those who knew Easterhouse only by repute would commiserate with Father Tom, his invariable reply was "these are the kind of people Our Lord loves"). The Church recognised his work for the Cause by making him a Prelate of Honour, which embarrassed him considerably. In 1978, after eighteen years in Easterhouse, Mgr. Reilly was appointed parish priest of St. Monica's, Milton. Although now an Old Age Pensioner, he set himself the task of building a presbytery-cum-hall in his own parish, next to the church. Two factors were to prevent him finishing this project. There was first the appalling weather of last winter. Secondly, the illness which was to kill him had already a firm hold on him. All through his life the Monsignor had been blessed with good health. So much so that he often wondered if God had forgotten him. He knew that to share in the joy of Our Lord he would have first to share in His sufferings. He was to learn before he died just how dear he was to God. He suffered considerably mentally, worried by the thought of his incomplete house; physically, as the cancer ate into him more and more; but he suffered without complaint sustained by the deep, undemonstrative faith which had motivated his whole life. He faded away until, like the Cheshire Cat, all that was left was the smile. And it is probable, that he will be remembered not for his erudition but for his smile. He was an oasis of tranquility in a hectic world; a wise counsellor to the troubled; a patient listener to the woes and heartaches of his fellow-men; a trusted custodian of secrets; a loving father to those entrusted to his care, instructing, tending, correcting them when necessary and fighting their battles for them. He died at home in the comforting presence of his sisters on Sunday, 7th March 1982. The Archbishop of Glasgow was the principal celebrant at the Funeral Mass in St. Monica's on 11th March, the morrow of the sixth Feast of St. John Ogilvie. In the sanctuary were many priests from all parts of Scotland, while the body of the church was filled to capacity with a congregation made up of people from all the places in which Mgr. Reilly had served as well as dignitaries and clients of St. John Ogilvie, many of whom joined the cortege for the interment in the clergy plot at St. Kentigern's Cemetery, Lambhill. R.I.P.

Rev. John Mannion—10th March, 1982

Father Sean Mannion, parish priest of St. John's, Uddingston, died suddenly on 10th March, 1982. His death was widely mourned. Born 8th June, 1932, at Moylough, Co. Galway, the only child of John Mannion—Shop owner, and Mrs. Delia Mannion. He was educated at the local primary school, and St. Jarlath's College, Tuam—a college where so many students were nurtured over the years to carry the Gospel of Christ to all parts of the world. For a time Sean was anxious to go to the Foreign Missions and join his cousin priests working there, but tragedy then struck his family; his father died suddenly and Sean decided to stay nearer home and be on hand to look after his mother when required. He went to study for the priesthood at St. Peter's College, Wexford, and was ordained priest for the Diocese of Motherwell on 5th June, 1955, by Bishop Staunton of Ferns.

Father Mannion spent his first flowering years of his priesthood at St. Joseph's, Blantyre, under the care and watchful eye of Monsignor John Ashe—a man of great charm, energy and zeal who was doing great things then for the newly-formed Diocese of Motherwell. Having settled in Blantyre where he had immediately become involved with the youth, it was not easy for him to be told that he had to pack his bags and go to Holy Family, Mossend. But he settled down there easily enough with his natural gift of getting along well with everybody, and now directed his attention to the training of altar boys and the formation of a choir, as well as other parochial work.

His real life's work was to lie elsewhere, so leaving his many faithful friends he set out for Coatbridge—an area where he was to remain for most of his priestly life. Appointed assistant priest at St. Patrick's parish he devoted most of his time and energy to the school. Working with youth was all important for the church of tomorrow and because of his efforts in the spiritual formation of these young people, he was invited to become official Chaplain. This was the first time a Chaplain was appointed to a High School in Scotland and once appointed to that post he gave his whole self to that work. For him nothing else mattered more than the formation of young people. The youth in return recognised in him a man totally dedicated to his priesthood and their welfare. In due course he came to know every boy and girl by name in that large comprehensive school. He had a wonderful understanding of the problems of youth—their strength and their weakness and his heart responded to their human needs. No wonder he received so many letters of thanks each year from the school leavers stating they would always remember him with affection especially because of his encouragement and help to them in times of difficulty at home and in the school.

His sixteen years at St. Patrick's were renowned for his dedicated work. His partnership with the teacher of the class room, and more especially with the Rector, Mr. James Breen was of immense value for the spiritual well-being of the students. He always tried to be on good working relations with the teaching staff for without that, he maintained, any priest's work is curtailed. For many years the Rector, Mr. Breen—himself a wonderful servant of the Church, and Father Mannion, the Chaplain, worked hand in hand for the good and well-being of the pupils.

These were difficult years—the transformation of a Junior Secondary system to Comprehensive High. No one ever worked harder to give Catholic pupils proper status with “equal opportunities” in life than did Mr. Breen. All of us owe a deep debt of gratitude to him for all his efforts and Father Mannion was always there by his side as counsellor and friend. Alongside the school chaplaincy, Father Mannion reached out to help and encourage all the boys of the diocese for he was the Boys' Guild Chaplain. It would be impossible to recall or count the number of times this priest stood on the sidelines during football matches, all the times he organized dances, discos, boys' socials, sit ins, seminars, etc. Wherever there was a Boys' Guild function, he was there directing and guiding. His work was warmly appreciated by the civic authorities and over the years received many tributes from them.

During the time Father Mannion was school chaplain, he was also assistant at St. Patrick's, Coatbridge and later on assistant at All Saints', Airdrie, and St. Margaret's, Airdrie. His relationship with his fellow priests was always excellent and because of his kind nature and easy-going approach, beloved by housekeepers. Before leaving Coatbridge and Airdrie, with typical warmth from grateful priests, teachers, parents and pupils, Father Mannion had to attend a number of formal presentations. The numbers who turned out for these functions and the enthusiasm displayed, testified to the regard and affection they all had for him.

Father Mannion was appointed to St. Thomas', Wishaw, at Christmas, 1977. The new church and hall there was his pride and joy. After settling in he began to promote the pastoral changes initiated by the Second Vatican Council. His every effort was given to the deepening participation of the laity in the liturgical celebrations of the Mass. With a gifted voice and responsive people he was able to get his parishioners to appreciate the value of good congregational singing. Although robust and energetic he began to suffer long bouts of illness and sometimes it was necessary for him to call for help from neighbouring parishes. Father Mannion was transferred to Uddingston on 22nd October, 1981, where he could now have the help of an assistant priest. But he was not for taking life all that easy and shortly began to look forward to the new challenge and spoke openly of his plans for a new Church in the parish. In the providence of God this was not to be for him. It would be an understatement merely to say that Father Mannion's comparatively early death came as a shock. The sense of loss which was immediately felt by the parishioners of St. John's was reflected in the large congregation that gathered in the church on that evening. As word went round about his death parishioners arriving home from work and learning of the sad news, hastily made their way to the church—to pray, to talk, to console each other. Their pastor had only been with them for a few short months and already a great attachment for him was cementing, and now he was taken away so suddenly. Great was the loss for them and also for so many others over a large part of the diocese. Boys and girls, young men and women from many parts, who had been directed and guided by him for so many years came along to the presbytery, and to the church next day to pay their last respects.

In an over-crowded church, Requiem Mass was concelebrated and Bishop Thomson in the homily on the eight Beatitudes, so appropriate for this occasion because of the many clergy and people who had come to mourn, ended by recalling the qualities of this talented and gifted priest and the influence he had had with so many people in the diocese. The number of special Masses which were offered in crowded churches throughout the area during that month was a reflection of his apostolic work and of the affection in which he was held.

After the Requiem Mass his bodily remains were taken to Ireland accompanied by Bishop Thomson and a number of diocesan priests and people. Leaving Dublin the cortege made its way westward and all along the route to his native Moylough, the procession grew ever longer, as cars which had come up part of the way from his homeland joined in. On arrival a large number of priests from the Archdiocese of Tuam and neighbouring dioceses and several hundreds of people were waiting to receive the mortal remains back into his native church. Next day the church was crowded for concelebrated Mass and Bishop Thomson spoke of the loss to his diocese and ended by thanking the Irish people for sending so many worthy sons and daughters to work and help in Scotland.

The obsequies were attended by Most Rev. Joseph Cunnane, Archbishop of Tuam, and a sorrowing congregation said farewell as his body was interred alongside his parents' in the local cemetery. Father Sean Mannion gave twenty-six years of his forty-nine years of life to Scotland. He loved and revered the land of his adoption and worked zealously for the well-being of its people.

But he retained also his love for the land of his birth.

He was always a true son of Ireland and no spot was dearer to him than his native parish of Moylough. It was fitting then that he should be laid to rest there and await the resurrection from the sacred soil of the churchyard just outside that little town.

May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Edward Canon Molumby—20th March, 1982

"You are very welcome, Father dear," said 'Ned' Molumby to his newest curate. "Just promise me one thing; if you should be here still when it comes my time to die, make sure my remains are returned for burial to my own native place." There in a nutshell is the story of the man. He was undemanding, tolerant and yet passionately patriotic and a priest to his fingertips; straightforward, surprisingly humorous and truly humble—especially humble.

"My own native place"—as he always called it—was Golden, Co. Tipperary, where he was born on 27th December, 1902, the second son of a family of five, all of whose three girls embraced the Religious Life. His family was to him a great source of love and pride, and these feelings were returned with interest by them. He attended Rockwell College from 1915, Blackrock from 1920 and St. Patrick's, Thurles from 1924. Rockwell and Blackrock gave him his love of "ascendancy" games like rugby, cricket and tennis, and a familiar way of teasing him in later years was to ask him how he could reconcile these preferences with his legendary love of Ireland. His eyes would twinkle nervously as he evaded the question.

He was ordained priest for Glasgow on 15th June, 1930, by Archbishop Harty in Thurles Cathedral, and later that year went as a curate to Canon Durkin in Our Lady of Lourdes, Cardonald, where he remained until 1937, doing a "regulation" curate's job with zeal and no small measure of competence. He loved this part of his life, and often recalled with much affection things like visiting the Catholic children of the area in a "couple of classrooms of Craigton Primary School". Canon Galbraith succeeded Canon Durkin in Lourdes during this time, and Ned used to laugh in a very special way whenever he mentioned that well-known name. The laugh contained affection, admiration and just the merest dash of disapproval.

On 17th December, 1936 something happened which was to change the course of his life; this was the untimely death of Father John Crerand, (uncle of the famous Pat of that name) at the age of thirty-three, only a few weeks after he had been sent to salvage what he could of the ill-fated "Distributists" initiative in Symington, Lanarkshire. The following year, Ned was sent to succeed him, and was installed as the first resident priest in St. Isidore's, Biggar, from where he could look after the spiritual needs of the people who worked on the farm project. This time in his life is difficult to follow in detail, and it could become the subject of another article altogether.

For now, let it be sufficient to say that he succeeded in winding up the project without loss, and in his later years he still had receipts to prove it!!

His life took so many unusual twists and turns that we should not be surprised at anything. World War II provided the next one. Towards the end of 1939 and into 1940, an army of foreign troops arrived, among them French and Poles, and set up camp in the Abington area, and provided Ned with a new challenge to his apostolic resourcefulness, and as usual he met it with cheerful energy, and acted as chaplain to them, and they were numbered in thousands, until such times as their own French- and Polish-speaking chaplains should arrive, and now the plot really thickened. Far be it from me to judge whether his famous defiant gesture was right or wrong, but seen to be wrong by those who thought they knew, and as a result, he was labelled as an enemy of the state and spent the next six months of the prime of his life (he was 38 in August of that fateful year) as the reluctant guest of His Majesty, the first three months in what is now Glasgow G33, and the rest at the Knavesmire, a hippodrome somewhere in York.

Then the deportation took place through the good offices of De Valera and the then Archbishop of Dublin, who had been his superior during his "prefecture" in Blackrock College, and he was taken to the boat for Ireland under armed guard. He used to love that phrase, and he never failed to repeat it whenever he reminisced, which wasn't half often enough. It is difficult to say how he felt about that clouded period in his life, and he has left me wondering for all eternity. But then clouds always have a silver lining, or so goes the myth.

This one really did have, however, because he became a chaplain once again, this time to his own Irish Army, and this further varied experience he felt enriched his life in its own way, principally through the many new friends he made whom in ordinary circumstances he might never even have met.

The reader might feel, that the years 1937-1945 might have been better ignored, but in retrospect they were important in the shaping of his priesthood. They would have been better told too by someone who knew him earlier, but they seemed incredible as the story of the frail septuagenarian one got to know and love so much.

He was received back into the archdiocese almost immediately after the war. He had another seven years before eventually he was given charge of a parish. In 1945 he went to St. Simon's, Partick, with "Comrade Egan" as he always referred to him; 1947 saw him begin another spell as part of Sam Durkin's household in St. Michael's Parkhead this time, and his last curacy was at the Immaculate Heart, Balornock, with his friend Jim Fitzgibbon ("who was a chaplain in the BRITISH army" as he would recall mischievously). In 1952 he became P.P. of the new parish of St. Conval's, Pollok, which he took over from Pat Conway, and so began the period during which he felt he did some of his best work for the archdiocese. Through his leadership, by 1956 the people of this new parish had a church they could be proud of and a really thriving parish. In later days he used to recall his love of the beautiful view from his window in the chapel house of lovely Pollok estate, and in particular the nostalgic sight of the cattle grazing there in rural peace only a mile or two from the city centre.

In 1960 he was promoted finally to St. Anthony's Govan from where he was to retire seventeen years later. He will be remembered in Govan and district for his inaugurating the 12.30 weekday Mass which shortly became one of the features of Catholic devotional life in the South-West of the city, and for his tasteful reconstruction of the much-loved old sanctuary of the Church. And it was during his pastorate in Govan, in 1972, that Archbishop Scanlan honoured him by making him an Honorary Canon of the Cathedral Chapter.

He will be remembered—and prayed for—in Govan, Pollok, Cardonald, Parkhead, Balornock and in the other unusual places and situations in which he ministered to a large and varied number of people, principally because he was much loved. People saw in him a priest humble yet talented, assiduous and conscientious and highly efficient in his service to God and his people. Those lucky enough to have heard him will long remember his eloquence. I heard a priest describe him as the best secular priest preacher in the country. He had the gift of being able to see the heart of a subject, and with much hard work to speak on its every aspect with an amazing economy of the right words delivered with tremendous conviction and passion. One of the great regrets of his last years was that he couldn't remember too well; in fact not well enough even to remember the exact message of his sermons, of which he had reams written over his 47 years as an active priest. He used to admit latterly to just "reading something out of periodicals written by someone else".

After years of indifferent health, the now frail old priest admitted to himself that maybe it was time for him to call it a day, and go back to his native place under his own steam, and so on the morning of 14th October, 1977, after having said Mass and been seen off by the schoolchildren and teachers principally, he set off for home in the company of his long-time curate and friend Father Joe McElholm, who drove all the way to Tipperary, where he eventually settled in Ballycarron House near Golden, where his own big sister looked after him till his death, which occurred on 28th March, 1982.

The Principal Celebrant at the Funeral Mass in Golden Church on 23rd March was Archbishop Thomas Morris of Cashel, who also officiated at the interment in the adjoining churchyard. Concelebrating with him was Bishop Joseph Devine, auxiliary in Glasgow, who in his homily paid tribute to this much admired priest of the Archdiocese.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Francis D. Crowley, S.T.L., J.C.L.—23rd March, 1982

Father Francis David (Diarmid) Crowley, parish priest of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary, Girvan, died on the 23rd March, 1982. It was in March, 1976, following his admission to hospital for surgery that his health first gave cause for concern. For the next five years high hopes were entertained that with expert medical attention allied to his strong faith and indomitable spirit his health had been restored. This was not to be, and following further surgery in March, 1981, he was admitted finally to the Bon Secours Hospital, Glasgow in March 1982, from where God called him to Himself. His death at the early age of forty-nine and in the twenty-seventh year of his priesthood meant that the people of Girvan and the Diocese of Galloway had lost a humble and dedicated priest.

Francis David Crowley was born in Glasgow on 2nd June, 1932. He was the youngest of the family of John Crowley and Kathleen Beahan, brother of Maureen, and Shaun, also to become a priest. He received his primary schooling in Glasgow and later in Ayr where the Crowley family had moved at the outbreak of the war. He proceeded to Fort Augustus Abbey School for his secondary education and having decided to study for the priesthood he entered the Pontifical Scots College in Rome. On 17th March, 1956, he was ordained in the Chapel of the old Scots College by the Right Rev. William A. Hart, now retired Bishop of Dunkeld. His first appointment was assistant at St. Michael's, Kilmarnock, and from there he was sent for further studies to the Gregorian in Rome. On obtaining his degree in Canon Law he returned to the diocese to serve as assistant first at St. Patrick's Auchinleck, and then at St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock. In 1963 he was appointed to the staff at St. Vincent's College, Langbank. This appointment at first filled him with some trepidation. It was entirely typical of the man to question his own suitability for such a ministry. It is not for us to judge success in any part of his priestly work but we can say his years in S. Vincent's gave him tremendous fulfilment. His friendliness and willingness to co-operate in team work made him a valued member of the staff. His natural ability to communicate clearly to children allied to his kindly manner and priestly zeal ensured he had a great influence on the boys in their early preparation for the priesthood. He became a strong advocate of the minor seminary in promoting and developing priestly vocations. After leaving St. Vincent's, he wrote down a series of talks for students aspiring to the priesthood. Unfortunately he never allowed these to be published.

In 1968 he became parish priest at St. Palladius', Dalry, where he remained until 1974, when he was appointed to succeed Canon Joseph Kerr at Girvan. In addition to his normal parish duties he acted as chaplain to St. Michael's Academy, Kilwinning while in Dalry, and to the Sacred Heart Academy in Girvan, thus continuing his contact with senior school pupils and bringing to the work the benefit of his experience in St. Vincent's College. He was also chaplain to the Sisters of Cluny who are responsible for the Sacred Heart Academy. His appreciation of the work done by the sisters in the school and parish was eloquently expressed in his address at their centenary celebrations in 1980. They in turn valued highly his devotion to his priestly work, as shown in the care and support they gave him especially during his illness when he was unable to fulfil his parish duties.

In addition to his parish responsibilities and ministries already mentioned he undertook at various times extra duties in the diocese. His expertise in Canon Law he put to good use in his work with the Marriage Tribunal and his experience in the minor seminary ideally equipped him for his work as assistant vocations director.

Father Diarmid was one who strove after excellence. Single-minded and conscientious in whatever he considered important he expected a like response in others. He brought the same intensity to the support he gave to his favourite football team as he showed in his pastoral duties. If his team were not measuring up to the standards he expected he forcefully expressed his views about how improvement could be brought about! He prepared his talks and sermons assiduously. Order and clarity were hallmarks of his presentation. These allied to his brilliant use of language and his obvious sincerity made him a forceful and informative preacher. He regularly filed his sermons and if he had a particularly busy week he would admit to being forced to pull a sermon "from the can". Basically conservative in matters theological, he enthusiastically accepted most of the liturgical and pastoral changes initiated by the Second Vatican Council. His attention to detail, especially noticeable in the many signs and notices in and around his church, indicated his concern for dignity and decorum in the house of God. Those who attended his silver jubilee celebrations at a time when his health was rapidly deteriorating will recall the beauty of the Liturgy and his sensitivity to involving everyone in a celebration that brought great joy to him.

The fabric and decor of his church expressed his desire to create something beautiful for God. He believed that the church should have atmosphere that would stimulate his people in their prayer and divine worship. His role as pastor was in no way restricted to the confines of the church building. Home visitation, the sick and elderly, counselling those in difficulty, programmes to develop his people's understanding of their faith, all these were very much his pastoral concern. He worked closely with other Churches and groups and such involvement made him a respected figure throughout the whole community.

As a diocesan priest he was a regular participant at clerical meetings throughout the diocese. His studied and often very original observations on events in the diocese were eagerly sought and well worth listening to. Though serious by nature his conversation laced as it was with originality of expression and a keen sense of humour made him popular with his brother priests. The host of clergy from other dioceses as well as his own who attended his funeral bore eloquent testimony to his standing amongst his brother priests.

The Church of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary had an overflowing congregation for the Requiem Mass on Friday, 26th March. His brother Shaun, parish priest of St. Winin's, Kilwinning, was the chief concelebrant with Bishop Maurice Taylor, Bishop Joseph McGee, retired bishop of the diocese, and Bishop Charles Renfrew, auxiliary bishop of Glasgow and former rector of St. Vincent's College. The crowded prayerful assembly which included his aged father, Knight of St. Gregory, representatives of the other Churches in the area and civic dignitaries, was a fitting tribute to one who had dedicated his life to the service of God and the Church. The music of the Liturgy was led by the choir of the Sacred Heart Academy giving a joyful expression to an occasion that tugged at the hearts of his parishioners, family and friends. He was laid to rest in the local cemetery not far from his church among the people he loved and served for the last eight years of his earthly pilgrimage. May he rest in peace.

Right Rev. Monsignor Neil MacKellaig, O.B.E.—9th April, 1982

On Good Friday, 9th April, 1982, Monsignor Neil MacKellaig of the Diocese of Argyll and the Isles died in the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh. He was seventy-two years of age, and in the forty-eighth year of his priesthood.

Neil was born at Beoraid in Morar—the village now known simply as Morar—on 29th August, 1909. He received his elementary education at the Lady Lovat School there, and his secondary education in Blairs College. In taking the road to the priesthood he was following his elder brother Dominic, and was to be followed in turn by his younger brother Angus. In 1928 he went to France and in Saint Lô, then at Issy-les-Moulineaux, and finally at Saint Sulpice in Paris he completed his course of studies for the priesthood. He came home to Scotland in 1934, to be ordained priest by the Most Reverend Donald Mackintosh, Archbishop of Glasgow, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, on 29th June.

His first appointment was to Oban where, according to the custom of the time, he was chaplain to the Carmelite Convent for a year. At Christmas that year he witnessed the formal opening of the new cathedral, which was not to be completely finished for many years to come. He then served as priest of the cathedral parish until in 1940 he was introduced to South Uist, in which he was to serve the Church and the community with great dedication for forty years, for seven years in St. Mary's, Bornish, and thirty-three years in St. Peter's, Daliburgh.

Monsignor MacKellaig was a man of strong character and clear convictions. His vigorous work for the Church was recognised when he was appointed Domestic Prelate to His Holiness in 1953, and he was appointed to the Cathedral Chapter in 1958. Similarly his dedication to work with the civil authorities was acknowledged when he received the honour of O.B.E. from Her Majesty the Queen in 1975. His ideals were in some matters very conservative, in others quite progressive. In matters of religion he viewed with some dismay what he considered to be departures from tradition following the Vatican Council, and also the decline in discipline and moral standards as modern ideas and practices, common enough in mainland Scotland but foreign to the Isles, were rapidly introduced. He deplored the establishment of military bases in the Isles, which he saw as a threat to the religious and cultural environment. He was steadfast in trying to preserve the Gaelic language in the schools and in the Church, and was sad to see the English language begin to supplant the native tongue. He adhered to the traditional method of teaching catechism by heart, both in Gaelic and in English, for as long as he could.

Some people, living in the comfort of modern towns, will bemoan the change in the way of life in the Hebrides, with romantic dreams of the beauty and peace of life in the thatched cottages of days gone by. Monsignor MacKellaig was not one of those. He lived through years of poverty and hardship and was determined to work for the improvement and progress in conditions of work and life for the crofters. He served on Inverness County Council and in various other public bodies to that end, and used his experience to encourage schemes of crofter co-operation—in the production and marketing of eggs, in stock-rearing, bulk buying of agricultural requirements, and many other improvements for the best use of the land and sea. It was due to his encouragement and influence that the Sacred Heart Hospital in Daliburgh was modernised and extended, with a resident surgeon on the island, so that only for more serious operations was it necessary for patients to be taken away for treatment. He was influential also in the establishment of Cefoil Ltd.—later to be Alginate Industries—at Boisdale, for the gathering and processing of seaweed. But his main work was the instruction and pastoral care of his flock, and this he attended to with regularity both in the church and in the schools. In 1964 he built the modern-style church of Our Lady of Sorrows at Garrynamonie in the southern part of his parish, to replace the wooden church which had served for over forty years, packed to capacity at every service.

Monsignor MacKellaig suffered a near-fatal illness in 1959, and it was with profound relief that his friends and parishioners watched him slowly recover. He had another twenty years of pastoral work ahead of him, but in 1980, after a period of further ill-health, he decided to retire and take up residence in Fort William. Not for long, however; he was soon back in Uist as a patient in the hospital in Daliburgh. He spent some time in hospitals in Inverness, Carlisle and Edinburgh before he finally succumbed.

At Requiem Mass in the cathedral at Oban, His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray paid tribute to the character of Monsignor MacKellaig—his loyalty to the Church, his warmth of friendship especially to his fellow priests, and the generous hospitality which he offered to all, and which the Cardinal himself had experienced on his visits to the Isles. The remains were brought back to Daliburgh and there on Tuesday, 13th April, His Lordship Bishop Colin MacPherson and twenty priests concelebrated the Funeral Mass and laid him to rest in the cemetery of Hallan. Gu'n robh fhois ann an sith.

Rev. Richard Swards—18th April, 1982

Richard Hewitt Swards was born in Weston-super-Mare on 7th July, 1920 and was brought up in the Anglican Faith.

He served as a rear gunner on bombers in the R.A.F. from 1939 until 1947, and took part in numerous raids over Germany.

It was while he was stationed at an R.A.F. station in Scotland, that he visited the cathedral in Oban, and there met Bishop Donald Campbell, who made such an impression on him that he took instructions and was received into the Church by Bishop Campbell.

The same Bishop Campbell, by now Archbishop of Glasgow, ordained Richard Swards a priest, on the 29th June, 1960 in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow.

Father Swards spent his first months as a priest in St. Saviour's Govan, and was then transferred to Holy Cross, Glasgow.

Father Swards found it hard to settle to the life of a curate in Glasgow, and the new Archbishop of Glasgow, Archbishop Scanlan, released him to work in the Missions.

For most of his twenty years on the Missions he worked in New Guinea, often in the most difficult and appalling conditions. His bishop there held him in great esteem, and the Archdiocese of Glasgow can be justly proud of the contribution he made in spreading the Gospel in that part of the world.

He kept the Faith until the end. May he rest in peace.

Rev. Charles Joseph Doherty—23rd April, 1982

It was with great sadness and with evident shock, that the parishioners of St. Peter's, Hamilton, learned of the sudden death on 23rd April, 1982—while on holiday in his native Ireland—of their assistant priest, Father Charles Joseph Doherty, a man who had served them for such a short time, but who had in that time succeeded in winning their hearts and their admiration.

Father Doherty was born in Derry on 31st October, 1933, son of William and Mary Doherty. He was educated at St. Columb's College, Derry, then St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny, where on 2nd June, 1957, he was ordained to the priesthood for the Diocese of Motherwell. His first appointment in the Diocese of Motherwell was as assistant priest of St. Mark's, Rutherglen, 1957-1961. From 1961-1965, he served in Holy Family, Mossend. It was at this time that he chose to take up missionary work in Peru, South America, which was to engage his energies from 1965 until 1968. Following this period, he spent the year 1968-1969 in Roskledge in the Diocese of Orlando, Florida.

Returning to the Diocese of Motherwell, Father Doherty was appointed to St. Columba's, Viewpark, where he was assistant priest from 1969 to 1973, and to St. John the Baptist's, Uddingston from 1973 to 1976. He then went back to Ireland where, in the Diocese of Elphin, he worked during the years 1976-1978. Again he returned to Scotland and to the Diocese of Motherwell, serving from 1978 to 1980 in St. Mary's, Hamilton, and then in St. Peter's, Hamilton, from 1980 until his death.

Father Doherty, during his years of service within the Diocese of Motherwell, was known to be a friend to all entrusted to his care. His pastoral ministry was characterised by kindness and a genuine generosity with his time and energies, and the assistance he so readily gave embraced both the spiritual and the material needs of his people. With his ability at organising parish events and functions, his pastoral care extended to the social needs of his people, nourishing the bonds of community among those he served, and fostering the spirit of ecumenism within the area in which he worked. As an immediate result of his organising abilities, all charitable organisations could find in him a ready champion of their causes.

Father Doherty possessed that quality which must be primary to the priestly character—an approachableness which endeared him to those who sought his counsel and who detected in his warmth of personality, that dedication which singles out the man who is truly about his Master's business. His popularity among both the priests and lay-people who knew him bore eloquent witness to his concern and love for people. His untimely death at the age of 49 years was a shock to those with whom he served in the Diocese of Motherwell, and caused profound sadness among those to whom his service had meant so much.

Requiem Mass, at which the Bishop of Derry presided, was celebrated in St. Eugene's Cathedral, Derry; Bishop Francis Thomson of Motherwell together with priests from both the Diocese of Motherwell and the Diocese of Derry were among the concelebrants. The following day, Tuesday, 27th April, 1982, Bishop Thomson concelebrated Requiem Mass in St. Peter's, Hamilton, at which a large number of priests and lay people gathered. May he rest in peace.

Rev. Patrick Brennan—24th April, 1982

Patrick Brennan was born in Movice, County Donegal, on November 12, 1908. Shortly afterwards his family, like so many others of that generation, moved from Ireland to make a new home for themselves in Glasgow. Their son Patrick attended St. Aloysius' College before entering the seminary of St. Peter at Bearsden. He was ordained on the traditional feast of Ss. Peter and Paul, 29th June, 1931, and appointed to the parish of St. Cuthbert, Burnbank for a short period of less than a year before going to St. Columba's in Glasgow until 1936. Then it was that he returned to Lanarkshire to spend the next four years in Our Lady and St. Anne's in Cadzow, Hamilton. In 1940 he moved to St. Augustine's, Coatbridge and so automatically became a priest of the Diocese of Motherwell at its formation on 29th May, 1947. It was there he received on 8th February, 1952 his first appointment as parish priest and took charge of the joint parishes of St. Catherine, Harthill, and Sacred Heart, Salsburgh.

Father Brennan had been ordained when he was only twenty-three years old so it is not surprising that one of his early priestly concerns was the Catholic Young's Men's Society and he devoted himself to building up strong and enthusiastic groups of young men who would be knowledgeable about their Faith and active in their religious profession. This he did in each parish where he ministered as an assistant priest.

To his charges as parish priest he brought the particular apostolate to the sick which remained a distinguishing feature of his ministry in both St. Mary's, Larkhall, to which he had been transferred in 1956 and All Saints', Airdrie, to which he went on 7th December, 1961.

Increasingly Father Brennan had been conscious that his own health had been deteriorating and in June 1965 he was granted a period of sick leave. It was a sick leave that eventually became a formal retirement. Father Brennan spent the last few years of his life quietly in Folkestone. It was there in the Church of Our Lady, Help of Christians, and St. Aloysius that his Requiem Mass was celebrated by his nephew, Father Gerard Mulligan C.Ss.R. assisted by Monsignor Conroy, Vicar General of the Diocese of Motherwell on 29th April 1982. R.I.P.

Rev. Peter McCann—1st May, 1982

In the early evening of Saturday, 1st May, 1982, priests and people in the Glasgow Archdiocese were shocked to learn that in the afternoon of that day Father Peter McCann, parish priest of Our Holy Redeemer's, Clydebank, had died suddenly in Mouttier, a small village some 15 miles from the Swiss border. He had left for France only a few days previously for a short holiday. The sad news was all the more unexpected in that Father Peter had recently been showing good signs of recovery from a stroke suffered several years earlier. Indeed, only a few weeks before his death he remarked jocularly to a fellow priest, "I am now nearly able to comb my hair with either hand."

Father Peter was born in Dumbarton on 17th February, 1922, the eldest of six children, three boys and three girls, of Thomas and Ellen McCann, much respected parishioners of St. Patrick's, Dumbarton. After his primary education at the local parish school, he attended St. Patrick's High School, Dumbarton, where he was an able scholar. Whilst still at primary school, early signs of a future vocation were in evidence, because he rose daily at 6.30 a.m. to go to St. Patrick's parish church to serve the 7 a.m. Mass of the legendary Monsignor Hugh Kelly, before going on to school. On completion of his secondary education he went to Blairs College, Aberdeen, to commence his studies for the priesthood in the philosophy course. After two years in Blairs he was conscripted for war service in the Army, and so, at the age of twenty he went to serve his country as an infantryman in the H.L.I. His first taste of action was in the Normandy landings of 6th June, 1944, and in the subsequent fighting he was wounded on 16th July 1944 and was repatriated to Scotland to convalesce and to complete his military service in Ayr.

Following demobilisation in 1945, he resumed his studies for the priesthood. As St. Peter's seminary at Bearsden had been destroyed by fire, he and his fellow students spent some time in Mill Hill, London, before finally returning to complete his ecclesiastical studies in the newly-sited St. Peter's College at Cardross. He was ordained to the priesthood by Archbishop Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, on 29th June, 1949.

His first appointment after ordination was as assistant priest at St. Robert's, Househillwood, where he was to spend the next eighteen years. During that time he witnessed the huge development of this new housing estate. His pastoral ministry there involved a great deal of walking around knocking on doors to visit and welcome the newcomers. Peter conscientiously made it his business to get to know his people, who in turn learned to appreciate his kindly interest. During his long stay in Househillwood he also witnessed and shared in the building of the new church of St. Robert Bellarmine, a large and imposing edifice in the Pugin style.

After dedicating so many years to the people of Househillwood, he was transferred to St. Thomas', Riddrie, in 1967. For the next seven years he applied himself to the spiritual welfare of his new parishioners with the same dedication and devoted service that had characterised his priestly ministry in Househillwood. Finally, in 1974, when the parish of Our Holy Redeemer, Clydebank, became vacant with the nomination of Bishop Winning as Archbishop of Glasgow, Father Peter was appointed to succeed him as parish priest.

Father McCann's activities were not confined to parochial duties. In 1955 he was appointed member of the Archdiocesan Tribunal (later to become the Scottish Regional Tribunal), dealing with cases of nullity of marriage. In this complex and delicate field of action Father Peter displayed great skill and aptitude. The Tribunal archives contain literally hundreds, even thousands of pages of his neat and clear handwriting dealing with law, evidence, fact and conclusion. His style of writing was an expression of his character: clarity, precision, an ability to identify the essentials and to discard the irrelevant. Yet through the legal procedures which he regarded as indispensable, he never lost sight of the fact that canon law is at the service of the Church, not an end in itself, but a means to an end; and so he administered the law with gentleness, sympathy and understanding towards those in distress.

During the process for the Canonization of St. John Ogilvie, Father Peter was called upon to act as chief Notary. In discharge of this duty he took down in writing the statements of numerous witnesses and experts, and equally neatly typed every word in English and Italian, at the same time keeping everything in perfect order and properly filed. The considerable expenditure of time and energy involved in this enterprise was accepted cheerfully and without complaint. The same meticulous care was shown when he was asked by Archbishop Scanlan to undertake the organisation of a number of important public functions: every space was measured, every seat counted, every problem foreseen, everything arranged to go smoothly.

Both in parochial and tribunal work he found time for everyone; no one ever received short shrift, nor did he ever lose his composure or his immense good humour. The priests who worked with him in the various parishes and in the Tribunal always enjoyed his company. His talent as raconteur, especially about the humorous side of army and clerical life, made his interventions in times of recreation something of a highlight. In the midst of all these affairs he never lost contact with his own family and displayed an affectionate and loyal interest in all that went on in the family circle.

After two years as parish priest of Our Holy Redeemer's, Father Peter suffered a serious stroke, which affected his right side. At first it was a bitter blow for someone who had hitherto been so healthy and active. But after an initial period of depression, Peter showed characteristic qualities of courage and resilience. Determined not to be a passenger, he taught himself to write with his left hand and persevered in the various physical exercises designed to make him independent. Through dint of hard work and dogged determination, he achieved his ambition to resume his active ministry in the parish, offering Holy Mass, preaching, administering the Sacraments. Despite his handicap and diminished mobility, he retained a lively interest in all that went on in his parish. He never complained about his state of health and continued his life normally within the limits imposed by illness, until his sudden death at the age of sixty.

Father Peter now awaits the final resurrection in Dumbarton Cemetery where he was laid to rest on 8th May 1982, after the Solemn Requiem Mass in Our Holy Redeemer's, Clydebank, concelebrated by Archbishop Winnie, his Auxiliary Bishops, and a large number of priests in the presence of a packed congregation.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. James McGhie—7th May, 1982.

Pray for the repose of the soul of Father James McGhie, (Jimmie) formerly a priest of Nottingham diocese in England, and latterly parish priest of the church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour, Auchterarder, who died very suddenly in St. Margaret's Hospital, Auchterarder, on Friday, 7th May, 1982, aged 52 years.

On the previous Sunday while returning to the presbytery from Gleneagles Hotel, where the Catenian Association of Great Britain had been holding its annual reunion, he felt unwell. He drove himself to St. Margaret's hospital where a slight heart attack was diagnosed and he was admitted as a patient. After a few days his condition gave rise to a possible early release and he was preparing himself indeed for this release when he suffered a second and fatal attack.

Jimmie McGhie was born in Blantyre, on 9th November, 1929. He was one of eight children, in a family well-known in parish activities. He received his early education at St. Cuthbert's, Burnbank, and his secondary education at St. Joseph's. On leaving school at the usual age, Jimmie embarked on his first rôle in life, a barman in a local hostelry. Perhaps an unusual preparation for the priesthood but one no doubt, which developed his natural talents for geniality and repartee—talents that he was to use to the full later on in his relationships with his people as their priest.

After some years as a barman, Jimmie applied to be accepted as a candidate for the priesthood. He had considered his vocation for some time and in his twentieth year made the important decision. At the time it was the policy of his native diocese not to accept any late-vocation applications and so Jimmie had to seek elsewhere for a diocesan bishop who would accept him as a student. The late Bishop Ellis of Nottingham agreed to support his candidacy and so Jimmie entered Campion House, Osterley, in the autumn of 1949, to begin his studies for the priesthood.

After two years at Osterley, Jimmie passed to St. Edmund's College, Ware, for his studies in Philosophy and Theology. After passing through all the preliminary minor and major orders, Jimmie was ordained to the priesthood in his own native parish of St. Joseph's, Blantyre, on 20th June, 1957, by the late Archbishop James Donald Scanlan, at that time Bishop of Motherwell.

After Ordination Jimmie took up his studies in his adopted diocese of Nottingham. After successive curacies at Chesterfield, Lincoln, and Leicester, he was subsequently parish priest at Calverton, Marple Bridge and finally at Ollerton. In all of these charges Jimmie displayed all the qualities of a zealous and faithful pastor of souls and won the esteem and approval, not only of his ecclesiastical superiors, but of all with whom he came into contact by his genial nature and his dedicated life. The record of his priestly life is a simple one of good works and piety, of a life given unselfishly and single-mindedly to the service of God and the salvation of souls entrusted to his care.

In the middle '70s Jimmie's health began to give rise for concern. Increasingly hardening of the arteries was curtailing his activity and finally Jimmie had to undergo a major operation which involved the transplanting of several arteries. The operation was a success but it was considered wiser that he go into semi-retirement in order to conserve his strength and thus hopefully prolong his life. He retired to Mackworth, Derby, and then finally to the family home in Blantyre where he was cared for by his devoted sister and brothers. While living at home Jimmie used to make periodic visits to his life-long friend and fellow-parishioner of St. Joseph's, Blantyre, Father Felix McBride, then parish priest of St. Joseph's, Dundee. He thus became quickly familiar with the people and the parish. On Father McBride's death in August, 1979, Jimmie was only too happy to help the diocese and took charge of St. Joseph's for several months until the vacancy was filled. Unfortunately this appointment was not to last very long and Jimmie found himself again invited in January, 1981 to take charge of St. Joseph's. By now his health had greatly improved and he came back to Dundee full of energy and zeal for the people confided to his ministry. He was even playing his usual weekly round of golf with the clergy of the diocese!

For eight months Jimmie was at home in St. Joseph's. During all that time, as in Nottingham, he displayed that rare talent he had of friendship and bonhomie which endeared him to all he met. His was a great heart and out of its generosity he radiated kindness and friendliness among all who had the good fortune to know him. His smile and cheerful jauntiness will remain for long in the memory of the people of St. Joseph's. He was a very lovable man because he loved others. It was his joy to be the giver rather than the receiver and his hospitality was impossible to surpass let alone equal and was bestowed with such kindly charm that it was a joy to experience.

In October 1981, Bishop Vincent Logan, the new bishop of Dunkeld, made several important changes in the diocese. He invited Jimmie, who had become by now a popular figure in the diocese, to continue in the service of Dunkeld, given his precarious state of health. Jimmie was delighted to be asked to give his services. His health seemed to have really improved and so in October, 1981, he was offered incardination to the diocese, and was appointed parish priest of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour, Auchterarder.

As soon as he was appointed, Jimmie began to organise the parish and the Ecumenical movement in that area. An indication of his success in these spheres was the number of friends, both Catholic and non-Catholic, at his Masses of Requiem. As has already been related Jimmie died very suddenly on 7th May, 1982, but the Requiem Masses in St. Joseph's, Dundee, Our Lady of Perpetual Succour, Auchterarder, and finally at St. Joseph's, Blantyre, showed the love and affection with which Jimmie was held, no matter his clerical appointments.

Jimmie was a good and holy priest. He was ever faithful to his priestly vocation which he received and accepted at an age when he was both mature and experienced. The diocese of Dunkeld, and particularly the parishioners of St. Joseph's, Dundee, and Our Lady of Perpetual Succour, Auchterarder, were the last scenes of Jimmie's priestly life. His improved state of health had given rise to the hope of at least a few more years of devoted service in the sacred ministry that he had chosen. Jimmie himself was looking forward to an improvement in health and welcomed his new appointment. Never one to accept his limitations in health he eagerly anticipated his new rôle as the parish priest. But this was not to be. Jimmie's short but successful priestly life ended in Auchterarder, on Friday, 7th May 1982, at the early age of 52 years.

Requiem Masses were celebrated in Auchterarder, St. Joseph's, Dundee, and St. Joseph's, Blantyre, before the burial in St. Patrick's Cemetery, New Stevenston, Lanarkshire. Bishop Vincent Logan of Dunkeld and the large numbers of people and clergy who attended these Requiem Masses were ample proof of the respect and regard in which both clergy and people alike held Father James McGhie.

A small man physically may his great priestly soul rest in peace.

Rev. John O'Hara—13th June, 1982

The sudden death of Father John O'Hara on the Saturday morning of 13th June, 1982, saddened, but did not stun, his wide circle of friends. They had seen his health deteriorate for many years. The packed church at his Requiem Mass in St. Luke's was manifest proof of the love and esteem in which he was held. After the Mass concelebrated by His Grace the Archbishop and many priest friends, he was laid to rest in St. Peter's, Dalbeth.

John was born on 5th July, 1927, the son of James and Mary O'Hara, a well known Catholic family in St. Paul's, Shettleston. After his early school days at St. Paul's and St. Mungo's Academy, he entered Blairs in August, 1941, to commence his studies for the priesthood. Those who knew him there will remember his happy friendly nature, his balanced prowess in classroom and football field. After gaining an excellent Scottish Higher Leaving Certificate he was sent to continue his studies of Philosophy and Theology to the Seminaire St. Sulpice in Paris. It is very difficult for us to realise the hardships faced by these young Scots in the post-war Paris of '46. They often thanked the Red Cross and the generosity of their families for keeping them alive. John was liked by French and Scot alike—an accolade granted to few of that vintage. He progressed well in his studies and received the subdiaconate on 10th March, 1951, in the chapel of the Rue du Regard. The diaconate he received on the Holy Saturday in the parish church of St. Sulpice and so finally he was ordained to the priesthood by the late Archbishop Donald A. Campbell on 29th June, 1951, in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow.

After temporary curacies in St. John's, St. Bernadette's and St. Agnes', he spent three happy years among the people of the relatively new parish of St. Kessog in Balloch where his work with the youth was specially rewarding. Early in 1959 he was sent as assistant to Canon Boland in St. Patrick's, Anderston. If ever there was a happy appointment, it was this. Father O'Hara was a Glaswegian of the Glaswegians and the people of St. Patrick's, delighted to have one of their own, took him quickly to their hearts. He knew them and loved them from the youngest to the oldest. His work with the altar society, the Boys' Guild, the various confraternities will not be forgotten. His special pride and affection were reserved for the boys and girls of St. Patrick's Primary. Because of the failing health of Canon Boland and Father John Martin, Father O'Hara was eventually running the parish and so it was with mixed feelings that after almost nineteen years he accepted the charge of the Queenslie Estate. Once again he demonstrated his understanding and love for the people of this somewhat deprived area but the fact that there was no Catholic school, no possibility whatever of building a church or rectory weighed heavily on his mind and health. After several spells in hospital he accepted with joy the parish of St. Luke's in the Spring of 1981. His stay there was happy but short, dogged by illness until the Good Lord took him to Himself.

Many may have thought of John O'Hara as a happy, devil-may-care character with a confident streak verging on the aggressive. Those of us who knew him from our seminary days here and in France saw him as the devoted friend and priest, the keynote of whose character was compassion and understanding. He did not bother too much with the seemingly important people of this world. His love and sympathy were with the plain ordinary folk who are our guideline to Christ. His studies and many trips to France had left him with a deep love of French culture and more importantly with a vision of the Church which not all in this country were able to understand. He had great personal devotion to Our Lady and her Rosary, to the Holy Family. His love for the sick and the distressed, his close bond with children—any parishioner will testify to that. He had a deep personal bond with his fellow priests especially those who had studied with him and shared hundreds of thousands of miles in various parts of Europe and America. For us to agree on anything from liturgy to politics was impossible, for us to fall out was unthinkable. Every year we renew our clerical promises on the feastday of the Presentation of Our Blessed Lady. This year in the Lord's kindness he will join in with us from heaven.

Que le Seigneur reçoive son âme.

Rev. Daniel Moore—19th June, 1982

Father Daniel Moore was born at Doon, Co. Limerick, on September 24th, 1914, and educated at the local Christian Brothers' school. He entered St. Patrick's College, Carlow, in 1935 and was ordained priest for the Archdiocese of Glasgow on June 7th, 1942, by Bishop Keogh of Kildare and Leighlin.

The war was at its worst when Father Moore arrived in Glasgow and he received a temporary appointment to St. Joseph's, Tollcross. In December 1942, he was sent to Sacred Heart Church, Bridgeton. His devotion to the patron of that parish was deep and sincere. Through his systematic visitation and forthright preaching he succeeded in having the largest Women's Sacred Heart Confraternity in the city.

He was a priest of intense fervour, and as a comparatively young man he suffered a severe heart attack. Indisposed for a whole year he returned in 1955 to take up duty at St. Mary's, Duntocher. He took up his new appointment with zeal and never referred to his former illness. He remained in Duntocher until 1960, when he was transferred to St. Barnabas', Shettleston. He served that parish for eight years and was remembered for his courtesy and his promptness in attending to his public duties.

In 1968, he received charge of the parish of St. Bonaventure. As parish priest he devoted all his energy to his new responsibility and was respected and loved by the people during the six years he was in the parish. In 1974, he returned as parish priest to Sacred Heart Parish, Bridgeton. It was however a vastly changed parish from the one he left twenty years before. Gone were the people he knew. Nevertheless he served the parish with his old enthusiasm for three years, but failing health necessitated his retiral in 1977. He returned to his native Limerick and lived there for the remaining years of his life.

Father Moore was a priest of great loyalty, loyalty to his College and to the people he worked with. He never treated people casually and he was a sincere friend. He was a priest of great zeal, and a methodic worker. He was happiest in the company of his fellow priests. He loved his native land but he also loved the land of his adoption. He remained interested in and kept in touch with the many friends he made in Scotland. He died on June 19th, 1982.

Bishop Devine, Auxiliary Bishop of Glasgow, was principal concelebrant at the Requiem Mass and officiated at the interment. Father Moore was buried in his home town of Doon. May he rest in peace.

Most Sacred Heart of Jesus, have mercy on his soul.

Rev. Thomas Dillon—2nd August, 1982

On 2nd August, 1982, on the morning they were leaving for home after a hugely successful pilgrimage from the Diocese of Dunkeld, Father Tom Dillon, who had taken part in the pilgrimage as one of the sick pilgrims, passed away in the hospital of Lourdes. He had often expressed the wish that he would die in Lourdes!

Father Tom, as he was affectionately known to his fellow priest, the priest with the infectious laugh and the simplicity of the dove, spent the last eleven and a half years of his life, a victim of multiple sclerosis, in the care of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Wellburn Home, Dundee. He was 65 when he died.

Born at Abbeydorney in County Kerry, on 13th April, 1917, Father Tom began his education with the Christian Brothers at their school in Tralee. He began his studies for the priesthood at St. Brendan's Seminary, Killarney, graduated to Mount Melleray Seminary, Cappoquin, and, as a prospective student for the diocese of Dunkeld, moved, in 1938, to St. Peter's College, Bearsden, where he continued his theology studies until ordination.

Ordained by Bishop Michael O'Brien, Bishop of Kerry, on 14th June, 1942, in the Cathedral of St. Mary's, Killarney, he returned to Scotland soon after to take up his first appointment as assistant priest (or "curate" as they were called in the old days!) at St. Mary's, Forebank (Our Lady of Victories), Dundee, where he remained, a popular and lovable priest, until 1949. He then moved to be curate with Father Philip Donnelly, under the well-known parish priest, Canon Andrew McKinley, in St. Patrick's, Dundee, where, as well as looking after his "district", he chaplained the C.Y.M.S. and the Scouts of St. Patrick's.

His first appointment as parish priest came in 1955 when Bishop Hart asked him to take charge of St. Anne's, Carnoustie, a charge he sustained for nearly eight years. In 1963, he was appointed to the parish of St. John Vianney's, Alva, a parish he particularly loved, and it was during his time in Alva that the signs of his malady began to show their seriousness, notably the inability to retain his balance: most disturbing particularly in a man of such huge stature (he stood well over six feet and was built solidly). It was decided, on medical grounds, that he could no longer continue active parish life, and the Sisters of Wellburn kindly accepted to look after him. He retired there in 1970.

He had his little comfortable room in Wellburn, had the company of visiting priests and chaplains, and eventually the company of two retired Franciscans and a retired Marist Brother. His loud laugh could be heard resounding along the corridors. Despite the deterioration in his physical condition and lately increasing difficulty in speech, Father Tom retained his simple, happy character: everyone could be sure of a welcome to his room at any time. He looked forward to going away for his holidays, organised by the Multiple Sclerosis Society and of course his visit to Lourdes was, in the truest sense of the term, the high point of his life. Did he sense, one wonders, that the effort he made to undertake the long journey to the shrine of Our Lady would (as he hoped one day it would) be rewarded by the grace of a happy and peaceful death in the company of his Bishop and fellow-priests and the parishioners to whom he had devoted his priestly life?

He was buried in the Scots cemetery in Lourdes. May he rest in peace.

Right Rev. Mgr. John Canon McGuckin—10th August 1982

John McGuckin was the only child of John and Marie McGuckin of Mossend. He was born on 21st December, 1912. His father and mother doted on this special child of theirs with the cherubic face and puckish expression and somewhat spoiled him. As a result of this, he suffered a mild martyrdom at Mossend primary school and later at Our Lady's High, Motherwell. A Child of Prague in a sailor's suit was an irresistible target for the mischievous.

In spite of that, he came to Saint Mary's College, Blairs, on 12th August, 1926, singularly free from frustrations, chips on the shoulder, hang-ups, or whatever they are called in the jargon of today. He was by nature extrovert, friendly and generous to a fault. On the debit side he had a quick and sometimes violent temper and was easily provoked. But his anger did not last long, nor was he one to harbour spite.

John's piety was the solid sane piety of the day. It was a piety that was at home with the spirituality of Abbot Marmion, inspired by Belloc and Chesterton, and refreshed by Leacock and Wodehouse. He had a mind above the average and was bright at most things. Though no great athlete he was fond of games and sport. He was keen on all forms of entertainment in the college, and took part in concerts, plays and operas though he had no acting ability to speak of. He did have a fine singing voice and a love of music which he cultivated all his life. As a bonus to all this, he had a good sense of humour and a love of fun—two invaluable accessories in any seminarian's survival kit. Happily, he never lost these gifts. With the sixty-one other boys who set out to convert the world in 1926 he went through the difficult process of growing up without any crisis of identity or other psychological aberration. The cherubic features developed into the handsome face but the puckish expression and the ready smile remained.

His years of young manhood at Saint Peter's College, Bearsden, are more difficult to assess. The need for the "Renewal" that would be called for by the Second Vatican Council was already there as elsewhere; but at that time change of any kind was suspect: something to be resisted. Mgr. Forbes, the Rector of the college; always a strict man, became stricter with the years. Every smallest breach of the rules or complaint was interpreted as a sign of the times. And the times were evil. Stale bread was not the fault of Strachan the Baker: it was the will of God which the students failed to recognise.

John felt the oppression as much as anyone and, strangely for him, never got the resentment out of his system. Years later it was still evident when the subject came up in discussion. In this one instance he was unable to follow his beloved Chesterton and "Smile softly as men smile about the dead."

Harsh as the discipline was, it had its value and John benefited from it without any other side effects. In the world of philosophy and theology his fine mind blossomed. He relished and thrived on discussion and debate. The formalised liturgy of the time was the rock foundation of the strong spirituality which permeated his life and grew with the years. Those who knew him best could discern the ripening process that was going on inside him. The mustard seed had grown into a tree: the leavening process was well advanced. He never held any position of responsibility in Blairs or Bearsden, yet when he emerged from ordination in Saint Andrew's Cathedral on 29th June, 1937, he was, without question, the most mature priest of his year. He was ready for action.

His first assignment was to Saint Margaret's, Kinning Park where, under Dr. Laydon, the strict regime continued. Father McGuckin came to have a great regard for Dr. Laydon. He admired the man for practising the asceticism he preached and for his capacity for sheer hard work. Constant parochial visitation, the most demanding job in the secular priest's life, is the foundation of all good parochial life. Dr. Laydon set a high standard in this and gave a wonderful example himself. Then and for the rest of his active life the young priest followed that example.

Father McGuckin founded a Girls' Club in the parish which acquired a reputation far beyond the bounds of Kinning Park. It produced many fine marriages and vocations to the religious life. There are many women in different parts of the world who still remember that club with great affection and the handsome young priest who presided over it.

In 1939 the lights of Europe went out again. Confraternities, societies, clubs, disappeared overnight in the black-out or held on grimly, few in number, till the boys would come home again. The work went on somehow or other but many of the societies eventually became casualties of the conflict.

Father McGuckin was very devoted to his parents as well he might. He visited them regularly every week and in their latter years helped in every way he could to maintain them in the comfort he felt they were entitled to. This concern increased when his father died and his mother was left alone. It increased to the point of worry over the future. God answered his prayers in His own mysterious way. In 1944 he was moved from Saint Margaret's to Saint Paul's, Whiteinch, and received a presentation from the grateful people of Kinning Park. With the money they gave him he was able to provide his mother with the attention she needed till the day she died. When all his commitments were fulfilled he had exactly five pounds left. Never again would he question the workings of God's Providence.

The people of Whiteinch will remember Father McGuckin as a young priest mature beyond his years. He had developed into a fine preacher, sound in doctrine and eloquent in its presentation. Always a man of strong views he could erupt like a volcano on occasions and become the fiery orator. During his fifteen years in Saint Paul's he was chaplain, at one time or another, to each of the societies in the parish, and they all benefited from his talent for good organisation.

Father Bennett who was with him in Whiteinch describes him well. "He was a priest who had his priorities right and never allowed them to be submerged by other interests. His Mass and meditation, devotion to the Blessed Sacrament and Our Lady, were the most important things in his life and the source of his strength of purpose in carrying out his spiritual duties in the parish. John had a good appetite for work. He planned his day well and always seemed to have plenty of time for people as well as for the work in hand."

Perhaps he will best be remembered as the priest who brought to fruition the hopes and efforts of the people to provide a permanent church in place of the chapel on top of the school. With Father Quigley the parish priest in failing health, the burden of the work fell on Father McGuckin's shoulders. He was equal to the task. The imposing new building stands between the hall and the house on ground that once was a tree-lined garden alive with daffodils in the Spring. Purists may criticise the use of materials and confusion of styles; even question its significance for the period in which it was built. But it has been given popular acclaim and that is what matters most. The people paid for it and Father McGuckin did them proud.

When it came Father McGuckin's time for a parish Archbishop Campbell asked him, as a favour, to remain with "Old Dav" to the end. It was a measure of his affection for Father Quigley that he was only too happy to do so. It was another indication of his own unselfish nature.

After the death of Father Quigley in 1959, he was appointed to Saint Columba's, Hopehill Road, at that time one of the flourishing parishes in the north of the city.

There was a great come and go amongst the priests of the North-west in those years, and Father McGuckin carried on and increased the spirit of hospitality established by his predecessors. He was a man of many friends but, most of all, he loved the company of priests. Any priest was welcome to his house simply because he was a fellow-priest. Father Lavery, companion of his school-days and curate with him in Whiteinch, coming home from the Navy on leave, could count on a bed wherever John might be.

It was inevitable that a priest of his talents and integrity should be chosen for special work in the Archdiocese.

He was appointed to the Committee of the Catholic Truth Society shortly after he went to Saint Columba's and remained a member for seventeen years. He was confessor to the Bon Secours Nuns for six years, and religious examiner to schools as well during that period. In 1965 he was given the important post of chairman of the newly-formed Catholic Marriage Advisory Council in Glasgow, and held that post for fifteen years. For four years during that time he was also chairman of the Scottish Executive of the C.M.A.C.

As if that was not more than enough, he was chosen by Archbishop Scanlan to be his representative on the Glasgow Education Committee. At the same time he was appointed to the Board of Management for Bishopton and eventually became chairman of the Board.

In spite of this incredible work-load, he continued to be actively involved in the parochial life of Saint Columba's. He still had plenty of time for people—time to visit the people of the parish; time for the wide variety of people who came to him for advice; time to instruct converts; time to listen for an hour or two to old Margaret Davidson who was as deaf as a post and could not hear a word anyone said.

Towards the end of his eight years in Saint Columba's he thought of renovating the sanctuary of the church in keeping with the new liturgy. In the end, he decided against it because of the probable cost, and contented himself with the minimum of alterations. A happy decision. The bull-dozer was on its way to take up where Hitler had left off. In no time, Saint Columba's would cease to be a flourishing parish in the North of the City.

In 1967 Archbishop Scanlan brought him to the Cathedral as his administrator just in time to prepare for the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the church. This involved considerable renovation of the sanctuary as well as the organising of the celebration. Now an honorary canon of the chapter, he took it all in his stride.

He went further. The visionary in him saw the cathedral not just as a big church with few parishioners but as a spiritual haven in the city centre for the people of Glasgow and beyond. He made the dream come true. Exposition of the Blessed Sacrament from early morning till evening; frequent opportunities for confession throughout the day; Masses at the most suitable times for the people—all helped to create an atmosphere in which the harassed shopper, the busy worker, the stranger, could find peace for a while, and be at home in their Father's House.

The work of maintenance went on. Nothing was neglected. Later on he remodelled the approach to the cathedral and the porch to create more space and cut down draughts.

Still the jobs kept piling up. In 1970 he became at the same time a member of the Board of Governors for Langside College and Chairman of the Strathclyde University Chaplaincy Commission, posts which he held for four years. Father Columba Ryan got to know him in this connexion and was surprised to discover that the bluff strong looking man who took the chair was "as diffident as a small boy newly arrived at school, mortally afraid of letting the side down—appearing at first sight pompous in his dignity and, at the same time revealing a total lack of pretentiousness." In that mainly academic body he fulfilled his role with "impeccable tact, kindness and good humour."

In 1972 he was made a Prelate of Honour by Pope Paul VI.

At no time did he rest on his laurels. At no time did he complain that the burden was too great. Each new task was accepted as God's will for him. The college lesson had been assimilated even if the stale bread had not. He was at various times a member of the Glasgow "Save the Children Fund" Committee, a member of Glasgow U.N.I.C.E.F., a member of the Diocesan Council of Priests, a member of the Glasgow Catechetical Committee, Vicar Episcopal for Marriage, and a Patron of Hutcheson's Hospital.

With all that, he did not cease to be the priest of the people. Father Woods and Father Murphy who were with him till he retired from the Cathedral recall how he would return home from meeting after meeting only to go into the confessional box or give himself equally to the saints and sinners who flocked to him for advice or comfort. His interest was never superficial or casual with any of them, especially the less fortunate—people with drink problems, for instance. His work with them was recognised when he was asked to address the National Conference of Alcoholics Anonymous, an organisation he held in high regard.

In the June of 1980, Mgr. McGuckin suffered a severe stroke. For a time, it was doubtful if he would live and a gloomy prospect if he did. The unexpected happened. He survived and when, at last, he was able to focus his mind on the realities of his situation the volcano erupted again: this time with laughter. Just before he took the stroke he had been preparing a sermon for the profession of a Carmelite nun. The theme he had chosen to speak on was: "The unquestioned acceptance of the will of God." He saw the humour of it and, without hesitation, grasped the God-given opportunity to practise what he could not preach. Within six months he was back in the Cathedral having recovered his mobility to a surprising degree and the use of his speech perfectly. He never uttered a word of complaint or of self-pity. To all enquiries his answer was the same: "disgustingly healthy, thank God." He was happy to be back in business—his Father's business—back to make his daily hour before the Blessed Sacrament; back to the confessional; back to say Mass for the one o'clock gang.

One thing marred that happiness. He felt he was an unfair burden on the other priests in the house. By the end of the year, mainly for that reason, he decided to retire.

He came to live in Nazareth House, Cardonald, on 11th February, 1981, and for the short time that remained to him was happier than he had ever been before.

Retirement, for John, was not the peace of inactivity.

It meant for him more time to pray; more time to spend before the Blessed Sacrament; time for the sisters of the community who loved and respected him; time to make friends with the old and the young in the house; time for the confessional; for sick calls; time to visit people with the help of friends who counted it a privilege to drive him on his errands of mercy; time to visit old Margaret Davidson who was deaf as a post and was now in Hartwood Hospital.

The Marthas and Marys kept flocking to him for advice and consolation. No one was given short shrift; no one turned away. He seemed to draw strength from the very things that would have exhausted anyone of a lesser spiritual calibre.

Friday, 9th July, was a high moment of happiness for him. On that day he assisted at the solemn profession of Sister Mary of Carmel in Dumbarton. She was one of his converts to the Faith. Her family were present at the ceremony.

Another high moment came exactly a month later, 9th August, when he left for America to assist at the wedding of the daughter of a friend. He was in excellent spirits as he bade goodbye mainly because he was able to go it alone and not be a burden to anyone. He arrived safe and well at his destination. Next morning he took a heart attack and died an hour or two later.

He had wanted to be buried in his beloved Cathedral and there was a verbal agreement to that effect. In the circumstances, it was thought better that he should be buried in the United States where any relatives he had are settled.

And so, his body lies at the foot of the statue of Saint Joseph in the cemetery of Saint Teresa's Motherhouse, Germantown, New York—another convent where Monsignor John McGuckin was very much at home.

So ended the life on earth of a priest who did more than most for the Archdiocese of Glasgow and the Church in Scotland. He flew out of our lives that Monday morning like Elias taken from us in a chariot, leaving behind him a mantle that few could don and fewer still could wear.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Thomas McLaughlin—26th August, 1982

Father Thomas McLaughlin, parish priest of St. Mary's, Stirling, died suddenly in Stirling on 26th August, 1982, in the 71st year of his age and the 46th of his priesthood. The principal celebrant of the Funeral Mass in St. Mary's, Stirling, on 31st August following, prior to the interment in Grand Sable Cemetery, Grangemouth, was His Eminence Cardinal Gordon Gray, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh. At the Mass the following panegyric was delivered by Father James M. Rae:

In the preface of the Mass for holy men and women the Church invites us to praise God who "renews the Church in every age by raising up men and women outstanding in holiness, living witnesses of God's unchanging love. They inspire us by their heroic lives and help us by their constant prayers to be the living sign of God's saving power". If this is true of the outstandingly heroic saints who are canonised, it is also true in its own way of those whom St. Paul calls the saints, the ordinary Christian men and women in their various callings who strive to follow Christ our Lord and who persevere to the end. I can't help feeling that while in offering this holy Mass we are commending the soul of Father Tom McLaughlin to the loving mercy of God, we are also meant to look at his life and take courage from the example he has set us.

Although, naturally, we mourn our loss at his passing, we ought nevertheless to rejoice in our gain from a life that has achieved so much. God's Church has indeed been renewed by the life and example of this wholehearted, lively, prayerful and truly pastoral priest. The evident joy and conviction of his faith, his friendly good humour and his great love for people were a constant source of encouragement to all of us who were privileged to know him.

I should think his outstanding quality was loyalty. He was loyal to the faith and grace of his baptism, to the parental and scholastic instruction of his childhood days, to the colleges—Blairs and Coutances—which nurtured his vocation. And how faithful he was to that Sulpician discipline which he rightly regarded as the sheet anchor of his priestly life, for at the core of it was a deep love for Our Lord in the Blessed Sacrament and a childlike simplicity in his devotion to Our Lady and St. Joseph. He was loyal to people—to those entrusted to his care, and especially to those who were in any need or difficulty. He was loyal to superiors and subordinates alike and his brother priests were always welcome guests in his house. But above all, he was loyal to Christ his Master—and he was loyal to the very end. Not for him the treading of two paths; not for him the listless heart without faith or the will that would not endure: not for him the specious novelties of thought that would masquerade as truth; his teaching was ever sound, the fruit of prayerful submission to the teaching authority of the Church. What he taught he taught without fear or favour. His yes was yes and his no was no, witnessing with uncompromising fidelity to the unchanging love and fidelity of God himself.

For forty-five years he served God in the priesthood—as a curate in this very parish and in St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, and later as parish priest in Falkland, Bo'ness and here in St. Mary's. The harvest of his labours is known only to God, but the presence of so many people here today and yesterday evening and the widespread shock evoked by his death are eloquent testimony to the extent of his priestly influence which had led and inspired so many to faith, to conversion and to a more generous and loving service of God and man. Such fruits are not reaped without sacrifice, and his sacrifice was to give his life unreservedly to his priestly vocation. "The grain of wheat must fall into the ground and die if it is to yield a rich harvest". Not that Father Tom ever stopped to count the cost: he was far too cheerful a giver for that.

And so as we come to offer the supreme act of thanksgiving in the Eucharistic sacrifice of the Risen Lord, we have every reason to praise and thank God for the effective working of his power and grace in the life of Father Tom and when in Holy Communion we receive the tangible pledge of our risen life with Christ, we can rejoice and be glad that for Father Tom the pledge has surely given way to the reality. May that Easter conviction bring real consolation and lasting comfort to his dear brother, his other relatives, to his many friends and to all who mourn his untimely death. May he rest in peace.

Rev. Stanislaus Harbison—26th September, 1982

Stanislaus Harbison was born on 23rd December, 1923, the youngest of six children, in Magherafelt, Co. Derry, where his father was a bank official. Whilst he was still very young the family moved to Belfast where his father died in 1932.

He was educated in Belfast by the Irish Christian Brothers. Leaving school he got a job in Belfast. After a year or two he decided to study for the priesthood. He took the first steps towards that goal when he went to the Salesian College in Ballinakill to complete his secondary education.

He entered the novitiate of the Praemonstratensian Canons at Holy Trinity Abbey, Kilmacrott, and was ordained there on 22nd July, 1953.

His first years in the priesthood were spent in the abbey, where for a number of years both before and after his ordination he was assistant cantor.

In 1958 on the invitation of Bishop McGee the Order returned to Galloway diocese with which it had strong pre-Reformation connections.

Father Harbison came to Scotland in 1959. His first experience of parish life was in St. Joseph's, Kilmarnock, with the late Canon Matt Littleton. Later he joined his Confreres in the south of the diocese looking after Annan, Gretna, Langholm and Lockerbie.

In 1961 he was appointed priest in charge of Gretna and remained there until 1971. In that year Bishop McGee asked the Order to take charge of the parish of Our Lady of Mount Carmel in Kilmarnock and in May Father Harbison was appointed parish priest.

In 1974 he was transferred to Millport, Isle of Cumbrae, and some time later was incardinated in the Diocese of Galloway.

He was in Millport until 1982 when he was asked to go to Lockerbie. Shortly after his arrival there he became ill and notwithstanding all the care and attention he received his health continued to deteriorate and he died in hospital in Dumfries on Sunday, 26th September.

A large number of his fellow priests concelebrated his funeral Mass in Holy Trinity Church, Lockerbie, the principal celebrant being Bishop Maurice Taylor. Among the concelebrants was the former Bishop of Galloway, Right Rev. Joseph McGee.

Father Harbison's body was taken to Ireland for burial and lies in St. Fintan's Cemetery, Co. Dublin.

He was a gentle, a very gentle soul. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Peter Provost Kaye—12th November, 1982

The Very Rev. Peter Provost Kaye, parish priest of St. John Vianney's, Alva, died in Alva on Friday, 12th November, 1982, at the age of 71. He was born in Perth on 21st June, 1911. He received his primary education in Perth and entered Blairs College in August 1925 to begin his studies for the priesthood. He soon became known as the outstanding sportsman of his class and in 1926, at the beginning of his second year, his skill as a footballer was recognised when he had the unusual distinction of being promoted at such an early age to what was then known as "the big pitch". That same year he became the youngest member of the first eleven and for the next four years he was an automatic choice for the first team—a much coveted honour in those days. He also distinguished himself on the cricket field and on the tennis court and was recognised by his contemporaries as the best all-rounder on the playing fields of the college.

In October 1930 Peter was one of seven students who went to the Ecole Apostolique at Saint Lô in Normandy. After a year in Saint Lô he proceeded to the Sulpician Seminary at Issy-les-Moulineaux on the outskirts of Paris, and in 1935 after having received the subdiaconate he went for his final year to the seminary in the Rue du Regard, Paris.

He returned home in June 1936 and on 21st of that month—his twenty-fifth birthday—he was ordained priest in St. Mary's, Kinnoull, by the late Bishop John Toner, Bishop of Dunkeld.

His first appointment after ordination was to the parish of SS. Peter and Paul, Dundee, where his parish priest was Father Joseph McGee who later became Bishop of Galloway. In 1948 he was appointed parish priest of Dunblane where he remained for eight years. In 1956 he was appointed to Arbroath and in 1963 he was transferred to St. Columba's, Dundee. His final appointment was to St. John Vianney's, Alva in 1974 and there he remained until his death in 1982.

In 1974 he was installed as a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter and in 1981 he was appointed Provost of the Chapter.

Although he never sought the limelight Canon Peter was loved and respected by his parishioners in every parish in which he served, as a conscientious and zealous priest whose first concern was always the welfare of his parishioners. The first sign that all was not well was a slight heart attack which he suffered while on a golfing holiday in Troon. Fortunately he recovered completely and was able to lead a normal life for quite a number of years. In fact as recently as 1980 while visiting some of his old classmates in America he took part in a golf tournament.

It was towards the end of 1981 that his health showed serious signs of deterioration and he was never again to be fully fit. In the Spring of 1982 he was admitted to Stirling Infirmary for an operation and later transferred for treatment to the Western Infirmary in Glasgow. After some weeks there he was sent back to Stirling where he suffered a slight stroke. Once more he rallied and was able to go for a few weeks convalescence before returning home early in September. On the afternoon of 12th November he went to Stirling Infirmary for examination under a general anaesthetic and on returning home he went straight to bed. About 9 p.m. he had another heart attack and died very peacefully half an hour later.

The Requiem Mass was celebrated in St. John Vianney's, Alva on the following Tuesday. In the unavoidable absence of Bishop Logan the Principal Celebrant was Bishop Hart who had been Canon Kaye's Bishop for a number of years.

The funeral took place in Perth and Canon Peter was laid to rest beside his parents and his only sister Rita. May he rest in peace.
