John Paul II "I intend to entrust a special mandate to the Pontifical Mission Societies to keep Mission Awareness alive in the People of God."

Society for Propagation of the Faith

This Society provides each missionary bishop with a basic grant to run his diocese and special grants to build churches, schools and hospitals and pay his catechists and teachers.

Society of St. Peter, Apostle

This Society builds seminaries and novitiates in mission lands and subsidises the education of each student.

Society for Missionary Children

Through this Society our young mission aware people are encouraged to help children in need in the many hospitals, clinic, schools, nurseries and refugee camps administered by the Church in mission lands.

These three Societies cover every aspect of missionary life and provide an ideal source from which to 'Help the Missions'.

THE SUE RYDER FOUNDATION

Charity Registration No: 222291

FOUNDER:
LADY RYDER
OF WARSAW
CMG, OBE

The Sue Ryder Foundation was established by Lady Ryder during the post-war years after she had been doing social relief work on the Continent. Its purpose was, and is, the relief of suffering on a wide scale by means of personal service to the sick and disabled everywhere, irrespective of race, religion or age, and thus serves as a Living Memorial of all those who suffered or died in the two World Wars and to those who undergo persecution or die in defence of human values today.

At present there are 24 Sue Ryder Homes in Britain already open or in the course of being established with many more, including medical teams, in countries overseas. In 1987, the first Home was opened in Scotland at Binny House, Ecclesmachan, West Lothian and a further one was opened at Marchmont, Greenlaw, Berwickshire in the late of 1989. Hopefully, still more will be established. The patients cared for by the Foundation include those with cancer, both convalescent and terminal, those with Huntingtons disease, the physically handicapped, the elderly, and the mentally ill. Domiciliary visiting and bereavement counselling are also undertaken from some Homes. Help is desperately needed, whether by way of a legacy, deed of covenant or donation in finance or kind. Also, the Foundation will be pleased to advise companies whose employees wish to contribute via the Give As You Earn Scheme.

The Catholic Directory for Scotland

EDITOR'S NOTE

The Editor wishes to express his gratitude to the Publishers and to his readers for their forbearance in the grave illness which prevented his completion of the editing of the 1993 issue of the Directory and seeing it through the press. He is grateful for all the kindness shown to him and especially for the prayers offered on his behalf. He is glad to have been able, last Easter Sunday (and since), to offer Holy Mass for all those who have been so kind to him. He looks forward to continuing to provide this present service to the Church in Scotland.

At the same time, he wishes to express his gratitude to Mr. James Darragh, not only for the historical article to mark the tercentenary of the appointment of the first Vicar Apostolic in Scotland, but also for his many valuable contributions to the historical sections of the Directory over the years and for much good advice. Finally, he offers his thanks to Father James Lawlor for agreeing to mark the opening of Scotus College by providing, as a record for future generations, the short history of the former Scottish seminaries.

THE CHURCH IN SCOTLAND

THE EPISCOPAL INTERREGNUM IN SCOTLAND: 1603-1694

James Darragh

This year marks the three hundredth anniversary of the appointment of the first resident bishop in Scotland after the reformation. The ancient hierarchy had ended with the death on 24th April 1603 of James Beaton, archbishop of Glasgow, aged 80, in exile, absent from his diocese for over forty years. For all practical purposes, however, the hierarchy came to an end with the death of the last pre-reformation Catholic bishop actually resident in Scotland, Robert Crichton, bishop of Dunkeld, who died towards the end of March 1585. Deprived of his See in August 1571 he had been restored in August 1584 for what proved to be the last year of his life. After his death it was to be one hundred and twelve years before another Catholic bishop would arrive in Scotland in July 1697.

This long vacancy was the subject of much adverse contemporary comment. Two writers summed up the views of many at that time. Alexander Leslie (1650-1702), reporting to Propaganda at the end of his general inspection of the Scottish mission (1681), concluded: "Had we preserved the episcopal succession we should have had labourers for the different provinces, heresy would have been less prevalent, the number of catholics would not have daily diminished, many converts would have been made, and, briefly, ecclesiastical discipline would have flourished." This view was endorsed fifty years later by Thomas Innes (1663-1744), the historian from whom The Innes Review, the journal of the Scottish Catholic Historical Association, takes its name: "Nothing had contributed so much to the almost complete extinction of the catholic religion in Scotland as the mistake that was made in not continuing the episcopal succession."

Footnote: This article, written to mark the tercentenary of the appointment of the first Vicar Apostolic for Scotland, takes the place of the customary historical introduction, publication of which is to be resumed next year.

In 1598 the first of the English archpriests was appointed, Scotland being nominally subject to his authority. Insofar as any separate concern was felt for Scotland, two events in the Spring of 1603 must have struck Rome as providential: the union of the Scottish and English crowns in the person of James VI of Scotland in March 1603, and the death of Beaton which followed a month later. The new royal style proclaimed on 20th October 1604 of "King of Great Britain, France and Ireland" was probably taken in Rome as authority for assuming that Scotland and England were now to be regarded as one country; certainly, the letter of 11th June 1606 of Pope Paul V to King James addressed him as "King of Great Britain." For the moment, at least, the two countries were treated as one by Rome.

Rome, however, was not long left in doubt of what Scots Catholics wanted. As early as 1610 William Douglas, tenth earl of Angus, in exile in Paris, "earnestly desired that a bishop might be sent to Scotland as a means absolutely necessary for uniting the missionaries of several parties, and removing dissensions, which was a great hindrance to the progress of religion." Scotland, at that time, was in effect two nations, the Gaelic speaking north and west, including the Islands, and the Scots speaking lowlands. Insofar as the Church existed in any organised way it was through the overseas colleges at Paris (1325), Douai (1576), Rome (1600) and Madrid (1627). Only Paris was in the charge of the secular clergy, the other three being in the control of Jesuits.

The mission in the lowlands was supplied by regular clergy—Benedictines, Capuchins, Franciscans, Jesuits, and Minims. Only rarely did secular priests work on the mission. One such was Robert Philip (1585-1647), from Sanquhar in the diocese of Glasgow; ordained in Rome, he came to the mission in 1613, and a few months later was betrayed by his own father, tried in Edinburgh, and sentenced to death. But he was reprieved and banished; he later joined the Oratorians, and in 1626 arrived in London as one of the chaplains of Queen Henrietta Maria, wife of Charles I. Ten years later he was suggested to Rome by the nuncio in Paris as bishop for Scotland. On the other hand one regular in the lowlands, [St] John Ogilvie S.J., was martyred. He too was betrayed, sentenced to death, and hanged in Glasgow in 1615.

By 1623 there was a change of mood in Rome. Against the advice of his cardinals Gregory XV appointed on 23rd March William Bishop as vicar apostolic for England and Scotland, but with Scotland as a separate country. A few Scots resident in Rome appealed to Cum universi, dated 13th March 1192, and, as a result, the Pope did instruct the new bishop to refrain from exercising any jurisdiction in Scotland. But William Bishop was dead within the year and there the matter rested. But the pontificate of the new Barberini pope later in that year carried the change in Rome's attitude to Scotland a stage further, the fruit perhaps of his time as nuncio in Paris when he had favoured restoring bishops in Britain. Within a month of his election Urban VIII formally commissioned in September 1623 the Irish Franciscan mission to the Hebrides and West Highlands which had begun in 1619; and within two months of his coronation he appointed in November 1623 his nephew Francesco Barberini as cardinal protector of Scotland, significantly protector regni Scotiae.

A second vicar apostolic, Richard Smith, was appointed in 1625 to England and, again, to Scotland. This was actively opposed by the Jesuits. The conflict between Propaganda and the Jesuits and, in their turn, between the Jesuits and the secular clergy was a marked and continuing feature of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. There were three sources of disagreement: in Rome, Propaganda considered itself the proper source for granting faculties to priests on the mission while Jesuits refused to accept the authority of the Congregation and continued to obtain theirs from the Jesuit Father General; in those abroad colleges in the charge of the Jesuits they were suspected of suborning the brightest boys to join the Society, despite the mission oath taken by each student; while at home their mission was to the landed gentry and they were accused to Propaganda (by the Capuchins) of not allowing those to attend Mass who did not come to them for confession, and they did not allow the poor to attend Mass as they feared they would be betrayed. The Jesuits, for their part, were opposed to the appointment of bishops as intruding on their sense of mission while they could also reasonably claim that, to all intents, they were the greater part of the missionary effort.

Smith, the second English vicar apostolic, very early overreached himself in the authority he claimed with the result that a general Congregation of the Holy Office held on 16th December 1627 authorised the nuncio in Paris to remind Smith that he was not bishop of England ma semplice Delegato con facoltà limitate e revocabile a beneplacito del Pontifice—a useful working definition of the office of vicar apostolic. Smith, however, continued to flaunt the exercise of his powers much to the annoyance of Rome; eventually in the middle of one of his periodical disputes he went to France in 1631 to see the nuncio, and hoping to add weight to his case offered his resignation which, much to his discomfiture, was immediately accepted. England, like Scotland, was now without a bishop, the vacancy lasting fifty four years until 1685.

So far as Scotland was concerned the success story of those years was the work of the Irish Franciscans now centred at Bonamargy in Antrim, only a short distance from the Scottish coast. So striking were the number of conversions—about ten thousand—and baptisms that some Scots priests safely in exile in Rome protested they could not be accurate but diligent enquiry by Propaganda proved that the figures were correct. In addition to the work of the missionaries in Scotland many hundreds from the Islands regularly made the journey to Bonamargy each year to renew their faith.

Propaganda discussed in Congregation on 9th July 1630 the necessity for the appointment of a vicar apostolic for lowland Scotland but this was opposed by the procurator of the Jesuits. The matter was referred to a meeting of the procurators of the other religious orders with missionaries in Scotland. Further attempts to reopen the matter were equally unsuccessful. On 5th June 1634 the Congregation discussed the restoration of the See of Sodor for the Franciscan mission to the Hebrides. In 1637 the nuncio in Paris proposed to Propaganda that Robert Philip of Sanquhar be appointed vicar apostolic of lowland Scotland; and at the same time the suggestion was discussed that Ranald MacDonald (1602—? still alive in 1651), a convert who had studied at the Irish College, Louvain, and had been ordained at Douai in 1628, coming to the mission in the following year, should be appointed bishop in the Western Isles.

Propaganda again returned to the subject in 1640. On 20th August a proposal was considered that Patrick Hegarty OFM (?—1647) should be appointed bishop in the Isles with the title of Sodor. Hegarty had worked in the Islands for seven years and for a further nine years had directed the activities of the Irish mission from its headquarters at Bonamargy in Antrim. Incredibly, the decision was that the matter should be delayed until Hegarty had proved himself! Two years later, when Hegarty was in prison, Propaganda offered his post as prefect of the Highland mission to Hugh Semple S.J. (1596-1664) in Madrid but he, in reply on 8th October 1642, urged upon Propaganda the case for the appointment of Hegarty as bishop. The latter was not released from prison until 1645 and two years later he was dead. The mission was re-established under Edmund McCann OFM on 22nd January 1647 but no details of its work have survived. In any case the route from Antrim to the Islands was effectively closed in 1650 when Archibald Campbell, the covenanting marquis of Argyll (1598-1661), planted a dozen lowland presbyterian lairds on extensive tacks across Kintyre.

In lowland Scotland the situation was bleak. The historian, Thomas Innes, gives a list of twenty five secular priests who worked there at various times between 1613 and 1637, but very few remained for any length of time. The proposal in 1637 to appoint Robert Philip bishop in Scotland had come to nothing. By this date, so far as lowland Scotland was concerned, the lack of secular clergy appears to have led to a failure of will in Propaganda. In the words of Malcolm Hay: "Instead of adopting vigorous measures to re-organise and finance the mission, the Congregation of Propaganda kept writing to the nuncios in France and Flanders, entreating them to use their influence in the Courts of Europe to obtain some alleviation of the persecution in Scotland." But to no purpose. By the late 1640s only the Jesuits were left on the mission, and of them their superior wrote in March 1648 "they were then, if ever, the most truly poor companions of Jesus, having scarcely where to lay their heads."

In this dark night of persecution one of the first of a new generation of secular priests returned home to Scotland. William Ballantyne, born in 1618, son of a presbyterian minister, educated Edinburgh University, a convert in France, studied at the Scots College, Rome, ordained priest 3rd December 1645, prefect of studies at the Scots College, Paris, 1646-48, arrived in Scotland in January 1649 "immediately before the late King's unhappy murder." He was, providentially, a man of action. Having spent some time surveying the mission he returned to Paris—significantly, to Paris, for the Scots College there was the only one in Europe not under the control of the Jesuits—and arranged a meeting in 1650 of five other Scots secular clergy living in France. Under his direction it was agreed that Propaganda should be petitioned for the appointment of a bishop and for the payment of subsidies to missionaries. In addition, one of their number, Will Leslie (1620-1707) was sent as their agent to Rome, an inspired choice for he was to remain there for over fifty years during which he exercised more influence in the City than any Scotsman before or since. Robert Gall, S.J. superior of the Jesuit mission in Scotland, soon heard the rumours that Ballantyne had petitioned for a bishop and, really alarmed, told Adam Gordon, S.J., who had succeeded him as rector of Douai, that their "drift is to have a bishop and by his authority to derogate our privileges and thus frustrate the fruit of our labour."

There is, however, no evidence that Jesuit opposition on this occasion played any part in Propaganda's decision not to appoint a bishop but instead to create a prefecture apostolic, 13th October 1653, with Ballantyne as first prefect. This closed for the moment any further discussion on the appointment of a bishop but it did not deter Will Leslie in his favoured position as a member of the Barberini household and his official position as archivist to Propaganda from urging, in season and out of season, the case for a bishop in Scotland; nor, for that matter did it dissuade the Jesuits from continuing their opposition to such a move, an opposition which, in the absence of a bishop in England, they continued to show towards the Dean and Chapter there. A request by Ballantyne in 1657 that he be given jurisdiction over all secular priests in Scotland was refused by Propaganda, a decision which was probably influenced by the fact that he was in prison in England at that time.

The years which followed were bad years. In the words of Alexander Winchester (1625-1708), who had succeeded as prefect in 1662, it was impossible "to organise the mission for want of priests." All through the 1660s the number of secular priests in lowland Scotland varied between three and five; in the Highlands there was only one, the heroic Francis White, C.M. (1620-79), sent to Scotland by [St] Vincent de Paul in 1651. Not all Scots priests felt a call to the mission in such difficult times; in 1668, for example, there were five seculars on the mission and eleven resident in France and Rome. It was in this same year that Propaganda took the first step which led ineluctably to the appointment of a bishop thirty years later: on 13th March 1668 it was decided to have a general inspection of missions in Scotland. Unfortunately, for the lack of a suitable visitor, ten years passed before one could be appointed. At this time Propaganda revived the Irish mission to the Highlands and Western Islands and on 17th September 1669 [St.] Oliver Plunket, recently nominated archbishop of Armagh, was additionally appointed prefect of the Highlands and Islands and continued as such until his martyrdom in 1681.

At last in 1677 Rome felt able to proceed with the general inspection of the mission. To undertake this task Alexander Leslie (1650-1702), a relative of Will Leslie, was appointed, with instructions to make every priest in Scotland show his credentials and faculties, and to inform Propaganda of them. In the event, the Jesuit superior refused to show his and he, for his part, asked to see those of Leslie himself. The latter spent nearly two years visiting every priest and mission in Scotland, travelling always on foot. He started in June 1678 from Glenaldale with Robert Munro (1645-1704), who at that time was stationed in Moidart, as companion and interpreter.* For the rest of the summer they visited the mainland missions of the west and most of the Islands. By the autumn Leslie had retired to Gordon Castle, weary and footsore. The next year was occupied by visits to the lowland missions, interrupted by illness in Montrose and by arrest in Stirling where he records he was suffering from "soare legs." He arrived in Edinburgh towards the end of the year and, in June 1680, left for Rome which he reached on 2nd December. He presented his report to Propaganda in January 1681. This was discussed in March and, with one exception, immediately approved. Leslie was sent back to Scotland with faculties to put his recommendations into practice. He reached Aberdeen on 20th August 1681.

* In their joint pastoral letter, February 1923, on "The Scottish Martyrs", the bishops of Scotland included Robert Munro in their first list of four candidates. The others were John Ogilvie S.J., canonised 1976; George Douglas, beatified 1987; and Marion Walker to whose home in Glasgow John Ogilvie S.J. came in 1614.

The recommendations made by Leslie principally numbered eight, of which the two most important in the context of this article were (1) missionaries should have fixed places of residence in fixed districts; and (2) a general superior should be appointed with the power of appointing to office all seculars and regulars. The decrees of Propaganda dated 4th March 1681 were mainly administrative and disciplinary but they did enact that missionaries should be confined to a settled territory with an order that they should not work outside it. On the matter of a bishop Propaganda was silent but events were to show that, given the opposition of the Jesuits and also, rather surprisingly, most of the secular clergy who were now growing in numbers (14 in 1682), its policy was to move one step at a time.

The first step was to disengage the opposition of the secular clergy from that of the Jesuits. In 1684 Lewis Innes (1651-1738), principal of the Scots College, Paris, was sent to Scotland by Propaganda "to arrange for an annual meeting of the clergy." This was much opposed but by July he had gathered together in Dundee two delegates from each of the three parts of the mission—north (Alexander Leslie, David Burnet), south (George Gordon, John Irvine), and Highland (names of delegates not known). The result of the meeting was to issue a decree establishing an annual meeting of the clergy. The first took place shortly afterwards at Gordon Castle with the prefect, Alexander Winchester, presiding. Unfortunately no record exists of what the meeting discussed but given Lewis Innes' strong support for the appointment of a bishop it seems safe to speculate that Leslie's report to Propaganda and the need for a bishop and fixed places of residence were included.

Events took a sharp turn in the following year. James VII succeeded as King on 6th February 1685 and reigned until 11th December 1688. In England catholic matters moved quickly. As early as August 1685 John Leyburn was appointed vicar apostolic of England, and arrived in October and took up lodgings in Whitehall. He lost no time in intervening in Scottish affairs. On 19th February 1686 he wrote to Propaganda recommending the prefect, Winchester, as bishop in Scotland where two brothers, James Drummond, fourth earl of Perth (1648-1716), and John Drummond, first earl of Melfort (1649-1714), both recent converts, now practically ruled Scotland, the elder as chancellor and the younger as secretary.

Their views were soon canvassed. Two influential voices now openly took up the cause for a bishop—Lewis Innes and Abbot Placid Fleming O.S.B. adding their support to that of Will Leslie in Rome. Innes in Paris had been agitating for some time for a bishop and in 1686 was able to write that the King and his two ministers, the chancellor and the secretary for Scotland, were favourable to an appointment. Unfortunately, the favoured candidate flatly refused. This was Thomas Placid Fleming O.S.B. (1642-1720), abbot of Ratisbon. He was born at Kirkoswald, Ayrshire, October 1642, educated Edinburgh, a naval officer, convert in Dublin 1665, entered Scots College, Paris, 1667, then to Ratisbon 1668, ordained priest 1671, and elected abbot December 1672, and remained abbot for forty seven years. This gifted, energetic, determined man was, in the judgement of Mark Dilworth, the greatest man produced by the Scottish monasteries in the course of their existence. But he had committed himself to his community at Ratisbon and he rejected any prospect of being bishop in Scotland.

Fleming spent part of 1686 in London, no doubt canvassing his interests in royal circles. By the end of the year he had made up his mind on one matter and, having refused to be a candidate for Scotland, turned his formidable powers to the support of Lewis Innes and those of the secular clergy who wanted a bishop. The Benedictines, he said, had always been the best friends of the clergy and their truest helpers in their necessity. But Innes had no mind to accept and also refused to allow his name to be considered. At the same time, December 1686, he told Lord Melfort that at the annual clergy meeting earlier in the year four names had been suggested: Winchester (the prefect), Will Leslie (in Rome)—both too old according to Innes—Abbot Fleming (who had already refused), and David Burnet (1638-95) who was "pious, learned, prudent and laborious."

By this time one of the purposes of the annual meeting of the clergy had become clear—to attend to the appointment of a bishop. The 1686 meeting which had produced this list of names had been presided over by David Burnet in the absence of the prefect. At the April 1687 meeting at Gordon Castle a terna was drawn up although there was still some opposition among the clergy to the appointment: Winchester (prefect, and Dean of the Chapel Royal at Holyrood), Burnet (chaplain at Holyrood) and Alexander Leslie (who had been visitor in 1678). At the April 1688 meeting the petition formerly made for a bishop was renewed. A letter to this effect was signed by Winchester and eight missionaries, and sent to Will Leslie in Rome. However, the opposition among some of the clergy continued and at a further meeting at Gordon Castle in June at which twelve priests were present the project for securing a bishop had still to be actively canvassed.

With one bishop appointed in England, and an additional three about to be named, the Jesuits had come to accept that a bishop in Scotland was inevitable. Their candidate was Winchester, the prefect, dismissed by Lewis Innes as too old and, as the years were soon to show, a sick man worn out by his years on the mission. If Winchester were appointed said one contemporary wit every Jesuit would be a vicar general. The truth was, as Mark Dilworth has observed, the Jesuits now opposed any candidate hostile to themselves while those pressing for an appointment were opposed to anyone favoured by the Jesuits.

At last, in July 1688, the matter appeared to have been brought to a conclusion when James VII, assuming that he still enjoyed the rights given by the papal indult of 1487, as confirmed by those of 1519 and 1535, exercised his royal patronage to nominate two bishops for Scotland, Lewis Innes and Thomas Nicolson. Innes, principal of the Scots College, Paris, since 1682, had previously refused to allow his name to be considered while Nicolson (1645-1718), a missionary in Glasgow, was a surprise choice since he had been ordained priest only two years and had been on the mission for only six months. He came, however, on both sides from two influential families in the north east, the Nicolsons and the Abercrombies, heavily invested with seventeenth century members of Parliament. His brother George was member of Parliament from 1661-63, professor of civil law at Aberdeen 1673, and a Lord of Session, 1682, with the judicial title of Lord Kemnay. Thomas Nicolson himself, born 1645, brought up an episcopalian, educated at Aberdeen University, had been a regent [i.e. professor] at Glasgow University from 1666-81, with his chair in mathematics, Greek and philosophy. He resigned in 1681 after he refused to take the oath prescribed by the Test Act of that year. He was a convert in 1682, prefect of studies at Padua, ordained priest there in 1686, and returned to Scotland in December 1687. He was stationed on the mission in Glasgow when he was nominated a bishop in Scotland.

These were heady days for catholics in Scotland. The anti-catholic atmosphere had lightened in the early 1680s. Now a catholic King reigned in London and his two first men in Scotland were recent converts. Royal patronage excited the better judgement of those so long accustomed to secrecy and persecution. And there were more priests now, a total of 46 on the mission: 17 seculars, 8 Benedictines, and 21 Jesuits. In the north all was activity. In Aberdeen Trinity church had been taken over and opened in 1688 for Catholic services. There was talk of building a new church in the Enzie while there were large congregations in Angus and the Mearns. Even in presbyterian Glasgow a small private chapel was opened.

At the beginning of 1686 the Edinburgh mob rioted outside the home of Lord Perth while Mass was being said; but by the end of the year Mass was celebrated solemnly on Christmas Day in the chapel of Holyrood. The presbyterian congregation in the old abbey church was given notice to quit so that the building could be made ready for Catholic worship in charge of a religious order, possibly the Benedictines who thought in terms of a staff of six priests. Meanwhile Holyrood was refurbished and redecorated as a catholic chapel under Winchester, the prefect, as Dean of the Chapel Royal and Almoner to the King, with at least three seculars and two Jesuits as chaplains. There was, says a contemporary, an imprudent flaunting of full catholic ceremonial. A school was established. Jesuits walked the streets in full clericals. Hubris hung in the air like incense. And, as in another world, in the wynds and closes of the city, the Edinburgh mob nursed its wrath and bided its time.

The "Glorious Revolution" was not made in Scotland but news from England soon reached the north. The landing of William of Orange at Torbay and the flight on 11th December of the King from London was enough, and on 20th December 1688 the Edinburgh mob rose, seven hundred of the citizens and six hundred of the town guard, and attacked Holyrood. They sacked the palace, especially the chapel, and books, altar vessels, and vestments went to the fire. The abbey church, ready for consecration, was destroyed. When it had done the mob turned its fury on the houses of known catholics in the city and the neighbourhood. Everywhere throughout the lowlands all catholic religious worship ceased and the clergy took shelter where they could, at best skulking (as the word was) in the north, at worst in prison.

Among those arrested was Thomas Nicolson who was imprisoned in Stirling Castle. Fortunately he was soon released as early as April 1689 on the bond of his brother, Lord Kemnay, and banished from Scotland. He settled at Dunkirk as chaplain to English Benedictine nuns. For the next few years his policy appears to have been to attempt to escape the mitre by letting it be known that he was ill and unwilling. Realising that the royal nomination might yet take effect the Jesuits, for their part, appear to have decided to make a friend of him. Writing to the Father General of the Society on 26th January 1691 Nicolson could say that he wondered "at you asking me so often for a narrative of the late revolution", a request which sat oddly with the fact that the Father General had more than sufficient correspondents within the Society to tell him what he wanted to know about those events. But Nicolson, troubled as he said by an obstinate and troublesome sickness which kept him for months in bed, could still make his point to the Father General: 'I am informed that the late King . . . meant also to arrange for our having a bishop without which there can be neither order nor decency in the Church, as all antiquity testifies.'

It was to be 1694 before the matter was settled. Clapperton in his mss of the missionaries lists eleven candidates whose names were mentioned at some stage in the discussion. Some considerations still prevented an appointment being made: the immediate effect of the revolution was to place a question mark on the validity of royal nominations; a strong but rather young candidate had emerged in John Paul Jameson (1659-1700); and there were doubts both over Nicolson's health and lack of purpose, and over the bond given by his brother which prevented his return to Scotland. But while Nicolson continued to play his health card there was, in reality, no escape for him and the years were to reveal that whatever malaise afflicted him in Dunkirk was to be blown away by the good air of Scotland where he was to show himself a strong, vigorous and effective bishop.

On 16th March 1694 Innocent XII approved the establishment of a vicariate apostolic of Scotland under a titular bishop. A new delay arose while financial support for the new bishop was settled. Eventually, Propaganda in Congregation on 27th July approved Thomas Nicolson's appointment and this was subsequently confirmed on 17th August. At last on 7th September Innocent XII formally approved Nicolson as titular bishop of Peristasis and first vicar apostolic of Scotland. In keeping with the Benedictine tradition of support for the secular clergy Placid Fleming O.S.B. was one of the first to offer his congratulations, significantly to Will Leslie in Rome. Nicolson was consecrated bishop in secret in the chapel of the archbishop of Paris by Jules de Mascaron, bishop of Agen, assisted by Henri de Barillon, bishop of Lucon, and Martin de Ratabon, bishop of Ieper, on 27th February 1695, in the presence of a few Scots priests, including Lewis Innes.

But he could not yet go to Scotland, prevented as he was by the bond of his brother, and the want of a passport. He spent the rest of that year and most of the next travelling in Holland and Germany. At Würzburg the Benedictines were as supportive as usual and in August 1696 he received from Thomas Cook O.S.B., abbot of Würzburg, and Placid Fleming O.S.B., abbot of Ratisbon, the offer of co-operation and the promise of the submission of monks to his authority while on the mission.

Nicolson crossed to England in November 1696 and, with no passport, was arrested and imprisoned until May 1697. He arrived in Edinburgh in July and then moved to Gordon Castle. Eventually Preshome in the Enzie became his headquarters but in the early years he had no settled residence and lived wherever the needs of the mission dictated. One of his first acts, while still in exile, had been to ask Propaganda for faculties similar to those enjoyed by the English vicars apostolic which required all religious to be subject to the bishops in all things religious. This was granted in August 1697 and so, almost simultaneously with his arrival in Scotland, Nicolson became sole religious superior with authority over the faculties of all priests, secular and religious. But it was not until February 1701 at Aberdeen that the submission of the Jesuits was made by their superior, William Aloysius Leslie S.J., who incidentally had worked with Nicolson during his short-lived mission in Glasgow in 1688.

In sharp contrast to the impression created during his Dunkirk period Nicolson soon proved himself a vigorous and active bishop. His first years were lean years as starvation ravaged the country and persecution of Catholics was bitter. But Nicolson was not deterred from pushing on with a policy of reform and a practice of pastoral visitation. The country was divided into fixed districts to which missionaries were attached, rules for their direction were discussed, agreed and put into effect—the Statuta Missionis of 1701, approved by Propaganda in 1706, and revised in 1782. Administrators were appointed—seven to start with—to secure the financial control of the mission. His visits to the Highlands and Islands—lasting over three months—were especially fruitful; on one such visit 3,000 people were confirmed. These journeys were carried out in exceptionally hard conditions and, as he reported to Propaganda, frequently he travelled for days without meeting another person.

The year 1704 was a year of darkness and yet of hope. It opened with the death of Robert Munro, pro-vicar of the Highlands, in the dungeons of Glen Garry Castle on 17th January. But two months later, on 11th March, there was the first beginning of a new age when Nicolson conferred the priesthood on Peter Fraser, the first ordination in Scotland (or England) since the reformation. Fraser was to labour on the mission for twenty seven years until his death in March 1731. However, in the same month, persecution was renewed by royal proclamation calling for the enforcement of the laws “against Jesuits, priests, sayers of mass, reseters or harbourers of priests, or hearers of mass; to seize and apprehend priests, Papists, and Jesuits, and to put down all mass meetings,” with a reward for arresting and convicting priests. At the same time ministers were commanded to take the names of all persons suspected of Popery. The lists compiled have been published—Miscellany of the Maitland Club, vol 3 (1843), pp 389-440. Among others, they show 160 Catholics in Edinburgh, 12 in Glasgow, and 4,500 in the Western Highlands and Islands. In the south west a popular uprising against the Catholic gentry took place in Dumfries-shire with homes being sacked and books and articles burned. But again all was not black in this year. In response to a request for a Chapter (as in England) Propaganda offered Nicolson a coadjutor with right of succession, an imaginative gesture which ensured that for the future there should always be at least one bishop available in the country. The candidate chosen was James Gordon (1665-1746), agent in Rome for both Scots and English bishops, who was to prove himself during the forty years of his episcopate one of the great apostolic bishops, and was to be described by Benedict XIV as one of the greatest bishops in the Christian world.

As always, persecution subsided and there were quiet years followed by periods of renewed violence. But another danger threatened. Both Nicolson and Gordon, sympathetic to the exiled Stuarts, were to some extent caught up in the Jacobite risings of 1708 and 1715. (The Nicolson family played a more cautious part in the 1745 rebellion by fighting on both sides!) Nicolson was imprisoned at Fochabers after the failure in 1715 but obtained his release "by the judicious use of money." The small seminary which had been opened in the West Highlands at Loch Morar in 1713 was closed during the rising but was re-opened in 1716, this time at Scalan in the Braes of Glenlivet, under the protection of the Gordon family. Nicolson's last years were spent at Preshome and there he died on 12th October 1718, aged seventy three, and was buried in St. Ninian's churchyard at Tynet, Moray.

James Gordon composed Nicolson's epitaph in the measured Latin of the period: "He was a man noted for youthful piety, admired for openness and Christian directness, distinguished by integrity and uprightness of character, clear sighted by natural disposition, brilliant in learning and knowledge, unparalleled in prudence and wisdom, zeal and charity, much loved by the faithful." This may seem somewhat florid to modern taste; and it contrasts with the simple homeliness of the note of his death in the Annual List for 1718: "a very great man, both in learning and piety, under whom the mission was always free from intestine embroils." Both verdicts at least confirm that the Church in Scotland was remarkably fortunate in its first post-reformation bishop, a man fit for his place and his time.

The Bishops' Conference of Scotland is the permanently constituted assembly of the Bishops of Scotland. To promote its work the Conference establishes various agencies, the most important of which are termed Commissions. Priests other than bishops, religious and lay people are included in the membership of these agencies. The agencies have an advisory function in relation to the Conference; each, according to its remit, may also have an executive function; and, between meetings of the Conference, an agency may respond to an immediate problem by taking decisions or issuing a statement in its own name.

THE COMMISSIONS

It is the common function of all the Commissions to advise the Bishops' Conference and to promote development within the area of concern of the remit given to each. The Conference appoints a Bishop President and all members of each Commission. Members of secretariats, committees etc. which assist the work of a Commission are not necessarily members of the Commission itself.

Christian Doctrine and Unity

This Commission comprises a Doctrine Section and a Unity Section, the latter being an extension of the former and including other priests, religious and laity who have had wide experience in ecumenical affairs. The remit of the Commission includes Catholic Doctrine, Moral Theology and Canon Law; ecumenical relations with other Christian Churches and dialogue with those of other faiths and with unbelievers.

DEANERIES:

Deaneries are structures whereby the Diocesan Bishop can exercise his ministry in a more effective way. They are therefore smaller areas allowing more localised pastoral and administrative action, in harmony with the diocesan vision and planning.

Deaneries are placed under the care of a dean who is to assist the Diocesan Bishop in his ministry. Each deanery also has a deanery coordinator who works with the dean and the deanery coordinating team at local level and the diocesan bishop and his pastoral team at the diocesan level. Deaneries therefore form an integral part of the diocesan structure.

EDUCATION AND FORMATION

A—Priestly and Religious Formation

THE SCOTTISH SEMINARIES

The opening of Scotus College, the National Seminary in Scotland, on 4th October, 1993, marks the end of a long search to establish a national home college to train priests for the Scottish Catholic Church.

In the Middle Ages Scotsmen seeking Holy Orders most often had to study on the continent, at Louvain and Cologne, at Ratisbon and Paris. As early as 1325, royal provision was made to support Scottish students at the colleges of the Sorbonne, Montaigu and St. Barbe and Scots can be found there and elsewhere in Europe throughout this period.

With the foundation of national universities at St. Andrews (1412), at Glasgow (1451), and then at Aberdeen (1495), ordinands could receive at least part of their training at home.

Events in the sixteenth century meant that once again Scots had to go abroad to study for the priesthood. Part of the reforms of the Catholic Church in this century, notably at the Council of Trent, advocated the provision of a systematic training for Orders in colleges or seminaries founded for that specific purpose.

The first such 'tridentine' college for Scotland was that founded in Douai in 1576 by James Cheyne of Arnage. This college spent seventeen years of its life in Louvain (1595-1612) before being re-established at Paris where it remained until it was suppressed by the French Revolution in 1793. In lieu of the Scottish properties then confiscated, the French government has provided bursaries at St. Sulpice for Scottish students. There have been no Scots ordinands in Paris since 1971.

Pope Clement VIII founded the Scots College in Rome in 1600, a quarter of a century after its French sister. For the first two centuries of its existence, this college was under the direction of either the Jesuits or Italian priests. When the college was finally returned to Scottish control in the first year of the nineteenth century, there were few students and the buildings had been badly damaged during the recent Napoleonic occupation of Rome. However, by 1835 there were once again Scots studying in Rome under Scottish masters. By the middle of this present century, the city-centre college, on the Via Quattro Fontane, needed such extensive repair work that a suburban college was planned. The new college was built, and finally opened by Pope Paul VI, in 1964 where it remains on the Via Cassia.

A third college for the education of Scottish clerical students was opened by Colonel William Semple of Lochwinnoch at Madrid in 1672. This College, under protection of the Spanish Crown, was also run by Jesuits for its first century and it was not until the college moved to Valladolid in 1771 that the Spanish College came under national direction or was able to send home many priests for the Scottish Mission. This college was temporarily closed during the Peninsular War and during the Spanish Civil War and again, like the other continental colleges, during the Second World War. In 1988, the Scots College in Valladolid moved to a new home in Salamanca to enable students to attend the Pontifical University there.

Towards the end of the seventeenth century the Scots Abbot of the monastery at Ratisbon conceived the idea of training Scottish priests there. The numbers ordained from Ratisbon were small but show that priests returning to the Scottish Mission came from virtually each corner of Europe.

With the gradual growth in toleration of Catholics at home, it became possible to contemplate the creation of a seminary on Scottish soil. Such a college was opened on Eileen Ban in Loch Morar in 1714. After the failure of the 1715 rising, the college re-opened at Scalán in Glenlivet. Although it was to close for a while after the '45, the Seminary remained here for eight decades until a new, larger site was procured at Aquhorties, near Inverurie, in 1799.

A college was opened in 1731 for the Highland District, again on Eileen Ban, which later moved to Arisaig. It too, like Scalán, was suppressed after the '45 rising but was not re-opened until 1768, first at Glenfinnan and then at Buorblach on Loch Morar. This college, which was never large, was dogged by problems of manpower and money. Even so, efforts to amalgamate with Scalán were resisted and so the Highland college moved again to Samalman and finally to Lismore in 1803.

The division of the Scottish Mission in 1827 into three districts, Eastern, Western and Northern coincided with the offer of the manor house of John Menzies of Pitfodels. This property at Blairs near Aberdeen would be a national college under the direction of three Apostolic Vicars, relieving the traditional Highland—Lowland tension. Accordingly, in 1829 the new seminary opened as an amalgamation of the Highland college at Lismore and the Lowland college at Aquhorties.

The intention that Blairs would provide a full course of studies for the priesthood was not often realised. It generally prepared students to continue their ecclesiastical studies at the continental universities while staying at the national colleges. In this respect, Blairs became so successful that the college had to be significantly enlarged on at least two occasions. An annexe was established for Blairs when St. Vincent's College was opened at Langbank in 1961.

By the 1970s, however, the wider provision of a good secondary education combined with falling numbers of applicants to make the junior seminary redundant. The college at Langbank re-amalgamated with Blairs in 1978 and Blairs itself was finally closed in 1986. The heritage of this college is still present in the Catholic Community and will ever retain a substantial place in the history of the Catholic Church in this land.

There continued to be a need, however, to train students to Holy Orders, to do so as at home and to do so as economically as possible. Both these factors were present in the decision of Archbishop Charles Eyre to open a seminary for the Western District. This he did at Partickhill in 1874.

St. Peter's College in some way realised the plans of Andrew Scott who, as early as 1817, had thought of a seminary adjacent to his church, now the cathedral, of St. Andrew in Glasgow. In 1850, Bishop John Murdoch stated his desire to open a college at Dalbeth for the training of priests but the events of the potato famine and the mass immigration of Irish forced a change in his priorities.

It was left to Eyre to finally open a college which, by 1892, he had moved to a new purpose-built building (donated from his recently inherited fortune) at New Kilpatrick in Bearsden. In 1946 the students were decanted to the Mill Hill institute in London to allow necessary renovations. An accidental fire in May 1946 gutted the buildings beyond repair so that a new property had to be purchased at Darleith House near Cardross. The philosophers remained here while those studying theology were moved to the nearby Kilmahew House. Finally in 1966 the two houses were amalgamated in the Coia-built seminary at Kilmahew. This building never reached its potential accommodation of nearly one hundred students and by the 1970's was clearly too large and too costly to remain practical. St. Peter's College moved in 1980 to a new city home at the former Franciscan house at Newlands where it was to remain for the last five years of its life.

The Eastern District also looked to provide a college to train priests. Bishop James Gillis had planned to build a new college in Whitehouse in Edinburgh in the mid-nineteenth century and in the 1930's, Archbishop McDonald went as far as choosing a building at St. Andrews to house such a college. It was not until 1953 when St. Andrew's College was opened at Drygrange, by Archbishop, later Cardinal, Gray that these dreams were brought to fruition. This seminary moved into the city of Edinburgh, to the site that Gillis had chosen in the 1840's, as the new Gillis College.

In 1985 Chesters College was opened at Bearsden when six of the Scottish Bishops formed a new interdiocesan seminary which incorporated the now defunct St. Peter's College. This institution was to remain here for eight years until it closed in 1993. On the site of Chesters the entire Scottish Hierarchy opted to create the new national seminary in Scotland under the patronage of Blessed John Duns Scotus.

The opening of this new college must be ranked as one of the most important and courageous developments in the history of the Catholic Church in Scotland. The new college is invested with a long tradition for it too, like its ancestors in Paris and Glenlivet, in Glasgow and Edinburgh, seeks to provide priests for Christ's people in Scotland. As well as being invested with such a noble history, Scotus College is invested with the much nobler hopes of the Catholic Community to see Christ's Gospel spread in their land in the future.

PERSONAL PRELATURE OF THE HOLY CROSS AND OPUS DEI

Personal Prelatures are juridical structures of a secular character governed by a Prelate and erected by the Holy See to carry out specific pastoral or missionary activities. The general norms on personal Prelatures are contained in the Code of Canon Law—canons 294 to 297. Each has its own statutes approved by the Holy See. Opus Dei is a personal Prelature, international in its scope, which aims to spread throughout all sectors of society a deep awareness of the universal call to sanctity and apostolate in the fulfilment of one's ordinary profession or job. It is formed by a Prelate with his own clergy and by lay people, men and women, who in virtue of a divine vocation freely join the Prelature.

OBITUARIES 1992-1993

Rev. Angus McKellaig—11th December, 1992

From his native and much beloved Morar, by way of his priestly service in the Archdiocese of Glasgow and the Diocese of Motherwell, Father Angus McKellaig was brought back home and laid to rest on the shores of Loch Morar on the afternoon of Thursday 17 December 1993.

Angus McKellaig was born at Morar on 5th November 1914. His early years were spent in that village which was to remain "home" to him for the whole of his 78 years. He entered St. Mary's College Blairs in 1930 at the age of 16. From Blairs he progressed to his senior seminary studies at Bearsden in 1934, being ordained priest for the then Archdiocese of Glasgow on the feast of SS. Peter and Paul 1941.

His first appointment as a priest took him in 1941 to Knightswood in Glasgow. This appointment must have been such a change for him, his life having been lived in Morar, the rural setting of Blairs and the relative tranquility of college life in Bearsden, his ministry in Glasgow was to be but brief, however, since in 1943 he was appointed to Clarkston, and in 1944 to St. Fillan's in Houston with the wartime rôle of chaplain to the forces stationed in that area.

The end of the War in 1945 saw Angus McKellaig head back northwards to Aberdeenshire and, much to his surprise, to the staff of St. Mary's College, Blairs, where he served as procurator of the College. The story of his appointment to the staff of Blairs and the rôle he fulfilled thereafter was one Angus delighted in telling; such were the whims of priestly appointments in the middle years of the century!

Two years later another appointment, this time to the south of the country, found Angus back in a chaplaincy role in St. Ninian's School, Kirkconnell, followed by a similar appointment in Carstairs House, Lanarkshire in 1948. Thus it was that Angus McKellaig found himself then a priest of the newly formed Diocese of Motherwell where he was to serve for the remainder of his priestly life.

In 1954, Angus took up a full time parish appointment in St. Bartholomew's Coatbridge, one which was to prepare him for his first appointment as a parish priest in the Diocese some four years later.

In 1959, the development of new housing in the City of Glasgow extended eastwards into the Diocese of Motherwell. Two new parishes were formed in Easterhouse, St. Clare's and St. Benedict's. It was to the new parish of St. Benedict, Easterhouse with a population of 500 souls that Angus McKellaig was sent. The shores of Morar could never have seemed further from the ever-growing development of Easterhouse. Angus' time in Easterhouse was not to be a long one. He was succeeded as parish priest by Fr. Harry McGinn, who along with others of that time did so much to breathe life into a new community, but a community which was to experience such difficulties not many years down the line.

In January 1964 Angus McKellaig resumed a parish appointment as a curate in the parish of St. Bride's Cambuslang. Three years later, almost to the day of his arriving in Cambuslang, he was appointed to his final pastoral appointment as parish priest of St. Brigid's, Newmains, where he remained until his retirement through ill-health on 1st June 1976.

Retirement didn't see him move far from the boundaries of his final parish, however, retiring to live in Law Village, near Carluke. And it was not an inactive retirement. Even in his last years he was able to provide a "supply" when called upon, as he regularly was.

In June 1991, Angus McKellaig celebrated the Golden Jubilee of his Ordination. A Jubilee Mass and presentation was held in St. Brigid's Newmains, attended by a great many of the parish.

The autumn of 1992 was the beginning of the illness which was to bring Angus McKellaig to his final home. One spell of time in hospital over those final months of the year was followed by another, and another. He was well aware of the excellent care and attention he received in Law Hospital Carluke, the Western in Glasgow and again in Law. It was there in Law Hospital that he died in the late evening of 11th December 1992.

His funeral Mass in the Diocese of Motherwell was celebrated on Wednesday 16th December in St. Brigid's, Newmains, by Bishop Devine and a great many priests of the Diocese. That day his remains were taken to the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Succour and St. Cumin, Morar, as was his wish. On Thursday 17 December Bishop Roderick Wright celebrated a funeral Mass for this son of Morar, a Mass concelebrated by Mgr. Alex Devanny, Vicar General of the Diocese of Motherwell, Fr. Michael McCarthy, parish priest of St. Athanasius Carluke, who had been such a good and supportive friend to Angus in his later years in Law Village, and around 20 other priests from Motherwell and Argyll and The Isles. On, what even the locals described as one of the coldest and windiest days of the year in Morar, Angus McKellaig was laid to rest in the family grave overlooking Loch Morar. How he would have enjoyed the manner of his being laid to rest! He had come home to Morar, to go to his eternal home. May he rest in peace.

Right Rev. Mgr. John A. Canon MacNeil, V.G.—3rd March, 1993

The very sudden death of Mgr. John Archie MacNeil in the afternoon of Wednesday, 3rd March, 1993, came as a great shock to his many friends, parishioners and fellow priests. A man of apparently robust health and a most active priest, he was found dead in the vestry of his church in Morar. The loss to the Diocese of Argyll and The Isles is very severely felt.

John Archie was born in Northbay, Isle of Barra, on 29th August, 1933, the son of Donald the Postman. Those years of the great depression after the First World War hit the fishing industry of the Isles, as it did so many other industries, and resulted in emigration of many families across the Atlantic, and the gradual drift of fishermen in the Merchant Navy. To add to the hardship of the family, his mother was stricken with a paralysing illness that caused her to be housebound for the rest of her life, so that the children depended on friends and neighbours for much of their upbringing. The positive effect of this situation was that his mother had time to inspire her children with high Christian ideals, a habit of prayer and a great love for Our Blessed Lady. This devotion to Our Lady took firm root in John Archie's soul and blossomed as the years passed, so that no Mass celebrated by him ended without an exhortation to the congregation to place their daily life under Her protection.

After attending the primary school in Northbay, he went on to Castlebay and lived in lodgings while he attended secondary school there. In due course he went to Blairs as a student for the Archdiocese of Glasgow, and thence to Cardross for philosophy and theology. He was ordained priest on 29th June, 1957, in St. Andrew's Cathedral in Glasgow. His first appointment was to the newly-founded parish of St. Martin in Castlemilk. It was a time of upheaval in the city, with vast housing schemes spreading out into the countryside. The church had not yet been built, and Mass was celebrated in Ardenrcraig School. He joined Father Jeremiah O'Flynn in a council house and the first task was to get to know the people. It meant hard work calling door-to-door to try to estimate the number of Catholics—a very much harder task than in a well-established parish. The first year they estimated about 2,000 parishioners, but within two years the estimate had more than doubled, and was still rising. He and Father O'Flynn became well known in the housing schemes, respected for their kindness to so many who were still disorientated by the change in their way of life. Even thirty years later he would be approached in the street with cheerful greetings from people who remembered him from those first years. Before St. Martin's Church was built and opened, Father John Archie was appointed to another recently-founded parish, St. Conval's in Pollok, as assistant to Father "Jock" Wilson. It was a similar experience—slightly less arduous, perhaps, for the church was already completed and the new parish was settling in as a community. He is remembered there for his gentle kindly Celtic humour. Among other experiences which he brought with him for the rest of his life was the warm hospitality shown towards priests from other parishes; his house was always open to any priest who called, especially those in need of counsel and rest.

But Father John's Celtic soul was ever drawn to his roots and to the Highland seas, and in 1964 he was permitted by his Archbishop to serve in the Diocese of Argyll and The Isles, at first on a temporary basis but eventually for the rest of his life. After a short spell in the Cathedral in Oban he went as assistant priest to Daliburgh in South Uist, the home of pipers and bards. This was his element for there was music and poetry in his soul. He had a fine singing voice and was a simple clear preacher with a beautiful command of the Gaelic language. He had a great love of bardachd and composed many bardic gems. He made a deep study of the bardachd of Donald MacIntyre the Paisley bard, and Donald John MacDonald who has left us a wealth of new Gaelic hymns. Father John's greatest joy was to be with people of like interests and he brought joy to the sick and housebound with his repertoire of song and lore. After three years in Daliburgh he moved to take charge of the parish in Benbecula for the next four years.

In 1973, he returned to the mainland, to the parish of Inverie in Knoydart. This tiny parish on a peninsula with neither road link nor steamer connection was a challenge to his spiritual life. But he loved the sea, and had to travel in his boat to Mallaig, an hour's journey, before he could start going anywhere. He also served the Catholics in the Small Isles—Rhum and Canna—so he was soon an accomplished boatman. In 1976 he went back to the Outer Isles, this time to Eriskay where the people were enjoying some prosperity, thanks to a switch from herring fishing to prawns and white fish, now becoming popular on the market. Here again he had peace to pursue his Celtic studies, and freedom for his outdoor pursuits on the sea. In 1980, after a short spell in Glenfinnan, where he renovated the priest's house, he was appointed to St. Mary's, Fort William. Here he was a popular figure in the town, admired for his devotion to the Belford Hospital and to the sick and housebound. His door was ever open to priests who passed through Fort William from all directions. Travelling people marked him down as one to be called upon, and his garage floor often provided a night's shelter. In 1985, he was appointed a Canon of the Cathedral Chapter, and on the death of Bishop Colin MacPherson in 1990 he was elected Diocesan Administrator, a position that he filled with great efficiency. As Vicar General to the new bishop he was appointed to the parish of Morar and Mallaig. Here he found time to enjoy the company of the country folk—especially the fishermen on Mallaig pier. He was involved with the R.N.L.I. and was often seen in the Seamen's Mission.

A simple man with a simple but deep faith, inherited from generations of Barra ancestors, he will be remembered as a traditionalist in a changing Church, and as a Gael, dedicated to the language and culture of his people.

Rev. Denis Garrity—9th March, 1993

Fr. Denis Garrity retired priest of the Diocese of Motherwell died on 9th March 1993 in St. Edward's Airdrie. At the funeral Mass celebrated in St. Edward's on 12th March 1993 the following homily was given by Bishop Joseph Devine, Bishop of Motherwell.

I will remember Father Garrity as one of the happiest priests I ever knew. I knew him in the final decade of his life, here in St. Edward's, his home for the past 12 years, with Father Larry Kenny of happy memory and Father Bobby Kane. For Denis, each day was a bonus. He rejoiced in the Lord's goodness to him, in the care from his fellow priests and a devoted household staff. A song was never far from his lips, lips often set in a smile. But there is much more to remember, in a life that began 81 years, 6 months and 5 days ago. He was born on 17th September, 1912, a proud son of Mossend. He gloried in the decade which spanned the years of 1925/1935. There were 27 of his fellow Mossenders in Blairs, many being ordained in the 30's and 40's. Few are with us still. After early schooling in the Holy Family, he went to Blairs in the 20s, when the economic conditions of the country were poor, in a country ravaged by a huge loss of life in the First World War. The survivors came home to a land "fit for heroes". They found little comfort, in housing, in employment and in wages for those who were in employment. A general strike and a grim recession followed. In part at least, Denis was protected from much of this, due to the love of his good parents. By the mid-thirties when he entered Bearsden, things had picked up a little in an impoverished Britain, even if the sound of an impending threat, for those who had ears to hear, was coming from Germany. The threat was to become a reality before Denis was ordained. I recall him telling me that he spent a month with old friends who had moved to London in the fine summer of 1939. He had been invited, as that family held the view, one not shared by the P.M. of the day, Neville Chamberlain, and the British Government, that war was around the corner. That invitation was to have enjoyable consequences for him. But more of that later.

He was ordained for the Archdiocese of Glasgow, on 29th June, 1941. The threat of war had become a reality. Times were bleak. Every major battle, with the exception of the Battle of Britain, had been lost. Europe was a kind of fortress and there was the sense that a final victory was beyond a beleaguered Britain. Within 18 months, all of that changed with El Alamein and an entry into the war of the United States. Much of this meant little enough to the young Father Denis Garrity, as he began his pastoral ministry to the people of Glasgow in St. Philomena's, in Provanmill. Today, it is a demanding mission. In 1941, despite the hardships of wartime restrictions, it was a desirable suburb of the city's east end. It was also relatively safe, as a dormitory zone, with no attraction for enemy aircraft.

He spent 3 years there, before being transferred by Mgr. Daly, in 1944, as the Archbishop had died the previous December, to the village of Houston. A curious coincidence takes place at this point. He replaced Father Angus MacKellaig, his fellow classmate, whose first appointment had been to Mossend, Denis' home parish, Father MacKellaig being the last priest to die in the Diocese.

Denis remained there for the rest of the war, transferring to Thornliebank in 1946, before going to the parish of St. Ignatius, Wishaw, and the redoubtable Canon Kearney, in 1947. He soldiered there for 3 years. (I use the verb advisably), until he went to Whiterigg in 1950, by that time having become a priest of Motherwell Diocese, established in 1948. To many here today, Whiterigg must sound like somewhere on the other side of the moon. Not to Father Gerry Mackle, as well as others who are aware of it as the place which Plains replaced, where the Catholics of the day resided in numbers, along with Longriggend, prior to being resettled in Caldercruix. He was there until 1953, when the community had been removed to Plains.

After a series of appointments to peripheral or rural parishes, Denis went to one of the biggest parishes of the time, St. Columbkille's, in Rutherglen. He remained there for the next 7 years. It was the great Marian era in the life of the Church in this century, with the definition of the Assumption in 1950, closing of a high point of what can be said to have been a final flourishing of the era of men's, women's, boys' and girls' sodalities. I date the changing of the Church and the world to 1960. Everything changed. It changed fast and it changed everywhere. The swinging 60's were around the corner, as the Church prepared for the Second Vatican Council. Briefly, for about a year in each case he then served in St. Barbara's, Muirhead and St. Bridget's in Baillieston.

In the year the Second Vatican Council opened, 1962, Denis became parish priest of St. Luke's, Motherwell, opened 8 years earlier, to meet the needs of the people in north Motherwell. He was there for 4 years, before transferring to St. Ninian's, Hamilton, in 1966. That transfer had very profound implications for Denis for the remainder of his life. It brought him into contact with Father Larry Kenny, only separated by the death of Father Kenny on the Monday of Holy Week in 1992. After six years together in Hillhouse, they transferred as a team to St. Monica's, in the Old Monklands area of Coatbridge, in 1972. There they stayed for the next 9 years, until 1981, when Father Larry Kenny was appointed as parish priest of St. Edward's. They came here, with Father Denis as a retired priest of the Diocese, acting as a support to Father Kenny. It was a kind of pilot for the future, one of the most successful that I have ever known. Each had a rôle to play. It was a rôle eminently suited to each. The match was perfect. 11 months ago I saluted Father Kenny for his support of Father Denis. Today I salute Father Denis for his support of Father Kenny. In so doing, I am no less ready to salute Father Bobby Kane for his pick-up of where Larry Kenny left off. Father Kane is much younger, one ordained into the church of Vatican II. It made no difference. On his appointment here, he knew that he had the pastoral care of a much older priest, one born into a different era and into a different kind of church. He handled it with sensitivity and affection. I thank him for his kindness, as well as the affection which Denis received from the parishioners here over the past 12 years. They came to know him well, and he them. They knew his love of the old hymns and traditional tunes. His was a paternal presence, a figure who spanned much of the century into which they had been born. They came to know one who had a sense of the times in which we live, one undisturbed by events. He lived by a different rhythm, one which owed more to faith than conflict or fear. It was as if he had gone back to the solid foundation of his boyhood in Mossend. In many ways, that is what had happened. He had his sisters around him, as the support team of housekeepers in the presbytery. His summer holidays, for the better part of the past 20 years, were spent in Canada, with a member of the family which had invited him to come to London in the eventful summer of 1939. A couple of years ago I remember being with him at an event which gave him great pride, the 50th anniversary in Mossend of a victory of the boys' guild football team, which became a juvenile team in 1941, winners of the national cup at the first time of asking. His brother played in that team. As did Denis, as a summer guest, on his holidays from the seminary in Bearsden. We pray that he is playing in a greater team today, the team we call the church triumphant, those who have gone before us in faith and who have been found worthy of the Lord's call into life everlasting. The Lord on the cross, when he saw that all was accomplished, bowed his head and died. So, too, did Father Denis Garrity. He was at peace. His bags were packed. It was time to go. He had no fear of death. Serenely he died and passed into the hands of the Lord, the Lord whom he had tried to serve as best he might for over 80 years in life. Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord, and let perpetual light shine upon him, May he rest in peace. Amen.

Very Rev. Gerald Canon McCabe—9th March, 1993

Canon Gerald McCabe, parish priest of Our Lady of Lourdes, Dunfermline, died on 9th March, 1993, in the 71st year of his age and the 46th of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass, the following homily was delivered by Father Thomas Rhatigan, parish priest of Holy Cross, Edinburgh:

On the first Tuesday of September, 1941, twenty-three eighteen-year-olds arrived at St. Kieran's College, Kilkenny to try their vocation to the priesthood. Eighteen of that number were eventually ordained for dioceses in Ireland, England, Scotland, United States and Australia. Three of that eighteen came to Scotland, Father Gerry McCabe and myself to Edinburgh and Father Nicky Rowan to Glasgow—Father Rowan is with us at this Mass today.

Looking back on that September evening nearly 52 years ago, in all charity, I have to confess that we must have seemed a motley crew, coming from every part of Ireland with a multiplicity of accents, and I can tell you there was no accent so "quaint", shall I say, as that of a farmer's son from the Co. Leitrim, one Gerry McCabe, but that in no way inhibited him from talking and talking and talking. His garrulousness often got him into trouble over the next six years, as even the magnum silentium held no terrors for him. (For the benefit of the junior clergy, may I translate "magnum silentium"—the great silence or solemn silence as we used to call it—which lasted from 7.45 at night time until 8.30 the following morning.)

During the six years at St. Kieran's, student Gerry showed an incisive mind in the lecture hall, a high ability on the football field and a prayer life in the College chapel that inspired us all. Well, were there any defects? There was one, as his many parishioners in Scotland could afterwards verify—he couldn't sing, not that this handicap deterred him in any way. Two classes a week were devoted to what we called in those days Gregorian chant, with a German choirmaster, who ran the class with an awesome Teutonic thoroughness. At this time of year, you would probably find us practising the Pueri Hebraeorum or O Crux Ave at length. Occasionally, to show that he could be human, the choirmaster would say with a barely perceptible glint in his eye "Mr. McCabe, let's hear you singing that Pueri Hebraeorum." An anticipatory shout of delightful expectancy would go up from the rest of us, and, to be fair, Gerry never disappointed. His performance was awful, shockingly hilarious, but of course, what we Philistines should have been doing, was feeling sorry for the poor Pueri Hebraeorum.

After our ordination on 8th June 1947, we came to Scotland together, on 5th September to serve in this Archdiocese. No Aer Lingus flights to Glasgow or Edinburgh in these days—we arrived by boat from Belfast at the Broomielaw, where Father Gerry's first parish priest, Father Davitt as he then was, was waiting with his car to bring him to Bathgate. Incidentally, my parish priest was not at the Broomielaw. Little did either of us realise that his ability to talk on any subject at any time was soon to be put to the test. We had barely settled into our respective parishes, when that most perceptive of Archbishops, Andrew Joseph McDonald, decided, in his wisdom, that both of us were suffering from a defective education that only three years at University could remedy. Accordingly, he summoned both of us to 42 Greenhill Gardens to hear his plans. I was first into the august presence, and without any preliminaries, he told me that he had entered my name for Cambridge in the next academic year. To my astonishment, when Father Gerry came out, his first words were "I talked him out of it." And as the portals of the Archbishopal residence closed behind us, he went on to say "actually before I finished talking, the poor man was of the opinion that it was he who should be going to Cambridge." And so, for the next 20 years, Father Gerry was left in peace to carry out great apostolates in the two fine parishes of St. Mary's, Bathgate and St. Patrick's, Kilsyth.

We often joked as to which of us would first get a parish. I beat him by a short head, when Archbishop Gray asked me to go to St. Margaret's, Loanhead in January 1968. I cannot tell you how pleased I was, when Father Gerry followed me very shortly afterwards to nearby St. Margaret's, Gorebridge. It was only then, almost 21 years after our ordination, that I realised what a tremendously hard-working priest he was. Like most priests in the Archdiocese, I already knew of his regular house to house visitation, but I had never realised how extraordinarily professional he was in the best sense of the word in that respect. I have since, sometimes wondered if he did not occasionally feel a victim, as it were, of his own success. He once said to me, and here is the first time I have made this public: "you know" he remarked, "how I love meeting people in their own homes, but it may have one disadvantage, you can get to know too much about people."

For the last 20 years, it was his privilege to administer to your needs here at Our Lady of Lourdes. I have one wonderful memory of these years—when he invited me to his 40th anniversary celebrations in 1987. I can still remember that glorious summer evening, when you showed so clearly how much you loved and respected Father Gerry—your joy that evening was so natural and so spontaneous. And didn't he revel in it! That same pride and joy was reinforced less than a year ago, when Archbishop O'Brien made him a member of the Cathedral Chapter.

Canon Gerry was a man of deep but conventional spirituality, that had its foundation in an Irish home that gave three priests and one nun to God's service, and when his mother died some years ago at the age of 90, she did so making the Stations of the Cross in her local parish church as was her daily custom. No wonder he has asked to be buried beside her. Perhaps, when we talk today about the shortage of vocations, maybe we should ask ourselves more seriously "are our Catholic homes as Catholic as they once were.?"

Here at Our Lady of Lourdes, you will miss him desperately, as will to a lesser extent the people of Bathgate, Kilsyth and Gorebridge. I share your desperation, but I shall not mourn him. Over the years, we must have been together at scores of priests' funerals. Never once, even at the funeral of Canon Davitt, his first parish priest, whom he admired and respected so greatly, did he want to don the garb of mourning. I honestly believe that he did not regard mourning as a Christian virtue. Any heresy there, Your Grace?

But you will remember him in your prayers with gratitude and love. And because I knew him better, I believe, than anyone else here to-day, I have pitched my observations about him on a plane that no-one else might have done, even perhaps with a light-heartedness that others might question. And while you pray for him, there are a few of us, who because we knew him so really well, will have the presumption to pray: "Canon Gerry, remember us, now that you have come into your kingdom."

Rev. Robert Woods—23rd March, 1993

Robert Woods was born on 6th March 1912 at Longriggend in Lanarkshire. The date and place are significant, for they indicate that his childhood and boyhood were conditioned by the privations of war and industrial strife. These bred in him a self-reliance and a persistence bordering on stubbornness which never left him. His early schooling was in St. Mary's Longriggend and St. Mary's Whifflet. In 1927 he left his home at the distinctively named Telegraph Road, Longriggend for St. Mary's College, Blairs. In 1932 he was advanced to St. Peter's College, then at Bearsden. He is well remembered still by his surviving fellow students for his resolution and application in his studies and in his recreations. North Lanarkshire has given a number of dogged and indomitable full backs to soccer in Scotland and beyond. Bob was one of that breed. In those pre-war days at our seminaries one of the students was deputed to be the college barber. No previous experience was required. Bob took to the task as to the manner born. Like most practitioners of the art Bob salted his labour with fluent soliloquies and, again, like those of many in the trade his predictions were ominous. "There'll be trouble about this before the week's out" was a statement often coupled with his dismissal of a client.

Father Woods was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow on 29th June 1939. Following the custom of the time, his first appointment was brief; three months at St. Margaret's, Johnstone under the redoubtable Canon Reifenrath in the company of Father George Aylward and Father Dan Horgan. He then spent five years at Sacred Heart, Bridgeton where he again laboured with legendary characters—Canon Tony Mullins, Father Vincent O'Sullivan and Father Jim Butler. In August 1944, after the mandatory five years pastoral experience, Father Robert volunteered for service as a chaplain to His Majesty's Forces and was granted a Short Service Commission in the Army. Several extensions of his Commission resulted in his spending over twenty years on active service. Initially he served the spiritual needs of the men in an Anti-Aircraft Brigade in different parts of Britain. Early in 1945 he was posted to Spean Bridge for Commando training. After its completion he appeared at Glasgow Cathedral on Ordination Day 1945. He seemed two inches shorter and six inches broader, and wore with pride the green beret of the Commando Brigade. He spent three years with the Brigade in South East Asia Command. After a year on home postings he was sent to the Far East. At first he was based in Hong Kong but soon, with the outbreak of war in Korea, he was sent there with the Royal Marine Commandos. Father was ever reticent about his experiences there and the only known references to that period were, first, his appearance in a group photograph taken there and published by the Columban Fathers magazine "The Far East" and secondly, in a newspaper obituary after his death which spoke of his "bravery and fortitude" in that theatre. Soon he was back in Hong Kong where the friendship and support of the Irish Jesuits there helped to make it his favourite posting.

Father Robert returned to the United Kingdom in August 1952 and after six months at Aldershot he was posted to the British Army of the Rhine. After three years in Germany he was back in Britain briefly, but soon he was off to Gibraltar. After but a year there, Father was back in Southern Command as Senior Chaplain. Three years later he was drafted to Northern Ireland where, again, his assignment lasted three years. He enjoyed good relationships with his fellow priests in the Six Counties, while his encounters with the bishops were not marked by the same cordiality. Yet he did have pleasant recollections of his meetings with the formidable Doctor Farren of Derry. In the customary idiom their exchanges could fittingly be described as "full, frank and fruitful". Yet truly they respected one another though it was hardly to be expected that the views of the Senior Chaplain of the British Forces would always coincide with those of an Irish Prelate. Finally Father Robert completed his service, relinquished his commission and was gazetted on 27th November 1964. In a very short time, before Christmas of that year in fact, Father took up a diocesan appointment, Parish Priest of Our Lady, Star of the Sea, Garelochhead.

This was a new parish and a small parish so its income had to be supplemented by Father's army pension. Furthermore, to make up his work-load, he was entrusted with some other responsibilities. He was visiting confessor to St. Peter's College, Cardross; he was chaplain to St. Andrew's School at Shandon; for a time he was an officiating chaplain at the Clyde Submarine Base; and he had to care for the small parish of Sts Peter and Paul, Arrochar. While these assignments in themselves were not too demanding, the same could not always be said of the people whom he served. Their priest's reserves of tact and diplomacy were often severely taxed for each little community, naturally enough, did not always agree with his priorities. As in all his appointments and wherever he was, however, Father Robert formed firm friendships with his fellow priests in the locality. For example, he was a frequent and welcome visitor to St. Peter's College where he found willing companions for excursions to Celtic Park in those heady days of the Stein era, particularly for European matches. More to the point, he had to commission and supervise the building of the new parish church in Garelochhead. The Church of Our Lady, Star of the Sea was formally opened in the autumn of 1969. In this connection, one readily calls to mind the inscription which Christopher Wren's son had placed over the North Door of St. Paul's Cathedral in London as an epitaph to his father: "If you would see his monument look around you".

Scarcely had Father Robert completed this most important task of his ministry in Garelochhead, the erection of the new church, when he was given a new assignment. At the end of October 1969 he was appointed Parish Priest of St. Helen's, Langside, Glasgow.

Two things marked Father Wood's ministry of five years in Langside. The first, his devoted care of the sick and the housebound; that had been a constant feature of his priestly ministry wherever he served. The second, the provision of a presbytery, was comparatively new. At Garelochhead he had secured a commodious villa, "Dunavard", near the railway station which enabled him to leave the lodging which Father John Carter had generously afforded him at St. Joseph's, Helensburgh. At Langside a new presbytery was desirable so, once more, Father Robert had the burden of commissioning and supervising the erection of a new building. That took its toll. Shortly before Christmas in 1974 he retired from the active ministry and went to live with relatives in Keighley, Yorkshire. After a bit, his health improved sufficiently to allow him to give some assistance in the parish of Our Lady of Victories in the town. As in every place he served, Father made good friends among the local priests and was generous in the help which he gave them. His retirement was contented and happy. Early in 1992 a chest complaint developed and about a year later he had to be admitted to Airedale General Hospital. After six weeks he died, on 23rd March 1993. He was buried at Keighley after Solemn Requiem Mass in St. Anne's, the principal catholic church in the town. The principal celebrant of the Mass was the Bishop-Emeritus of Leeds, the Right Reverend Gordon Wheeler. Concelebrating with the Bishop were many local priests, former colleagues from Father Robert's army days and some clerical friends from Scotland. Many of his family from Scotland and elsewhere were also present. A few weeks later, on Friday 30th April, Archbishop Winning was the principal celebrant at the Month's Mind Mass for Father Robert Woods in St. Helen's Church, Langside, Glasgow. May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Peter James Canon McKearney—1st April, 1993

'A dedicated pastor who spent his life in the Lord's service' were the words used by Bishop Logan as he paid tribute to Canon Jack McKearney, whose sudden death on Thursday, 1st April, was a great shock to his many friends and colleagues throughout the Diocese of Dunkeld.

Canon McKearney was born in Mullyard, Derrynoose, Co. Armagh, on 15th October, 1915. He received his early education at St. Patrick's College, Armagh, and St. Mary's, Dundalk. In 1937 he began his ecclesiastical studies at St. Patrick's College, Carlow, and was ordained to the priesthood on the Feast of Corpus Christi (6th June), 1944 in St. Maccartan's Cathedral, Monaghan, by the Most Rev. Dr. Eugene O'Callaghan, Bishop of Clogher, for the Diocese of Dunkeld.

His first appointment within the diocese was as assistant priest at St. Mary's, Forebank, where he remained until 1946, when he was appointed assistant priest at St. Patrick's, Dundee. His stay at St. Patrick's only lasted one year for in 1947 he had to 'retire' due to ill-health and returned to Ireland suffering from tuberculosis.

However, his 'retirement' was only for four years, for in 1951 he was able to return to the diocese and take up an appointment as assistant priest at St. Serf's, Highvalleyfield. In 1956 he was appointed assistant priest at St. Mary's, Lochee, where he remained until his appointment as the first parish priest of the new parish of St. Bernadette, Tullibody, in 1958. For the first five years of his ministry in Tullibody, Father McKearney celebrated Mass in the local Miners' Institute, but in 1963, along with the parishioners of Tullibody he saw the completion of years of hard work with the solemn blessing and opening of their new parish church by Bishop William Hart on Wednesday, 26th June of that year. During his years in Tullibody he was also the Church's representative on the local authority's Education Committee.

The appointment of Mgr. Michael Foylan as Bishop of Aberdeen in 1965 resulted in Father McKearney's transfer to St. Andrew's Cathedral as Administrator, a post that he held until his return to St. Mary's, Forebank, as parish priest in 1971. During his years at St. Mary's, Father McKearney was responsible for a massive facelift both inside and outside the church, and presided at the celebrations to mark the church's 125th anniversary in 1976. On 19th November, 1976, Father McKearney was appointed a member of the Cathedral Chapter and from then on he was known simply as "THE Canon" to many throughout the city of Dundee. In the last ten years before his retirement from an active ministry within the diocese in 1990 he was also Secretary to the Cathedral Chapter. On his retirement he returned to his homeland, but retirement did not mean a lack of involvement in the local Church, for he was busy raising funds for St. Patrick's College, Carlow, as it prepared to celebrate its bicentenary.

Bishop Logan celebrated the funeral Mass in Derrynoose. Also attending the Mass was Mgr. Hugh McNally, V.G. At a special Memorial Mass in St. Mary's, Forebank, Bishop Logan paid tribute to Canon McKearney's priestly ministry by saying "All of us knew him to be a tireless worker; a man with a disciplined pattern of life, including a daily planned schedule; a great and dedicated pastor; a man of the people; a priest who was always with his people and who gave great leadership by his presence and participation in parish, deanery and diocesan events. We have lost not only a long-standing friend but also a dedicated pastor who spent his life in the Lord's service."

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Anthony Joseph Burke—14th April, 1993

Like his Master Father Anthony Burke was in pain from the soles of his feet to the top of his head and he opened not his mouth. During his long illness he never uttered a word of complaint, and if he was asked how he was, he always replied "Better than you". With a very serious heart condition and in severe pain from gout he was forced a few months before his death to grow a beard by reason of an attack of shingles on his face.

In spite of all his troubles he continued to say the 10 o'clock Mass in St. Philomena's, Provanmill, in a sitting position and using cards with the words of the Mass in specially enlarged print. This he did right up to his retirement just four months before his death.

He died in Stobhill Hospital on 14th April with his sister Teresa at his bedside. His body was brought home to his late parents' house in King's Park where it lay in the little oratory until his return for his obsequies in St. Philomena's where he had served the people of God for the last twenty-seven years of his life. The Requiem Mass was concelebrated by Archbishop Winning along with over seventy priests from the Archdiocese and beyond. The church was filled to overflowing with parishioners and others who had come from the various fields of his labours. As the cortege left the church the people lined the streets and stood in the gardens to bid farewell to a priest who had served them long and faithfully.

Anthony Joseph Burke was born in the Parkhead district of Glasgow on 7th May, 1932, and was baptised in St. Michael's, Salamanca Street. He was the second of two children of Michael and Elizabeth Burke, a quiet, reserved and unassuming couple who gave their children good example in their love of the Mass and their hard working lives. Both died relatively young, his father the year after Anthony's ordination and his mother five years later at the age of sixty. During her long illness Anthony brought her Holy Communion every day as was fitting for one who had during most of her adult life attended several Masses each day.

At the beginning of the Second War Anthony was sent to Ireland to County Leitrim to stay with relatives in whose family there were three sons priests. One of the priest brothers was at home during part of Anthony's stay and it could well be that it was while serving his Mass that the seeds of Anthony's own vocation were sown.

On his return from Ireland, Anthony spent a short period at St. Mungo's Academy before proceeding to St. Mary's College, Blairs, and thence to the Major Seminary, St. Peter's College, Cardross. During his term as Decano there one of his duties was to liaise between the College and the Carmelite Convent in Dumbarton, and out of this grew a life long association and friendship with the Carmelite Community. All during his life he regularly visited the Carmel and had the highest regard for the nuns and put great value on their prayers.

Over six feet tall Anthony Burke was an athlete, excelling in most sports but with football as his great love. He both captained and managed the Priests' football team of his day. He was on one occasion 'spotted' by a professional scout and his signature sought for a senior club, but he was already spoken for.

Anthony was ordained priest on 29th June, 1957, by Archbishop Donald Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral. His first appointment was to St. Margaret Mary's, Castlemilk, itself a new parish barely four weeks old, and without church or presbytery or hall.

Father Tony spent eight years in St. Margaret Mary's and in the Address presented to him on the occasion of his departure to work on the missions the parishioners placed on record their testimony to "One who has been a priest first, last and all the time . . . Always available, always approachable, punctual and exact in discharge of the public services of the Church". They remembered his "concern for the men and boys of the parish, the many functions he arranged for the people, young and old; the Pools and Bingo he had inaugurated and controlled so successfully; the Legion of Mary whose meetings he supervised and whose work he directed; the Womens' Socials on Tuesdays; the 'Snowball' social evenings on Thursdays when he recruited the wonderful team of church cleaners". They remembered the state of the church grounds when building operations ceased in 1959 and the unbelievable transformation in almost no time. "It hardly seemed possible" they said "that so much could have been done in such a short time, with the minimum of expense, by the inspiration and zeal of one priest". They recalled in addition his organising of the Church Boxes scheme of house collections; the A.P.F. through the men of the Parish; the Holy Childhood among the children and teachers.

By his skill and hard work in fundraising he not only helped his Parish Priest to pay off most of the debt on the parish in a very short time, but aided other causes in the Archdiocese. Many a parish and convent felt the benefit of his Combined Parish Draw.

In 1965, in answer to the Pope's call for Diocesan priests to serve in South America, and his mother being now dead, Father Tony joined the Society of St. James the Apostle and went to Peru. Unfortunately serious illness again struck his family and his maternal aunt Marie (really more a sister) became ill with terminal cancer with only a few months to live. Feeling himself unable to leave his sister Teresa to carry the burden alone he had no choice but to return home.

After Marie's death he served for a short time in Aberdeen Diocese before being appointed to St. Philomena's, Provanmill, where he was to remain for the next twenty-seven years.

His great talents were now at the service of the people of St. Philomena's. For all its numbers St. Philomena's had no parish hall and he set himself to remedy the lack. In a short time through his enthusiasm and fundraising ability a fine hall became a part of the parish complex, and the running of it was under his complete control until the day he retired.

His visitation was again legendary. In the mid 1960s parts of Provanmill were a byword for poverty and deprivation and it was known that if Father Tony visited a house with no floor covering he would purchase a carpet and instruct the delivery man to tell the family they had won it in a raffle. Along with the other priests he was a familiar figure in Robroyston Hospital in the days when it was involved in caring for the victims of the scourge of tuberculosis.

In 1975 in the midst of his zealous and enthusiastic labours he was struck down by a serious heart attack. The skills of the doctors revived him after all signs of life had ceased. Indeed he was accustomed thereafter to count his age by the number of years since his being revived. But though his life was spared there was no complete recovery and a number of further attacks and strokes left him very much an invalid and almost blind. In spite of this he continued to carry out a number of his parish duties. He said Mass each day, sitting and with enlarged print cards. He still took special care of the First Communion class and spent a lot of time in their preparation when they were brought to the 10 o'clock Mass.

He also continued to do his First Friday Communions being driven round by one of the parishioners.

Being restricted in his movements by ill health he took up the apostolate of the telephone and many sick in body and soul benefited from his consoling words and advice.

In his final years his great inspiration was Padre Pio and Blessed Faustina of the Divine Mercy whose cause he did all he could to promote. On the very Sunday after his death a pilgrimage he had been instrumental in organising took part in a Padre Pio gathering at Carfin.

He was a true priest 'taken from among men and ordained for men in the things that belong to God'. May he now reap his eternal reward.

Rev. Patrick Gahagan, Ph.L., S.T.L.—12th May, 1993

'There is an Israelite who deserves the name, incapable of deceit' (John 1, 47).

Pat Gahagan was born on 28th March, 1931, second youngest of nine children, in St. Peter's parish, Partick. Throughout his life his large family would play a very important part, and he a very important and loved part in his family. He crossed the Clyde daily by ferry to St. Gerard's Secondary School in Govan, leaving in 1948 with his Highers.

He applied for a place in the archdiocesan priesthood, but not having studied Latin, he had to go to Campion House, Osterley, for two years, before being sent on to the Scots College in Rome. He always looked back with respect and affection for Osterley and its superior, Father Clement Tigar, S.J. He settled in Rome as conscientiously as he would live the rest of his life. One friend recalling his time in college said wryly, "He was just as argumentative then." Yes, seeking the truth, looking at a question from as many points of view as possible.

Tall and gangling, and apparently uncoordinated, he loved sport and was a fine goal-keeper for his school and for the Scots College. The last line of defence, he always judged himself harshly if he lost a goal. An excellent swimmer, he enjoyed teaching his nephews and nieces, and was still taking his grand-nephews and nieces to the pool right up till his last illness. When his health was good he played an excellent game of golf, which he kept up till a few weeks before his final illness.

Ordained in Rome on 22nd December, 1956, on his return to Glasgow, he was a curate in the Cathedral for a few months before working for twelve years in St. Mary's, Duntocher. He enjoyed the mixture of village life with the work in a busy parish at a time when life was simple, and his responsibilities were parish visitation and looking after the youth. Always a good listener, he encouraged his young friends to make the most of their talents. Many men of that period look back to him with gratitude for the support that he gave them. During this time he was appointed a Religious Inspector of Schools.

From 1969 till 1977 he was curate in Our Lady of Good Counsel, Dennistoun, when a large part of the parish was being torn down. A depressing time for a priest to see so many being uprooted, while hopefully starting a new life elsewhere. The parish was responsible for Duke Street Hospital, and he took on the responsibility of looking after the psychiatric wards, where he would spend hours listening and counselling the patients. The new Rite of Reconciliation gave him the chance to extend this work of listening and helping people to form their consciences and take moral decisions. He persuaded the parish priest to have the confessionals adapted to allow the choice of open or private confession, while working with the parishioners to have a deeper understanding of the sacrament. He was among the first and most successful confessors to appreciate and encourage the use of the reformed rite.

In 1977, he moved to Partick, his parish of origin, where he carried out his parish and hospital duties in the larger sphere of St. Peter's and the Western Infirmary.

For the next few years his motto could have been "Have chalice, will travel." He was often called on to help out in parishes where the parish priest was ill. This culminated in his assisting Father Tony Tansey in Holy Cross, Croy, for two years, while Father Tansey was having heart surgery and then convalescing.

His last few months as a curate were back in the Cathedral, where he had started his apostolate 27 years before. For a priest who had worked so hard at the new Rite of Reconciliation, the hours spent hearing confessions in the Cathedral must have been quite a penance!

In 1984 he was given his first charge as parish priest of Corpus Christi, Scotstounhill.

He was just finding his feet in the new job, when he was asked to take on the much larger parish of St. Conval's, Pollok. He was tremendously happy there, supported by his assistant priests, a very active group of parishioners, and a little community of Missionaries of Charity (Mother Teresa's Sisters). Visiting the school, the sick, the bereaved, keeping in touch with all the parish organisations, finding time to keep in touch with the local non-denominational handicapped club, filled his days. Being a stubborn person who liked to know the why of things, he did not always welcome with enthusiasm the suggestions made about pastoral planning, but he was always open, and when persuaded of the justice of what was being asked, he was wholehearted in his support of the work being undertaken. He was proud of being involved in the decoration of the church, and he enjoyed coming home from visiting the parish, to potter in the garden, making the church grounds as attractive as possible. Pat was a cultured and civilized person. He loved to read poetry. He loved listening to classical music, whether at home in the presbytery, at a night out at the theatre, or simply driving along in this car.

A big-minded man, he was always ready for an argument, not for argument's sake, but looking for the right answer to problems. A man of real humility, he was ready to learn from others. He enjoyed listening to younger priests, hearing their ideas, discussing them, testing them, and if convinced he would gratefully accept them. He spoke as he thought, with great honesty, sometimes with a quick temper, especially if he thought an injustice was being done. He was not a person who told jokes, but he had a quiet sense of humour, with a lovely appreciation of the ridiculous. He enjoyed the company of his fellow-priests, and had also a wide circle of lay friends with whom he enjoyed playing bridge.

A well-integrated person, he was a quiet man of prayer; a pastor, content to be at the service of his people whom he held in great respect. Sitting in his room, he loved to hear the laughter of his assistants. He was content that they were happy.

In spite of his solemn demeanour he had a kindly approach to people. A young single parent coming in some trepidation to arrange a baptism, would be welcomed and congratulated on the safe delivery of her child. He was a pastor of great compassion, who tried to accept people where they were, rather than where he might think they should be.

The last years of his life were dogged by poor health. High blood pressure and a weakened heart slowed him down, but he worked and played right to the end. He had his last game of golf a couple of weeks before going into hospital, and he was still bringing Communion to his housebound the day before he signed himself in. Soon after his operation, he knew that he was dying. He discussed his death openly with his family and friends, and made arrangements for life to go on.

He was ready for death, but was honestly afraid of the pain, and embarrassed by the sickness which accompanied it.

His family, Father Pat Currie and Father Bob McCann, the medical staff, nurses from the parish and the presbytery staff supported him until God called him mercifully to Himself on 12th May.

May this gentle good man rest in peace.

Very Rev. John Canon Boyle, Ph.D., S.T.L., B.C.L.—17th May, 1993

Canon John Boyle, retired parish priest of St. Mungo's, Greenock, died in the Southern General Hospital in Glasgow on Monday, 17th May, 1993 after a brief illness. At the beginning of the Funeral Mass for the Canon (the first priest to be buried from St. Mungo's Church), Bishop Mone extended his sympathy, and that of the priests and people of the diocese of Paisley, to his family and relatives.

John Boyle was born in Glasgow on 12th August, 1906. He received his primary education in St. Mark's, Carntyne, and St. Anne's, Dennistoun, before proceeding to St. Aloysius' College. It was while he was a student there, that he felt the call to serve God in the priesthood. Archbishop Mackintosh accepted his application to enter the seminary, and sent him to St. Mary's College, Blairs, Aberdeen, to complete his secondary education. From there he went to the Pontifical Scots College in Rome, to study philosophy and theology. From all accounts, he was a brilliant student. He was ordained priest in the Chapel of the Lateran Seminary by Cardinal Basil Pompili on Septuagesima Sunday, 16th February, 1930, and returned to this country in the summer of that year, to take up an appointment as assistant priest in St. James', Renfrew. He subsequently held similar appointments in St. Mary's, Paisley, St. Laurence's, Greenock, and St. Margaret's, Johnstone. In all of these parishes, he worked energetically for the youth, and was a stalwart in the work of the Catholic Truth Society.

Shortly after celebrating his Silver Jubilee as a priest, the late Bishop Black gave him his first charge, Our Lady of Lourdes, Bishopton. A few years later he was appointed parish priest of St. Mungo's, Greenock; he retired from that post in 1969, and served briefly as chaplain to the Convent of Our Lady of the Missions, Netherlee, before taking up residence in St. Mary's, Grenock.

A few years ago, he realised his health was failing and so he moved to Nazareth House, Cardonald, where he enjoyed the companionship of his fellow priest residents, and was grateful for the loving care of the Sisters and staff.

May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Francis Canon Holden—28th May, 1993

Canon Francis Holden, retired parish priest of St. John the Baptist's, Corstorphine, Edinburgh, died on 28th May, 1993, in the 78th year of his age and the 54th of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass, the following homily was delivered by Father Stephen McGrath, O.F.M., of St. Patrick's, Cowgate, Edinburgh.

Canon Francis Holden was born in 1916 in Colne, Lancashire, one of four children, the only boy. At the age of 16 months his father died and his mother was left to provide for and rear the family. Remarkably, all four children realised their vocations to the religious life. Sister Mary and Sister Anne became Daughters of Jesus and Sister Elizabeth, who died in 1989, became Sister of the Little Ones. Francis joined the Redemptorist Fathers and after the usual novitiate and six years of study in philosophy and theology, was ordained priest at Hawkstone, Shropshire in 1939. In his time with the Redemptorists, he was employed preaching parish missions all over the United Kingdom. Anyone who heard him preach will recognise how those preaching years with the Redemptorists helped him to develop the fluency and clarity with which he passed on the message of the Gospel.

After his years with the Redemptorists, he felt the need to become more involved in parish ministry and so, in 1950, he was accepted by Archbishop McDonald—and the following year was incardinated into the Archdiocese.

His first appointment was to St. Mary of the Angels, Camelon, Falkirk, and then he had a short spell at the Cathedral. His first appointment as parish priest was at Innerleithen in the Borders. Finally, he came to St. John's, Corstorphine in February 1972. This was his last appointment and he retired in February 1991.

I last saw the Canon the week before last, before I left for a pilgrimage to Knock in Ireland. When I returned last Saturday, I was shocked to hear the news of his death. Shocked, because although he has had his ups and downs in health since he retired, there was no indication that he was ill.

So, now he has gone to his reward, you may be wondering why I have the privilege of preaching at his Requiem. Well, it goes back 12 years when I was appointed Guardian at St. Francis, Lothian Street in July 1981. As soon as I arrived at the Friary, Father Bruno said to me: "Phone Frank Holden". I said, "Certainly—who is Frank Holden?" I found the number and assured him the Sunday supply which we had done for some years would carry on as usual. From then we became friendly and I suspect it was because we were fellow Lancastrians. Anyway, the friendship developed and carried on until he died.

So, here we are celebrating the funeral rites of Canon Holden. Celebrating might seem an inappropriate word for such a sad occasion, but whenever we come together as Christians in joy or sorrow, we celebrate the fact that we are the family of the Risen Christ and heirs to his promise of eternal life.

In the first reading of our Mass today we read: "The life and death of each one of us has its influence on others. If we live, we live for the Lord; and if we die, we die for the Lord".

I have no doubt that the Canon lived and died for the Lord. This is borne out by the affection in which Canon Holden was held by the parishioners of St. John's. I know this personally because I regularly supplied here on Sundays and when the Canon took his holiday. He was always aware of the needs of his people and systematically tended to their needs. He was especially attentive to the sick in the area, for whom he had a special care.

"The life and death of each one of us has its influence on others." I suppose we can never know quite what influence we have on others. Occasionally, in the life of a priest, who is so concerned with other people, the priest gets a glimpse of the good he is doing. Often it is something he hasn't even noticed, but someone has been profoundly affected. Most of the time, life is routine and we don't stop to think how we are affecting those in our charge. Life is like that.

Canon Holden was a worrier. He did his best at all times for his people, but sometimes he had to be reassured that in more than 50 years of priesthood as Redemptorist and secular, he had done a great deal of good for God's people. I am sure that all the people with whom he came into contact during his long priestly life would confirm that he lived for the Lord. He was always conscious of his duty to his people. They were constantly in his thoughts and prayers. Indeed I might say that he had very few other interests, apart from his vocation to minister to the people. He lived for the Lord through his service to others.

The Gospel chosen for this Funeral Mass is the story of the raising of the widow's son at Nain. This same Gospel was read at the Canon's Ordination Mass. It is an appropriate choice. The Canon was an only son and his mother was widowed when he was a baby. At the word of Christ, the widow's son was restored to life. When we die, we are raised to another life, the eternal life, which can never end.

I said earlier that the Canon was a worrier. We can say now that his worries are at an end. In the words of St. Paul to Timothy: "I have run the great race, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith. And now the prize awaits me, the garland of righteousness which the Lord, the just judge, will award me on the great day".

Canon Francis Holden has run his race and has received his reward. As we celebrate this Requiem Mass for the repose of his soul, let us remember his family and friends. I offer my condolences to Sisters Mary and Anne, to his faithful housekeeper, Anna, to his friends here in St. John's Parish, and to all his friends and acquaintances.

His good soul rest in peace. Amen.

Rev. Thomas B. O'Connor—20th June, 1993

Two bishops, seventy priests, several religious, Provost William Orr of Renfrew District and a packed congregation joined the Requiem Mass for Rev. Thomas B. O'Connor in St. Conval's Church, Linwood. Attending the Mass were his sister Mrs. B. Begley and cousin, Miss Mary Griffin both from his native Dingle, Co. Kerry. Rev. Kevin Scallon, C.M., and Poor Clare Sister Briege McKenna came from Langbank Centre where the Paisley clergy interrupted their retreat to attend the funeral.

To forget a loved one is to do him a great injustice, said Father Brendan Healy, parish priest of St. Conval's, Linwood, in his homily. To be forgotten is to be treated as if we never existed. By remembering Father O'Connor we will continue to reap a harvest from what he sowed with us here on earth. Because he was so genuine and caring, I'm sure Tommy will remember us before the Throne of God . . . In Dingle people are saying today: Ar Deis De go rabh a anam—May his soul be on God's right side, concluded Father Healy.

Bishop John Mone of Paisley officiated at the graveside in the Paisley diocesan plot in St. Conval's Cemetery, Barrhead, assisted by Bishop Stephen McGill, former Bishop of Paisley.

Father O'Connor was born in Dingle on 21st November, 1923, and was educated at the Christian Brothers School, Dingle, before going to Mount Melleray Abbey, Cappoquin, and to St. John's College, Waterford, to study for the priesthood. He was ordained priest for Paisley on 14th June, 1953, in Holy Trinity Cathedral, Waterford. He was one of the 120 Kerry-born priests who worked in Scotland giving great service to the Church and the good of souls since the Catholic Emancipation Act of 1829 proposed by another Kerryman, Daniel O'Connell.

While assistant at St. Mirin's Cathedral, Paisley, 1953-1971, he was assistant diocesan M.C. and had charge of the Catholic Transport Guild (Paisley). He was assistant at St. John's, Barrhead, 1971-1975, and had charge of the Paisley diocesan cemetery, St. Conval's, Barrhead. He became parish priest of St. Joseph & St. Patrick, Wemyss Bay in 1975 and was moved in 1977 to St. Francis' Church, Port Glasgow.

Ill-health caused him to retire in 1978, and he took up residence at St. Conval's, Linwood. Although living in retirement he was noted for his work in the parish prayer group and was a popular confessor. Only days before his death he celebrated the 40th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood in Vienna where he had gone on holiday to avoid any fuss or crowd to mark his celebration. He died on 20th June at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, Paisley, supported by his sister, cousin and Father Healy.

It is not easy to assess the complete work of Father O'Connor but certain aspects of his priesthood suggest themselves. In his forty years as a priest he said at least 14,600 Masses, heard about 200,000 confessions, baptised many infants, instructed several adults into the faith, joined many in the great bond of marriage, administered the Sacrament of the Sick to the sick and the dying particularly at Hawkhead Hospital, Paisley, when attached to St. Mirin's Cathedral for eighteen years of his priesthood. In doing so he was, as St. Paul says, a dispenser of the mysteries of God to so many souls. He had tried to give Christ to the little world that Providence had arranged for him in Paisley diocese. He had kept the faith, he finished the course and is now gone to the God he had loved and served so faithfully in his priesthood of forty years.

Rev. John O'Sullivan—15th July, 1993

John O'Sullivan was born on 17th December, 1920, in Dumbarton, and was baptised in St. Patrick's. His father was from Kerry, his mother from Antrim. He was the second eldest of nine children. John left school at 14 years of age. He felt that he should start working, and so served his time in the shipyards. However, he wasn't quite satisfied and attended night-school to further his education. Even prior to this he'd done as many another and "gone out with the milk", and would recall trips to the farms on the Kilpatrick hills to collect milk.

During those early days, John grew up in a loving family circle which meant a lot to him throughout his life. From his parents he'd gained a deep, prayerful faith, self discipline, humility and a great love for Dumbarton and Ireland. Many a family displayed the same characteristics—they were the distinguishing marks of a parish guided by Monsignor Kelly and a team of assistants who, like the Monsignor, were later to become 'worthies' in their own way.

For a time, John and others had to go to England to get work. He would wryly remark that the landlady took all and gave nothing in return: they were starved. His workmates in those days have nothing but praise and admiration for him because his standards were never lowered. When all around him there was no delicacy of tongue, he was moderate. They could see, even then, that he was a man of prayer and deep faith, but who also had a lovely sense of humour. Nurtured and groomed by his family, his parish and his days in the Boys' Guild and the choir, and while quietly helping out at Carmel with repairs, he felt unfulfilled. During the war he continued to work in the yards, and did his stint as a fire-watcher for Carmel and his own parish church. Now the notion of the priesthood began to grow, and after the war he made his decision. To date his education had been adequate, but now he needed something more, and so he entered Osterley College where he met with other young men, many of whom were returning from the Forces.

From there, he graduated to the seminary at Cardross. On various occasions, he was appointed to positions of trust and responsibility—students of the time would tell you this was no surprise, for, like the landmark of his hometown, he was solid, honest and dependable.

He was ordained in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, on 29th June, 1954. This was followed by appointments as assistant to the parishes of The Sacred Heart, St. Vincent de Paul, St. Flannan's, Our Lady of Consolation and St. Agnes'. In 1982, he was appointed parish priest of St. Monica's.

Father John brought to the priesthood all the natural gifts his family and native parish had nurtured. These burgeoned with the grace of ordination. Each parish found him to be a hard-working, door-to-door priest. To each he gave his loyalty, and his parish priests must have appreciated the steadfast fidelity and obedience of this good priest. Like many another, he had to face the changing church. He did his best to modernise his reading and studies so as to do the right thing. It gave him the greatest of joy when Father Michael O'Connell and he eventually saw St. Flannan's opened: a monument bridging the old and the new church.

Father John loved clerical company, and socialised with both old and young priest friends. Priests or people, once you got to know him, you just knew that you had a friend for life—someone who could laugh with you, or cry with you—a humble, caring priest.

On and off during his priestly life, he'd had various illnesses, and especially damage to his legs, but he got on with his duties uncomplainingly. At St. Monica's, his health began to deteriorate, with his legs and hips particularly troubling him. He reached that state where, with the greatest regret, he informed the archbishop that he could not carry on giving the people the service they deserved.

And so, on 16th March 1990, he came to reside in St. Mary's, Duntocher, where he knew he was welcome. These final years saw further physical deterioration: he struggled on, with the help of a stick, saying Mass and helping with confessions. During 1993, his breathing became very laboured. In June, he was admitted to Gartnavel General Hospital where the diagnosis was that he had tumours in his lungs and at the base of his spine. After two weeks he was transferred to the hospice in Clydebank where he edified everyone, and where he was so grateful for the care and support he received there.

On 15th July, 1993, he passed to his reward, dying as he had lived: with his rosary in his hand, giving no trouble to anyone. May he rest in peace.

His Eminence Gordon Joseph Cardinal Gray
Archbishop Emeritus of St. Andrews and Edinburgh
19th July, 1993

Cardinal Gordon Joseph Gray, the first resident Cardinal in Scotland since the Reformation, died in Edinburgh Royal Infirmary on 19th July, 1993, in the 83rd year of his age, the 59th of his Priesthood, the 42nd of his Episcopate and the 25th of his Cardinalate. At his Funeral Mass in the Metropolitan Cathedral Church of St. Mary, Edinburgh, on Friday, 23rd July, prior to the deposition in the episcopal vault of the Cathedral, the following homily was delivered by the Most Reverend Keith Patrick O'Brien, Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh.

Last Monday morning, 19 July 1993, I was privileged, along with members of his family, our Assistant Bishop, Bishop Rafferty, my Vicars General, and Sister Cyril, the Cardinal's devoted housekeeper, to be at the Cardinal's bedside in Edinburgh Royal Infirmary as he quietly, prayerfully, peacefully, and with very great dignity, gave himself up to the Lord.

His long, happy and very fulfilled life on earth was over—a life that had touched very many others. It had been intensely moving over these last few days to realise the care and concern of so very many people for Cardinal Gray and to take part in the tremendous outpouring of prayer and love for that man so well known and loved by us all. Being so close to him prior to his death, and reading and watching the very many beautiful tributes paid to him in the press, on radio and on television, my thoughts went back to the death of that other most lovable of men, the late Pope John XXIII and the universal sorrow at his passing too.

Shortly after the Cardinal's death, one of his executors read me part of his handwritten will. He indicated some of the hymns that he would wish sung at today's Funeral Mass and then wrote:

"I prefer that in place of a panegyric, the Prayers of the Faithful be asked for me. During my life, I have been given more than enough publicity by reason of my office."

One would have expected the Cardinal to write something like that. He was aware of the intense publicity which had surrounded him, particularly since his elevation as a Cardinal—but what he at times did not realise was that the publicity which came to him was not only by reason of his 'office', but because of the man which he himself was.

He indicated his preference in his last will and testament, but I am sure that he, an obedient son of the Church, would not mind if I, his successor as Archbishop, did say something about this man, loved by so many people, in the light of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. The words of Jesus as recorded in the Gospel reading of today's Mass from St. Matthew's Gospel are so very beautiful, speaking of the simplicity of life to which we are all called:

"I bless you, Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, for hiding these things from the learned and the clever and revealing them to mere children."

In some ways, despite his own deep learning and years of experience in administrative work, the Cardinal had something of that simple faith of a child for which so many of us long.

That faith motivated him throughout his life; and those words of St. Paul to the Romans could have been written of Gordon Gray:

"The life and death of each one of us has its influence on others."

In one of the tributes recently paid in a national newspaper, it was stated:

"His influence has been considerable, sweeping away bigotry with charm and humour. He will be remembered as Scotland's good shepherd."

The facts of his life have been detailed for us in the press recently—and indeed a full outline of the main events of the Cardinal's life are contained in the book prepared for the 'Order of Service'. And so, I would simply like to speak to you of that man so well-known and so well-loved—that man of deep and abiding faith. It is indeed hard to sum up a life of eighty-two years in some few minutes, but I would like to think with you of the life of Cardinal Gray in three distinct phases: his early life and life as a priest; his life as Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh and Cardinal; and his life in retirement.

And so, the early life of Gordon Gray.

Born in Leith in 1910—and always intensely proud of being a 'Leither'—the Cardinal's education was initially in Edinburgh at Holy Cross Academy before studying for the priesthood at St. Joseph's, Mark Cross and St. John's Seminary, Womersh. After his ordination to the priesthood on 15 June 1935, the young Father Gray served as assistant in St. Andrews, Fife while attending the University from which he graduated in 1939, the first Catholic priest to graduate there in modern times. He served as parish priest of Ss. Mary and David, Hawick, for some six years before his appointment as Rector of St. Mary's Junior Seminary, Blairs in 1947.

Of those first sixteen years in the priesthood—what can we say?

He showed, wherever he was, an intense love of people—people who still remember him and speak of him with affection. He had, yes that love of people, but also a great love of nature. Fond of gardening, he also acquired a great love of woodwork from his uncle, with whom he served in St. Andrews, and his skill was shown in Hawick where he carved altar rails for the church there. Still spoken of with love and affection, one of our parishioners in Hawick still speaks of the Cardinal as a priest who kept chickens—she herself inheriting the chicken coop when he moved to Blairs.

A love of his parishes and people, an intense love of St. Mary's College, Blairs, a love which was renewed throughout most of his life as a bishop during his regular visits to the college as a Trustee of Blairs—those first 'loves' were to remain with him all his life. When I was appointed Rector of Blairs in 1980, the Cardinal gave me some sound advice:

"Remember," he said, "a seminary is first and foremost a place where young men, thinking of the priesthood, learn priestly virtue from those who are already priests. It is your own spirituality, your own way of life which is important in the formation of others."

And he himself lived that advice which he handed on to others.

The second phase of Gordon Gray's life began with his appointment as Archbishop of St. Andrews and Edinburgh in 1951—a position which he held until his retirement in 1985, a period of thirty-four years. This was a period of intense growth for the Church and during his time in office, the Cardinal opened almost thirty new parishes and thirty-seven new churches in the Archdiocese, as well as founding St. Andrew's College, Drygrange.

In the ecumenical sphere, the new Archbishop pioneered initiatives, participating in many services and conferences, leading in some cases to joint inter-church statements. In 1968, he became the first Catholic since the Reformation to preach from the John Knox pulpit in St. Andrew's University Chapel, and in 1969, he preached in St. Mary's Episcopal Cathedral, Edinburgh. Other church men and women, theologians and leaders, respected his theological insights, as well as his basic honesty—he would never compromise his beliefs; while the ordinary person in the pew respected the man for what he was, honest and sincere in his convictions about his own faith, while wanting to reach out in every way possible to others. He was a realist—he acknowledged that Christian unity would not be achieved in his lifetime, but he was delighted to see the progress to unity continuing.

Perhaps the event which had the greatest influence on his life and thinking was the Second Vatican Council, in which he took part in every session. "The Council changed me in various ways", said Archbishop Gray.

His eyes were opened more and more to the needs of others, especially those in missionary lands and under-developed countries. He showed his practical concern for the missions by undertaking in 1964 the responsibility for staffing and financing the Bauchi Province of Northern Nigeria, an area as large as Scotland itself. He served on various committees and commissions, including various Roman Congregations, following on the Second Vatican Council, particularly the Sacred Congregation for Divine Worship, the Pontifical Commission for Social Communications and the Sacred Congregation for Evangelisation of Peoples—as well as being Chairman for six years of the International Commission for English in the Liturgy.

It was with great joy that not only the Catholics of Scotland, but the whole people received the news in 1969 that Gordon Gray was to be the first resident Scottish Cardinal in Scotland since the Reformation and only the second Scot to receive the Red Hat since 1546.

The life of the new Cardinal became even more busy, being involved, not only in his own Diocese, but throughout Scotland and indeed ever more involved with the world-wide Church centred on Rome.

And here in Scotland in 1977, Cardinal Gray became the first Cardinal ever to attend and address the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland. He appreciated the nature of the Presbyterian Church of Scotland and again won over many of those listening to him by his basic honesty and sincerity. He loved to recall the time at the Second Vatican Council when Pope Paul VI looked towards the observer delegates from other Churches to the Council and made, on behalf of the whole Catholic Church, his act of contrition begging

God's forgiveness if in any way the Catholic Church had been responsible for any hurt, separation or injury to others.

In all this period of intense activity—what can we say of Gordon Gray, the man?

I think it is time to record that his appointment as Archbishop and indeed his appointment as Cardinal did not change him personally in any way at all. Despite his increasing workload as a Cardinal, he still found time for refuge in his garden with his dogs and with his pipe. And in that, I think there is indicated something of the attraction of the Cardinal to the ordinary person. During his last illness, a taxi driver said to one of my brother bishops:

"How is the Cardinal keeping now? You know there are three things which we like about him—his pipe, his gardening and his dog!"

He was still very much the caring, pastoral priest—who found his refuge and his rest in his times of prayer, rest and retreat in the little cottage prepared for him by the Cistercian Monks at Nunraw Abbey.

His pastoral work in the geographically-scattered Diocese continued apace, meeting his priests, visiting the convents and schools, listening to the needs of his people, helped always by the unswerving loyalty of his Assistant Bishop, Bishop James Monaghan, happily present here with us today.

And, of course, there were outstanding events in his life, the memory of which always remained with him—his taking part in the two Conclaves which elected Pope John Paul I and then Pope John Paul II; and the memorable visit of Pope John Paul II to Scotland in 1982. This was for him the highlight of his life. And I am sure it made his heart swell with pride when the Pope knelt beside the tarmac at Edinburgh Airport and kissed the soil of Scotland, the Cardinal's native land, of which he was so intensely proud.

The Cardinal had indeed a very active and fulfilled ministry as priest and bishop, being a very human communicator of the love of God to others by word and by example.

The third phase of the Cardinal's life began when he reached his 75th year. In many ways, he longed for retirement because of his increasingly poor health, coupled with, at times, increasing care and concern for those entrusted to his ministry. From a period of great growth, the Church in his Diocese and in Scotland as a whole, was undergoing a period of consolidation with some necessary contraction. Various events which happened did cause him hurt: the closure of the Catholic teacher training college in the East of Scotland; the necessary closure or combination of parishes, convents and schools; the closure of the National Junior Seminary at Blairs College; the move of the Diocesan Seminary from Drygrange to Gillis College and then the eventual closure of Gillis College. All of these moves were indeed necessary—and while acknowledging this, that man of deep faith was ready to respond to new challenges, even in his retirement.

Perhaps this period of retirement of eight years, which has just drawn to a close with his death, was one of the happiest periods of his life and in many ways was similar to his early life in the priesthood. Freed from administrative duties, he could give more time to his life of prayer and to thinking about the great events of the past in which he had taken part.

But he was still very active in retirement. I had said to him publicly that he would be an 'honoured and revered figure at each and every one of our Diocesan events in which he wished to take part'.

And he certainly availed of that invitation.

Along with many of you, I have so many happy memories of the Cardinal 'presiding from his wheelchair' in our Cathedral, at Gillis College, or on other Diocesan occasions, perhaps the greatest being the visit of Mother Teresa to our city just a few weeks ago. He was there, happily presiding and directing and guiding his people still with his words of help and advice.

A communicator par excellence, it was his proud boast that, in the days before modern amplification systems, when preaching in our Cathedral, his voice could still be heard at the foot of Leith Walk!

His ability to communicate was seen at the opening of the magnificent new piazza in front of our Cathedral when, again from his wheelchair, he went from group to group after the ceremony speaking equally at ease with the Convener and officials of our Regional Council, with Sir Edward Paolozzi, the Queen's Sculptor in Scotland, and with the groups of school children from our Cathedral Primary School. He was indeed a man at home and at ease with anybody and everyone.

He had that very beautiful gift of being able to make everyone realise that they were important to him. He certainly did that to me—I found a regular refuge in his home in the grounds of Gillis College very frequently when I withdrew to him for help and advice or, quite simply, for company. I learned from him something of his easy relationship with Almighty God. Shortly after my own appointment as Archbishop, he sent me a prayer card, on the front of which was printed:

"Lord, help me to remember that nothing is going to happen to me today that you and I together can't handle."

And on the reverse of the card, he had written, in his own handwriting:

"Hoping that this will light up the skies when the clouds are heavy."

It was from the Lord that he got his own strength when those clouds were heavy and he faced any sort of disappointment.

And it seems that the Lord never failed him—he was always ready to 'bounce back'.

When the closure of Gillis College as our Diocesan Seminary was announced, he was indeed saddened but, following on the Declaration from Rome of the acknowledgement of John Duns Scotus as a 'Blessed', he wrote to me in his own handwriting on 4 December 1992, a letter which I shared with my brother Bishops at our next meeting:

"I realise that a national seminary has been an objective for close on a century . . . the sooner the two colleges die, the sooner the united national college can be baptised into a new life with a new name. My suggestion—perhaps obvious—could the national seminary be called, as soon as possible, 'Scotus College'? . . . Now Scotus is recognised as a theologian by the Church of Scotland, as well as by ourselves, and could indeed be the road to unity—especially now with ACTS."

Yes, a life for prayer and unity in the Catholic community, as well as in the community at large. And he went on to write in that same letter just some six months ago:

"Our sacrifice of Gillis might well be the opening of a new door to Christian unity in our country. I feel happier now in my conviction that the closing of Gillis may well be the price we must pay, that 'They may be one as thou Father in me and I in you. That they may be one in us.' I can pray for the national college now with peace in my heart—which I had not before the surprise news about Scotus."

Care for people of his own faith—increasing care and concern that the Catholic community in Scotland would work together as one; that the larger Christian community would be united as Christ had prayed; that all the people of the nation of Scotland would live together in peace and harmony, concerned not only for their own spiritual and material well-being, but also for those less fortunate in other parts of the world.

His last public Mass was concelebrated with me and some of my brother priests in Gillis College at 7.30 a.m. on the morning of Tuesday 6 July, just two weeks before his death, as we were preparing to depart on our Diocesan Pilgrimage to Lourdes. Following on that Mass, he joined us in procession to the Lourdes Grotto in the grounds of Gillis College and there united with us in prayer before giving us his final words of advice:

"I envy you your pilgrimage to Lourdes. Pray for me, as Sister Cyril and I will pray for you each day at this Shrine during your pilgrimage."

He was not able to fulfil that promise during his life on earth as he was moved to the Infirmary before the end of our pilgrimage. As our pilgrimage in Lourdes was ending, so too his own pilgrimage on earth was drawing to a close, helped I am sure by the intercession of Mary, the Mother of God, as he prepared for his final meeting with his Lord and Master.

On this occasion, I thank most sincerely those who loved him and cared for him during his life on earth. Our particular thanks are due to all of the members of the Gray family, who so readily sacrificed their brother, their uncle to the needs of the greater Church. I thank Sister Cyril, the late Sister Zita, and all of the Ursuline Sisters, who cared so well and in such a dedicated way for the Cardinal during his many years of life and service from St. Bennet's and in the Hermitage at Gillis College. And I thank in a very special way, the Cardinal's doctor, Dr. O'Neill, Dr. Miller, and the dedicated and self-sacrificing staff of doctors, nurses and ancillary helpers in the Royal Infirmary, Edinburgh, who ensured that the Cardinal received the most specialised care, with dedicated love and attention, right up to the moment of his death.

When preaching here in our Cathedral during his retirement on the occasion of the 175th Anniversary of the Cathedral, on 15 August 1989, the Cardinal ended his words by stating:

"I have seen and admired the great medieval and modern cathedrals and basilicas of many lands. But, for me, St. Mary's Cathedral is the most beloved Gate of Heaven and House of God, through which and in which I hope one day to enter into life."

Perhaps many of you saw that interview with the Cardinal which appeared as part of tributes recently. The Cardinal was asked if he was looking forward to meeting his Maker. He paused and then, with that endearing smile and still resonant voice, he stated:

"Yes—if he is looking forward as much as I am, I am sure we will be very happy!"

There was still, in that remark, an indication of his simple, child-like faith!

Having helped so many others of his own faith, of other faiths and of none, throughout his life, we now pray that this great and good man may indeed enter into eternal life and share happiness with the Lord for ever.

May the Lord grant him eternal rest and strengthen us in our faith, making us all the better for having known him.

Rev. Malachy Bergin—8th August, 1993

Malachy Colum Bergin was born on 18th June, 1925, in Co. Tipperary, Ireland; he received his early education at Roscomroe Primary School and from there he continued his secondary formation at St. Flannan's College, Ennis. He began his studies for the priesthood at St. Patrick's, Carlow, where he was ordained priest on 5th June, 1949. Being ordained for the Archdiocese of Glasgow, he duly arrived there on 12th July, 1949, destined for St. Constantine's, Govan.

He spent eighteen years serving the people of Govan, and he loved them and soon became a part of their lives which he cherished and spoke about with great affection and at great length.

He was transferred, still in the south side of the city, to St. Conval's, Pollok, in 1967, where he served as senior assistant to Father Jock Wilson. He was eventually moved on to look after the parish of St. Leo the Great in Dumbreck, during the illness of Father Joe Nee. After seven months he was appointed to the Immaculate Conception in Maryhill, where he was to serve for two years. In 1976, he was appointed parish priest of St. Alphonsus', in the London Road, Glasgow's East End.

In 1978 he was given charge of St. Roch's parish in Glasgow's famous Garngad where he remained until 1992. Father Mal's next and final move was fourteen years later, to St. John's Twechar, in 1992.

I met Father Mal for the very first time in St. Constantine's parish in 1963, where I had the privilege of serving with him for four years. Those from St. Constantine's in the congregation at his funeral would readily recognise the name Teucher, or Teucherhill, a well-known area in that parish. Those from Twechar would recognise the mention of their own town. When Father Mal was appointed to St. John of the Cross, I was already established in St. Flannan's, Kirkintilloch, and was delighted when I heard the news that he was going to become my next door neighbour. After a short time he called to see me, and we made our way over to see his church and house. During the short journey by car, I suggested to Mal that this might be a good time to start writing his autobiography, and that a fitting title might be, "From Teucher to Twechar"! Little did either of us know that within the space of nine months God would have other plans and would have called him home.

He was thrilled to be back in the countryside after forty-three years in various city parishes—back to his roots, as it were—and he set about his work in the parish with his customary energy and zeal, and despite the setback of the January storms of '93, when he lost the roof from the church, which suffered severe flooding as a result, he restored and refurbished the beautiful little church of St. John. He planted twenty-six new young trees; everything was shaping up fine—except that he began to feel a bit unwell and only when prodded, did he admit to some back pains on his left-hand side. This would be as early in the year as March/April. These pains persisted and he was forced to go for X-rays, and finally a scan which revealed shadows on the left lung. A biopsy was arranged which he underwent in the Glasgow Royal Infirmary on 16th June, two days before his 68th birthday. I suggested he come to stay in St. Flannan's, which he did on 19th June. He received the result of the biopsy on 22nd June: diagnosis—lung cancer. A course of radiotherapy was recommended by the specialist, to which he readily agreed. After ten days with us in the Chapel-house, Mother Monica of the Little Sisters of the Poor invited him to their new home in Robroyston. He went there on 1st July, and remained for four weeks during which time he was taken for his regular sessions of radiotherapy to the Western Infirmary. There has to be recorded here a deep and sincere vote of thanks to Eoin McGowan for his devotion and care of Father Mal especially in his role as nurse/ambulance man/friend/Guardian Angel.

At this time, because of severe loss of energy, he was transferred to the Marie Curie Hospice for blood transfusions, but in the event he was too weak even for these. After six days, he died on Sunday, 8th August, fortified by the sacraments and surrounded by his brother, Father Frank, and members of his family.

I have been privileged to know Malachy for thirty years and I make no apology that I have loved and admired the man for many and varied reasons. His enthusiasm, his joie de vivre; his love for people especially those whom he served in different parishes; his love for his fellow-priests; he often harked back to the Govan-Team—Sam McGinness, Saba Tedeschi, myself and of course Mal (the P.P. never got a mention in those days!). he often mentioned the St. Roch's Team—Peter Lennon, Jim Wallace, myself and Mal (this time, Mal, the P.P. WAS mentioned!)

His enormous generosity and hospitality was legendary in the diocese. His fun and sense of humour (I borrowed his golf clubs with his permission only to discover that they were left-handed!) He had many virtues, but I think his gentleness, his kindness and understanding could only be described in superlatives. His wisdom and sound advice was oft sought and treasured. His love of sport was demonstrated in his prowess for fishing, shooting and golf.

The first line of the first reading from the liturgy of his funeral Mass could be the appropriate and fitting summing up of Malachy, man and priest: 'The souls of the virtuous are in the hands of God . . .' Malachy was virtuous in the sense that he was a man of high moral excellence; he excelled in many things during his 68 years; his standards were very high, and like most of ours, unattainable in this short life. He was human, like all of us, therefore in need of forgiveness.

The Gospel of the liturgy, chosen by Father Frank, was taken from St. Matthew where Jesus teaches us the beatitudes. In these simple promises Jesus is singling out the good which is in people; the qualities in people which, despite their faults and failings, would have us say of them, 'He was a good person; she was a good person.' Jesus adds that the Kingdom of Heaven is made up of people such as these.

We have mentioned some of the qualities which we have seen and admired in Father Mal. These same qualities have also made him loveable and very dear to Christ—'Happy are the gentle, they shall have the earth for their heritage.'

Let us thank God for the gift of Father Mal's life; let us thank him for the gift of having known him; let us pray that he will receive the reward of his goodness.

G. K. Chesterton made a simple inscription on the fly-leaf of a book he was giving to a young child; it said, 'Please remember my name when you are saying your prayers.'

I would ask all of you today: Please remember Father Malachy Bergin's name when you are saying your prayers.

Very Rev. Thomas P. Canon Mannion—9th August, 1993

The people of St. Mary's, Paisley, were shocked and saddened at the sudden death of their beloved parish priest, Canon Thomas Mannion, on 9th August, 1993.

Two weeks earlier, recovering from his last bout of illness, he had set off for Ireland to be with his relatives in Wexford. Agnes his housekeeper, and her brother Dan Cattigan, accompanied him; they had been close friends since his early days in St. Mary's.

He became ill and they took him to hospital in Wexford, but in spite of medical attention and loving care, he deteriorated rapidly and died peacefully. Canon Tom, as ever was prepared to meet the Lord when he had served so faithfully all his life.

Thomas Mannion was born in Partick of excellent Catholic parents on 5th March 1920. The seeds of his vocation, sown surely in his home, flourished in the good soil of St. Peter's parish. He entered Blairs in 1934 and after five years passed to the Major Seminary of St. Peter's, Bearsden. The next six years were spent there, with the exception of a brief spell in Mill Hill. He was ordained priest on 29th June, 1946 by Archbishop Campbell in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow.

After ordination, he spent a short time in St. Margaret's, Johnstone, and was then transferred to St. Brendan's, Yoker. In March 1947 he was appointed to St. Mary's, Paisley. He remained there till 1968.

St. Mary's, regarded as a prestigious parish, was presided over by Monsignor F. R. Pirrie. The regime in St. Mary's was regimental. Father Tom, ever punctual, even punctilious, fitted in easily. He threw himself with youthful enthusiasm into all the duties of a busy parish. Looking back it seems humdrum: Holy Mass each day, school visitation, confessions, sermons, various sodalities, youth activities, pastoral visitation, care of the many sick, etc. To all of these Fr. Tom gave such conscientious attention that he soon gained respect and affection. Their appreciation is recorded in his presentation testimonial.

In 1968 he was transferred to Port Glasgow. Assistant in Holy Family for a short time, he was then appointed parish priest of the newly erected parish of St. Francis. Perched high on a hill on the road leading to Kilmacolm, it had magnificent views of the Clyde estuary. It was a brand new housing development, nicely laid out, a parish of young families.

The Portonians are warmhearted and they readily rallied around the new parish priest who lived so close to them in a council house. All he had was the traditional green field. A suitable place for daily Mass was not available so they had to do with the confined living room of his house. For Sundays, fortunately, there was a nearby school. At this time there were two other parishes in the pipeline. This created a problem, financially. The Diocese could build only one church per annum, so Bishop McGill insisted on a delay for all three claimants. The going was hard that first winter, and so was the weather! Four more years had to pass before the new church and house took shape.

There was a joyous grand opening of the church in December 1974 by Bishop McGill. A fine hall too was erected at Father Mannion's insistence—a necessary parish and social asset in that area. Father Tom knew well what he wanted, knew how to organise a close-knit enthusiastic community. As a souvenir of his efforts in St. Francis', he was presented with an oil painting of the church, presbytery and hall. It had a place of honour in his sitting room.

The premature death of Father Eugene Divney in St. Mary's, Paisley, called for a mature and a worthy successor. Father Tom Mannion was the obvious choice and he was duly appointed in January, 1977. He was sorry to leave St. Francis' and the Port, but was happy to return to St. Mary's. He was coming back home. The following year he was appointed a Canon of St. Mirin's Cathedral Chapter, a joyous occasion for himself, his relatives and his many friends.

St. Mary's Church always looked well, but old churches need constant care and attention. He had the church painted and he put symbols of the seven sacraments in the panels on the altar reredos. He also installed the present presidential chair and lectern. Canon Tom Mannion will also be remembered for his thoughtfulness in erecting a stone over the grave of Canon McDonald who built St. Mary's Church, which was opened in 1891. His grave in Deans Grange cemetery, Dublin, had remained unmarked for fifty years.

For most of the next fifteen years he worked hard as a busy pastor, close to his people, always mindful of the Good Shepherd who said: "I know mine and miñe know me." He served the Catholics of the West End of Paisley for over forty years. He knew them and they knew him and loved him.

Canon Tom had a down to earth approach that appealed to people. He had only two colours, black and white. By nature shy, he could on occasion be blunt and appear abrasive, but underneath he was kind and always willing to help those in need or those with problems. He had a sense of humour and could, when he was well, make observations that a comic scriptwriter would envy!

Bad health dogged his last years. He was often in pain. He was a traditionalist in the best sense of the word, well content with the Church he knew and loved. His spiritual life centred around the Mass and the Blessed Sacrament. He had a great devotion to Our Lady and her Rosary. He was attached to his family and felt sorely the recent death of a young nephew.

Canon Tom Mannion was a priest through and through. He loved his priesthood and would have been happy with the simple epitaph: 'Sacerdos in aeternum'.

May he rest in peace.

Rev. Patrick Fallon—12th August, 1993

Father Patrick Fallon, parish priest of St. Marie's, Kirkcaldy, died on 12th August, 1993, in the 56th year of his age and the 25th of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass in the Church of St. Mary, Star of the Sea, Leith, the following homily was delivered by Father George Rodgers, parish priest of SS. Ninian and Triduana, Restalrig:

"Unless a wheat-grain falls to the ground and dies, it remains only a single grain, but if it dies, it yields a rich harvest."

Father Pat died last Thursday and his death has brought us all here together, united in prayer, faith, love and appreciation of Pat; united in sorrow at his passing; united in sympathy with Betty and Mary, his sisters, their husbands Pat and Tom, and all Pat's relations and friends, which includes us and many, many others besides.

I'm Father George Rodgers from St. Ninian's Parish, and I first had the pleasure of meeting Pat more than 30 years ago, when I began studying for the priesthood at Campion House, Osterley, and we've been friends ever since. I'm only one of many who could be up here speaking the words because Pat is special to us all, and, wonderfully, we are all special to him.

Pat died last Thursday at the age of 55. I'd like to speak of his life by dividing it into 3 parts: of 20, 10 and 25 years (that should keep the mathematicians among you occupied for the rest of the service!).

Pat was born in Loanhead, and after a few years, the family moved to this area, thenceforth belonging to a special breed of people called 'Leithers'. He attended St. Mary's Primary school and then St. Anthony's Secondary School. When he left school at the age of 15, he worked for the A.A. (Automobile Association). At 18 he was called up for his two years' National Service and joined the Scots Guards. When he returned he worked for a while with the A.A. again before entering the seminary.

In all that period of Pat's life, we could say that with Pat the emphasis was on receiving: or that the seed was growing. Formation in his family, parish, school, Scouts and Youth Club, as well as at work and in the Guards. There were many who gave him a good example of leadership and imparted the values of our faith: belief in God, a love for the Church, importance of prayer, self-discipline, consideration for others, honesty, faithfulness, loyalty and concern for the needy. The most notable among those who influenced him were Father Bill Hamilton, Scout Chaplain, affectionately known as 'Hammy', Father Jock Dalrymple, who shared many similarities with Pat, including service in the Scots Guards, and the late and much-loved Cardinal Gray. The family cherish a photograph of Pat in his uniform in the Scouts' Guard of Honour at the Cathedral steps at the Cardinal's Episcopal Ordination in 1951.

At this juncture, Pat made a considered response to the call of Christ to serve him in the priesthood. Unless the grain of wheat dies—a surrender of his life to the will of God.

The next part of Pat's life could be called the seminary years, the 'seed development' period: three years at Campion House, Osterley, and six years plus at St. Andrew's College, Drygrange.

I know we learned something in the seminary, but I can't remember what it was! There were a few funny rules like 'Magnum Silentium'—the Grand Silence. From Night Prayers which finished at 9.45 pm we were to remain silent until after Morning Mass which began at 7.30 am. Lights out at 10.00 pm. Many a night there was a wee gang of us in Pat's room, blethering and drinking coffee till midnight. Of course, it was always a mad rush in the morning to be in the Chapel in time for morning prayer and it was often a case of long black cassocks covering a multitude of pyjamas.

Another rule said that when you went out for walks, there must be three at least in the company and one of them had to be a theologian. (We spent our first two years studying philosophy and the second four studying theology. As you can see, we never studied mathematics.) Anyway, you sometimes got the situation where a couple of guys aged 27 would have to go to an eighteen-year-old out of Blairs to take us out for walkies. Now I'm sure that made sense to somebody, but he signed the document in Latin, so I don't know who he was.

More seriously, at this time the Second Vatican Council was taking place in Rome, and the staff at Drygrange were forward-looking in implementing changes in the spirit of the Council, and Father Pat's life as a priest reflected how he welcomed the message, especially the concept of the Church as the People of God.

He was ordained here in this Church on 22 December 1968, the first diocesan priest to be ordained in St. Mary's, Star of the Sea.

When the seed dies, it bears a rich harvest—the 25 years part, with the emphasis very much on giving.

Pat's first appointment was to the Cathedral of St. Mary of the Assumption, Aberdeen. After several months there, he spent 10 years at St. Ninian's Parish here in Edinburgh. In 1979 he was transferred to Fallin in Stirlingshire also serving as Chaplain to St. Modan's High School. Then Pat returned to Drygrange as Spiritual Director and stayed with the seminary during and after the move to Gillis College here in Edinburgh. Then lastly he was transferred to St. Marie's, Kirkcaldy, and died, in harness, on Thursday, 12 August 1993. These form a list of some of the places Pat served.

His Silver Jubilee in the Priesthood would have been celebrated this year on 22 December, though I know Pat would be decidedly uncomfortable at being the centre of attention. It's quite likely that arrangements would be made by others and he'd forget to turn up! However, Someone More Powerful had changed the venue, and we're all invited to the celebration when we're ready.

Pat has been a faithful, prayerful priest, a very human priest, with a vision according to which he built community, by sharing what he himself had received in the first two parts of his life—a totally genuine belief and trust in God, a personal prayerful relationship with him, devotion to Mary the Mother of God, great love for the Church in its many facets, especially understood as the People of God, not as a collective concept, but one in which every person individually is important. For Father Pat, the Gospel was something to be believed, to be lived, and, above all, to be enjoyed.

During his time in St. Ninian's, among many other things, he formed a group called the Emmaus Group, inspiring young people to live and enjoy their faith by taking their place in the Church's life as a real living out of the Gospel values of love and service to the sick, the elderly, the needy. He encouraged the young to be involved in pilgrimages to Lourdes, in work with the Catholic Union of the Sick, in reaching out to the needy of all kinds with the joy of Christ in their hearts.

This joy is reflected in Father Pat in his willingness to laugh at himself. On one occasion he went into St. Marie's Church on Holy Saturday to check that all was prepared for the Easter Vigil ceremony. While he was there, he decided to have a cup of tea and a biscuit in the room off the sacristy. He somehow managed to put the biscuit into the cup of water and the tea-bag into his mouth. Since he was there on his own at the time, he might have said nothing to anyone, but that wouldn't have been Pat. He had to share the laugh with others at his own expense.

More recently, just before he came to the end of a Saturday Vigil Mass, he said to one of his elderly parishioners in the front row: "You thought we didn't know, Tom, that this is your 80th birthday today, but we do" and he led the congregation in singing 'Happy Birthday to you'. When they had finished, old Tom said, "Thanks, Father Pat, but my birthday isn't today, it was last Saturday!" No one laughed at his mistake more loudly than Pat himself.

Father Pat has brought the joy of the Faith to so many people through being his natural self, indissolubly blending his personality and his priestly ministry. Essentially that included a willingness to do God's will, not his own. When it was proposed that he leave parish work to return to Drygrange as Spiritual Director, while reflecting on the prospect, he found the following text from John's Gospel, Chapter 21, leaping out at him: "When you are old, someone else will tie a belt round you, and take you to where you would rather not go". He wrote and told the Cardinal and consented to the move.

Last Thursday, the Someone Else gave that belt a tug and took Pat to where he would rather not leave, and I'm sure he would be delighted to find out where his latest transfer had got him to, without having to get even one cardboard box for the packing.

Since last Thursday, so many people have naturally expressed sorrow at Pat's sudden death and that is so understandable. But one lady in St. Ninian's very wisely said: "But we can't begrudge him his happiness".

Father Pat, miss you we certainly will; begrudge you your happiness we certainly don't. We are sorry and sad that God took you from us, but we are glad and grateful that He gave you to us in the first place. May you share your joy and laughter forever with all your friends in heaven and may you welcome each one of us when we come to join you.

Rev. Hugh Campbell—25th August, 1993

After months of illness, Father Hugh Campbell, parish priest of St. Fillan's, Newport, died on 25th August, 1993, in Wellburn Home, Lochee, Dundee.

Father Campbell was born at Edinburgh on 2nd January, 1927. He received his primary education at St. Peter's, Buckie, where his father was headteacher, and at St. Mungo's, Alloa. His secondary education was completed at St. Modan's, Stirling. He began his studies for the priesthood by studying Philosophy at St. Mary's College, Blairs, between 1943 and 1945. He continued his theological studies at St. Joseph's, Mill Hill, and St. Sulpice, Paris. Having received Minor Orders he was raised to the subdiaconate on 22nd May, 1948, and the diaconate in the parish church of St. Sulpice on 12th March, 1949. He was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop James Donald Scanlan in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dundee, on the Feast of SS. Peter and Paul in 1949. Father Campbell was the first former pupil of St. Mungo's School, Alloa, to be ordained to the priesthood.

His first appointment in the diocese was as assistant priest at St. Andrew's Cathedral and chaplain at Queen's College, Dundee (at that time still a part of the University of St. Andrews). During his 12 years at the Cathedral, Father Campbell also served as M.C. for the many important Cathedral liturgies.

Between his departure from St. Andrew's Cathedral in 1961 and his appointment as parish priest of St. Fillan's, Newport-on-Tay, he served in: St. James's, Kinross; St. Mungo's, Alloa; St. Mary's, Forebank; St. Teresa's, Dundee; St. Mary's, Lochee; St. Matthew's, Dundee; and St. John's, Perth.

As parish priest of St. Fillan's, Newport, he also served the community of Tayport and as chaplain to the Royal Air Force base at Leuchars. He was also appointed Co-Director of the Permanent Diaconate programme within the diocese. His interest in this new development within the diocese was evident in his efforts to attend the Mass to celebrate the institution as acolytes of the candidates for the Permanent Diaconate in the chapel of Lawside Convent on Friday, 25th June, 1993, two months before his death.

Due to his illness, he spent the last ten months away from his parish responsibilities, spending part of this time with the priests at St. John's, Perth, and in the last few months of his life he was cared for by the Little Sisters of the Poor at Wellburn Home. Yet even during his illness he continued to show a great concern for his parish and, although in great pain, he demonstrated his deep faith with courage and optimism which gave many others hope and an example to follow.

Masses of thanksgiving for his life and ministry within the diocese were celebrated in Wellburn Home and in Our Lady, Star of the Sea, Tayport. Bishop Logan was the principal concelebrant at the funeral Mass in St. Andrew's Cathedral, where he was joined not only by many of the priests of the diocese, but also by a large congregation made up of representatives from the Royal Air Force and the parishes in which Father Hugh had served. During the Mass, Bishop Logan spoke of Father Campbell's influence on the lives of those he served as a priest. "The lives of countless people have been touched by God through the priestly ministry of Father Hugh Campbell. We know and have experienced his rich understanding of the Scriptures and how they have to be proclaimed, and not just read, in the liturgy; his sympathetic understanding of people; his own self-acceptance and his ability to encourage this in others; his acute intellect; his readiness to tell you the truth—respectfully, but the truth nonetheless. In the second reading this morning, St. Paul said that the life and death of each of us has its influence on others.' This is true of Father Hugh Campbell. We have much to thank God for—in his life and in his death.'" After the funeral Mass, Father Campbell's remains were laid to rest in the Priests' Plot in Balgay Cemetery, Dundee.

May he rest in peace.

Very Rev. Laurence Canon Davison—18th September, 1993

Canon Laurence Davison, retired parish priest of St. Cuthbert's Slateford, Edinburgh, died on 18th September, 1993, in the 74th year of his age and the 51st of his priesthood. At the Funeral Mass in St. Cuthbert's, the following homily was delivered by Father David Gemmell, of Scotus College, Bearsden:

Recently many of us were here in this Parish Church of St. Cuthbert's to celebrate the 50th Anniversary of Canon Laurence Davison's ordination to the priesthood. It was a wonderful occasion for the Canon and for the whole Parish and we simply thanked God for his gift of priesthood, the life of service that Canon Davison had given to our Diocese over 50 years of priesthood. In that celebration, we remembered the four seminaries that Canon had studied in, two in France during the War, before he moved to Ireland, and eventually one in Britain. We also remembered those four parishes he had served during his 50 years of priesthood, St. Mary's Cathedral Parish, the parishes in Dunbar, Lochgelly and, for the last 22 years, here in St. Cuthbert's in Edinburgh.

On that day, we celebrated the gift from God to Canon Davison of priesthood. We also saw then that priesthood means nothing, if it isn't connected to the people of God. Priesthood was a wonderful way of discovering God's presence in his people. The Canon was a bit shy about coming to St. Cuthbert's for that celebration, but it was great to see him just a month ago here in his parish, very much centre-stage and very much delighted to be back at home here.

Today, a month later, we celebrate, not just those 50 years of priesthood, but we celebrate 73 years of Canon Laurence's life. We are all here today because we have our own memories and our own insights into what that life meant to us—from Betty, his sister, who was alive in their home when Canon Davison was born, right through to Mary, his housekeeper, who was with Canon Davison when he died on Saturday morning. And today we think not so much about the Canon as a priest, but the Canon as a person. On his anniversary a month ago, the parish here in St. Cuthbert's presented the Canon with various gifts, gifts which really give us deep insights into the person of Laurence Davison, gifts which give us deep insights into the reflections of God's love present in his life.

The first gift which the parish presented was a statue of Our Lady of Hope. Now I speak for many of the priests gathered here in the sanctuary today—as a priest, one of the last things you would want to be presented with would be a statue of Our Lady, especially after 50 years of priesthood when you probably had an attic full of them, but the Canon was especially thrilled with that statue of Our Lady. He had a very down-to-earth, no-nonsense, unpius approach to Mary, the Mother of Jesus. He had a very profound love for her and a deep sense of her presence in his life. That the statue should have been the statue of Our Lady of Hope was of particular significance to Canon Davison, as he became frailer and less mobile. After 50 years of being a priest, he did want to celebrate the fact that he served God hopefully and joyfully, that he was a man of faith and this statue represented for him a real sign of the way that over his life he had tried to live by faith and by hope.

The second gift that the parish presented him with a month ago was a cheque and the Canon had specifically requested that there be no collection, but the parish did their own thing and they presented him with a cheque and, being a good priest, he accepted the cheque. Laurence Davison's attitude to money was one that we can learn a great deal from. He was a very generous man with his own personal money, a person who enjoyed hospitality, enjoyed taking people out for meals, enjoyed looking after other people, particularly his brother priests. The Canon was somebody who loved to sit down in company, he loved to discuss, to argue and debate issues. He was somebody who was very welcoming and always wanted to help people, particularly his brother priests.

The Canon was also very careful about how he used other people's money, how he used the money in the parishes he worked in. He was a wise and an astute person, who used money sensibly. He was also a person who had a particular concern for those who lived life on the fringes and he did try to, wherever possible, help those who were poor in his parish, always in very quiet, behind the scene, ways.

The third gift which the Canon was presented with on that day a month ago, was a large cake and on the top of the cake, there was a cannon and a pile of cannon balls. Now, this particular gift said more about the Canon's personality than any ecclesiastical role that he had.

Canon Davison was a man who had guts. He had bottle. He was a very straight man, a very zealous man, a very sincere man. When I think of Canon Davison in those zealous moments, in those straight moments, he resembled Jesus when he cleared the temple, or a John the Baptist type figure. You were never in any dubiety about where you stood with him. He was always challenging and direct and, no matter what was happening in his own life, he always placed before people, the message of the Gospel in all its richness.

The fourth gift which the Canon received was a spiritual bouquet and this was the gift that he asked for. Laurence Davison had a profound faith in God's people, a profound belief in their love, in their goodness and in their power to bring goodness to other people. As he lived his life, he increasingly came to know just what Christ's presence meant in the Church and in the people of faith and when he knew there was going to be the celebration for his 50th anniversary, he simply asked for the prayers of his people, conscious of his own needs and conscious of the love that could be communicated through prayer.

The fifth and the final gift that was presented to Canon Davison on his anniversary by the parish bore a very simple label which said: "Davison's Delight" and no surprises for guessing that that gift was—a bottle of whisky! But a special bottle—50 year old malt, with a special label bearing the picture of St. Cuthbert's Church, with the words: "Canon Davison's Delight".

"Davison's Delight"—there are many things that Canon Davison did delight in. He loved casting a fly on the Tweed, fishing there often on his days-off with Canon Charlie Brodie. He took great delight in a dignified and a prayerful liturgy. He took great delight in a good discussion and, sometimes, in a good fight. He took delight in his parish, the parishes he worked in. If they were happy, then he was happy. And, as a priest, Laurence Davison took great delight in bringing Christ to people and bringing people to Christ. In a wonderful way, the last years of his life when he retired were a time of particular delight for him in the home that he shared with Mary and Ina. Probably he read more in those last three or four years about priesthood, about spirituality and about Eucharist, than he did in many years before that. It was a time when, being away from the hustle and bustle of parish life, he was able to enjoy his friends and enjoy the many parishioners who came to visit him.

During that whole period, Larry Davison lost none of his love for life, none of his interest and none of his enthusiasm for people and for the Church. Increasingly, throughout those times, he spoke of God's mercy and God's gentleness. Today we thank God for Laurence Davison and we delight in God's goodness, which was so real in him and we are delighted that today Canon Davison's delight has been realised—his union with Christ. May he rest in peace. Amen.

Rev. Patrick Tierney, L.S.H.—22nd October, 1993

Father Patrick Tierney was born in Partick on 23rd May, 1923. He received his primary education at St. Peter's, Partick, and his secondary education at St. Mungo's Academy.

From 1941 to 1943 he studied philosophy at St. Mary's College, Blairs. During the Second World War the colleges abroad were closed, and Blairs had to provide accommodation, albeit spartan, for senior as well as junior seminarians.

He studied theology at St. Peter's College, Bearsden, and at St. Joseph's, Mill Hill, where the students had been transferred for a year while major repairs were being carried out at Bearsden. St. Peter's College however, was destroyed by fire on 23rd May, 1946—which by coincidence was Paddy's birthday. He finished his studies in St. Peter's College, now based at Darleith, Cardross.

On 31st May, 1947, he was ordained priest in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Glasgow, by Archbishop Donald Campbell.

After a short period as assistant priest in St. John's, Barrhead—at that time part of Glasgow Archdiocese—he was sent to the Scots College, Rome, for post-graduate studies. In 1949 he gained a licentiate in Ecclesiastical History at the Gregorian University.

From 1949 until 1963 he served as assistant priest at St. Thomas', Riddrie. The new church was opened in 1957 and Paddy's carpentry skills were put to good use as he rolled up his sleeves to help the men of the parish convert the old church building into a parish hall. The hall proved to be a mecca for Catholic Youth throughout the East End of the city. Paddy was proud of the many happy marriages which originated on the dance floor of St. Thomas' Hall.

During his time at St. Thomas' he lectured in church history to prospective men teachers; at that time only women students were allowed entry to Notre Dame College of Education.

He was appointed Archdiocesan Archivist, a rôle he thoroughly enjoyed. He was also a member of the National and Archdiocesan Liturgical Commissions.

In 1963 he joined the staff of St. Peter's College, Cardross, in succession to the late Monsignor David McRoberts, who, incidentally, had served as an assistant priest at St. Peter's, Partick.

Paddy's former students have vivid recollections of his lectures on church history. While at Cardross he also endeavoured to initiate the students into the difficult art of preaching. He accompanied the senior students on Sundays as they tested the patience and tolerance of local congregations.

In 1967 he was transferred to the former St. Joseph's parish in North Woodside Road where he served for two years before moving on to St. Teresa's, Possilpark.

Paddy was never noted for his athleticism. He once remarked at table in St. Teresa's, that he had just visited his doctor who had prescribed tranquillisers. "Don't touch them", he was advised, "or you will go into reverse".

In 1972 he was appointed parish priest of St. Simon's, Partick. His life had turned full circle. He was coming back to his roots. He was intensely proud of his native Partick. As a boy he had been an altar server in St. Peter's. In fact he boasted that he had been head altar boy there when his lifelong friend, the late Bishop Renfrew, was merely an apprentice.

He beautified St. Simon's Church which was in a dilapidated condition and provided a great service to the parishioners and to the wider community. We have only to consult the Western Calendar to realise that there were more opportunities for the Sacrament of Reconciliation in St. Simon's than in any other one-man parish.

The parishioners will remember his quaint style of delivery. They will remember the small group of priest friends who joined in singing the Te Deum at the end of the Forty Hours' Adoration.

At the church porch he always sported a biretta. This was not worn out of a sense of tradition, but rather, as he repeatedly claimed, as a protection against the elements.

In some respects Paddy thought the church was moving too fast. The exhibition at the Peoples' Palace to mark the 5th centenary of the Glasgow Archdiocese included a quote from him. 'One of the things now is that you never see black vestments at a funeral. The reason for this is that the Vatican Council was told by the bishops of Africa that black represented bad luck. So in that case they said, I suppose, purple could be worn. That was the start of it. So now everyone is wearing purple. believe it or not, some wear white, and as far as I can see, they will soon be wearing tartan'.

In other respects Paddy appeared to be on the progressive wing of the church. Rumour had it that a certain religious sister who was acting as a special minister of the Eucharist in St. Simon's was also hearing confessions. In fact the culprit was a visiting Vietnamese priest with a rather high-pitched voice.

Paddy Tierney was Glasgow's ecclesiastical Jack House. No one knew more about the history of the church in Glasgow. His clerical friends remember his anecdotes about the life and times of Bishop Murdoch. He would regale them with stories about the first Mass celebrated in Partick by a newly ordained Irish priest who died a few months later.

And of course there was Father Gallagher, the first parish priest of St. Simon's who anticipated the modern ecumenical movement by teaching David Livingston Latin. And talking about St. Simon's, he would remind us that the architect of St. Simon's and of old St. Paul's Church, Shettleston emigrated to Australia where he founded the first conference of the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Among his heroes were the young priests who died in Glasgow during the various epidemics. Men like Daniel Kenny and William Welsh who died during the epidemic of 1847. Father Kenny died less than three years after ordination. Father Welsh had been a priest for only four years.

Paddy was a member of the Ratisbon Society—an élite group of clerics who met from time to time to discuss Scottish Church History.

It must be regretted that Paddy did not put pen to paper for the benefit of posterity.

Many charities at home and abroad have been grateful to Paddy. St. Simon's contributed generously to the little Parish of Brora in Sutherland, and to many missionary appeals. He even travelled to Bolivia to see something of the St. James' Missionary Society at first hand. Paddy was a very private person, a man without airs and graces. He spoke with great affection of his "Wee Chapel", his "Wee House-keeper", and his "Wee School". By his "Wee School" he meant the Kelvin School for Partially Sighted Children. This summed up his attitude to life. Staff and pupils at the school have good reason to mourn his death.

Paddy spent the last weeks of his life in the loving care of the Sisters and Staff of St. Margaret's Hospice, Clydebank, where he died peacefully on Friday 22nd October, 1993. A service was held in St. Simon's Church on Monday, 25th October after which Paddy's remains were brought to St. Peter's Church in order to accommodate the huge number of priests and laity who were expected to attend the funeral Mass on Tuesday 26th October. Speaking at the Mass, Archbishop Winning welcomed in particular the priests from all over Scotland who had come to pay their respects, the children from St. Peter's Primary School, and the staff of St. Margaret's Hospice.

In his homily the Archbishop said "It is eloquent testimony to the kind of priest Paddy was that so many priests and people are here today. Paddy was a priest with a fine intellect, a man who showed kindness and compassion where and when it was needed".

Paddy who is survived by his brother Mark, was buried in the family plot at St. Peter's Cemetery, Dalbeth.

Very Rev. Vincent Canon Walker—23rd October, 1993

News of Canon Walker's death reached us in the Holy Land during our diocesan pilgrimage, and within hours of its happening.

Those of us who knew him well were not surprised; he had survived many serious heart attacks and, as he said himself, 'The next one will probably be my last.' Despite this, all of us felt a great sense of loss, personal loss, loss of a friend and loss to the local Church of a great priest and much admired character.

Vincent was born in Glasgow on 28th November, 1917, the second youngest of six. The family moved to Kilmarnock early in his life and it was in St. Columba's School that he received his primary education, then Blairs College and, in 1935, Coutances. The outbreak of war disrupted his preparation for the priesthood and he and other Scottish students had to leave France and continue their preparation elsewhere. He completed his course in St. Patrick's College, Thurles, and was ordained by Bishop Mellon in St. Andrew's Cathedral, Dumfries, on 6th January, 1941.

His first appointment was as assistant to Mgr. McHardy at St. Margaret's, Ayr. Early in 1942, he volunteered for army service, following the lead of his three sisters and brother already on active uniformed service. He served in India for two years before returning to Britain and preparation for the invasion of France. He was in the vanguard of the invasion and the unforgettable D-Day landings on 6th June, 1944, and the following days.

Demobilized in 1947, he was appointed chaplain to the Marist Community and St. Joseph's College, Dumfries, where he soon earned a reputation among Brothers and boys for the brevity and spiritual content of his homilies.

In 1951 he was appointed parish priest of St. Columba's, Annan, which included Eastriggs, Gretna and Langholm—quite a task in those days of Eucharistic fast from midnight and the problem of petrol rationing. In addition, Bishop McGee, shortly after his own consecration as bishop appointed him diocesan M.C. and these duties he performed with meticulous care, dignity and calmness.

His stay in Annan was relatively short; in 1954 he succeeded Canon J. Nicholas Murphy as priest-in-charge of St. Mary's, Irvine, and, adding to his other responsibilities, Bishop McGee nominated him as his representative on Ayrshire Education Committee. Here his integrity and plain common sense were recognised and he was tireless in promoting the cause of Catholic education in the county.

But the many demands on him took their toll and he suffered his first coronary attack in 1960; others, less severe, followed and in 1966 he was sent to the less strenuous parish of St. Quivox, Prestwick. The extension and renovation of the church is a monument to his feeling for the liturgy, his good taste and dignity. He was very happy in Prestwick, committed himself deeply to the Renew Process, Pastoral and parish Councils, R.C.I.A., as well as the day-to-day pastoral care of his congregation.

Ever-failing health forced him to ask for and be given retirement by our bishop in August, 1988, and he continued to live in the parish he loved so well, in the little bungalow made available to him, until he answer the Great Call of his Maker at 5 a.m. on Saturday, 23rd October, 1993.

Vincent was a priest's man and at the same time a people's man. His thinking was clear and well informed, sane and dispassionate. He loved deanery and other meetings of the clergy and frequently introduced topics that he knew would be controversial. If you asked for an opinion, you couldn't be sure of getting the answer you hoped for; you got the answer he thought was right. Brought up in the stricter disciplines of the church, he accepted and took in his stride the changes following the Second Vatican Council, the vernacular liturgy, catechetics, the new image of 'Church'. His house had 'open door' to priests and people. He was hospitable, pleasant company, and many of us will remember the Christmas dinners served up by his housekeeper, Jean. This tradition of hospitality he preserved until his retirement.

Personally, I look back with immense pleasure on our once-yearly mid-week trips to the Highlands, to the grandeur of Wester Ross and the majestic beauty of Sutherland and Perthshire. We both enjoyed the mountains, the food, highland hospitality and I, his company.

In August 1986, another priest and I helped him fulfil a long-held ambition to return to Coutances, his old seminary, and the chapel where he prayed and in which he had listened to and accepted God's invitation to follow Him. He was bitterly disappointed at being brusquely dismissed from the door, that the chapel was not open. His disappointment was patent and he turned away with 'Non, Non' ringing in his ears.

Walking in the war cemeteries, reading names and epitaphs was, for him and us, deeply emotive, but we were with friends, and there were many he remembered. Visits to the historic beaches along Arromanches and seeing the landing monuments—what was left of them—Juno, Sword, Omaha, and visiting the towns of Bayeux, Caen and others made us think of the terrible cost in lives that makes war, all war, obscene and unacceptable. Alfresco lunches of wine, bread and camembert and the more sophisticated evening meals were among the pleasurable luxuries we allowed ourselves.

A priest from outwith the diocese who attended the funeral on 28th October told me that a man he had met that day paid the gratuitous tribute: "I do not belong to your Church, but I was glad to see such a turnout at the Canon's funeral. It was recognition of all he did for this town and this community."

A reflection comes to mind:

To laugh often and much,
to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children;
to appreciate beauty,
to find the best in others,
to leave the world a bit better,
to know even one life
has breathed easier
because you lived—
this is to have succeeded.

Vincent did,

May he rest in peace.

Mass for Galloway Neophytes

The Mass that has become traditional now in the Diocese of Galloway for those received into full communion with the Catholic Church during the previous twelve months took place in Good Shepherd Cathedral, Ayr.

Bishop Taylor welcomed a large congregation which included the Neophytes' families and friends as well as R.C.I.A. teams and others from their parishes. It was a pleasure for him and the whole church of Galloway, he said, to be celebrating the Eucharist with those who had been present only at the liturgy of the word when the Rite of Election was held three months previously but who now came to the Cathedral having received the sacraments of initiation and able to share fully in the Mass.

Letter to Catholic Community in Govan

A letter from Archbishop Winning detailing the reasoning behind his submission on schools rationalisation in Glasgow's southside, with special reference to the implications for St. Gerard's Secondary, was handed out to parishioners attending Masses in the Govan area.

"The possible closure of any school, particularly one which has a noble history, is always difficult to come to terms with", said Archbishop Winning.

"Faced with the fact that the status quo in the southside could not be an option, we needed to be realistic and forward looking."

In his submission to Strathclyde Regional Council Archbishop Winning proposed the retention of Holyrood, Lourdes Secondary and the building of a new school in Pollokshaws, as the "best solution to providing balanced provision in the southside".

Freedom of City of Aberdeen for H.M.S. Scylla and Restoration of St. Peter's in the Castlegate

Bishop Conti of Aberdeen was a guest at the Freedom Ceremony for H.M.S. Scylla, and afterwards at the Luncheon in the Beach Ballroom. The ceremony took place in brilliant sunshine in the Ancient Market Square of the City known as the Castlegate. This has recently been pedestrianised and a programme of rehabilitation of the surrounding buildings is under way. These include the property of the Priest Gordon Trust and St. Peter's Church and Presbytery in Chapel Court which is reached by a path through the same property. They owe their present shape to Priest Gordon who in 1803 extended the property with the building of a new church in place of the old (1874).

The Priest Gordon Trust still supports the school and orphanage he founded, albeit in their new locations and forms, namely St. Peter's Primary School in King Street and Nazareth House Nursery.

Centenary Celebrations at St. Augustine's, Coatbridge

Not many parishes in our dioceses are 100 years old yet. Therefore, the celebrations at St. Augustine's, Coatbridge, were very special. The Centenary Committee planned a series of events for each month of the year to involve the Teachers, Families, Children, Youth, among other events. A Fun Day proved to be very popular.

An open invitation was extended to clergy of the deanery, civic dignitaries and to all parishioners to be present at the Centenary Mass and the buffet afterwards. Bishop Devine of Motherwell was principal celebrant and welcomed the capacity congregation with enthusiasm.

Mass of Thanksgiving, St. Columba's, Cupar

Bishop Logan of Dunkeld was the principal celebrant at a special Mass of Thanksgiving in St. Columba's, Cupar, in recognition of the contribution made by the Sisters of St. Mary of Namur to the parish over the last 28 years.

The Sisters first came to Cupar in 1964 at the invitation of Bishop William Andrew Hart in a pioneering capacity to open and staff St. Columba's Primary School.

Bishop Logan praised the Sisters for their commitment to the children of the parish over the last 28 years and their commitment to the general everyday life of the parish community. As a recognition of that commitment the Parish had commissioned a painting of Cupar, which the Bishop presented to the Sisters, along with a cheque, at a reception held in the School after the Mass.

Bishop Joins Criticism of Royal Marriage Press Coverage

Press coverage of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales was criticised by the Bishop of Paisley in his sermon during the celebrations of the 25th Anniversary of the Catholic Marriage Advisory Council (C.M.A.C.)

Speaking in his Cathedral Church in Paisley, Bishop Mone used the press coverage of the Royal Marriage as an example of how Christian family life is under attack. The bishop described the media's reporting as "a particularly cruel example". While not naming the Prince and Princess, Bishop Mone asked the 300 member congregation if "the intrusion by the press in one particular marriage" had not made them question "if your own marriage could withstand such scrutiny and pressure".

Today's celebration in Paisley was testimony that marriage generally "is being battered and bruised". The bishop was not despondent. "We are here today to say 'It is not beaten'. It is not falling apart."

Headteacher Makes History

Glasgow teacher Mrs. Brigid Rooney made educational history today when she took up her post as headteacher of St. Roch's Secondary School. She is the first female head of a Catholic co-educational school in Glasgow.

Speaking on her appointment, the mother-of-two said it "just proves that there is no bar to women achieving success in teaching".

Mrs. Rooney was previously deputy head at St. Margaret Mary's, Castlemilk, and assistant head at St. Thomas Aquinas.

Retirement of Brother Bede

The end of the summer session at St. John's High School, Dundee, also marked the end of an era with the retiral of Brother Bede, who had been Rector of the school for 26 years.

His retirement was marked by a number of events. The first was a Mass of Thanksgiving for the service of Brother Bede and his retiring depute, Mr. Harry Gillan. Bishop Logan of Dunkeld was principal concelebrant, and Father Tom Shields gave the homily, during which he paid tribute to the commitment that both men had given to the school over their years of service. Among the guests of honour at the Mass were Lord Provost McDonald, Mrs. McDonald, Mrs. Harry Gillan and Brother Jerome.

To mark the years of service that Brother Bede had given to education and to the diocese since he took up the post of Rector in 1966 Bishop Logan presented him with a specially commissioned silver medal at a Reception in the Angus Hotel on Thursday 18th June.

Friday, 19th June, 1992Painting Unveiled

A commemorative painting marking the 500th anniversary of Glasgow's becoming an archdiocese was unveiled today.

The intricately detailed gouache painting, by acclaimed Glasgow artist Edward Chisnell, captures 15 centuries of Christianity in Scotland, from St. Mungo, the building of the medieval cathedral, through immigration, emigration and industrialisation to the modern, multi-cultural city.

The work, in triptych style, took nine months to complete and is reproduced in a limited edition.

Over 5000 people from every parish in Glasgow archdiocese packed into Glasgow's Kelvin Hall International Sports Arena to celebrate a Mass of Thanksgiving for the Archdiocesan quincentenary.

In his homily, Archbishop Winning said Glasgow was home to people broken by fear, unemployment, marital breakdown, drug abuse and other evils.

"Such problems admit of no easy solution," he said, "but they all point to an urgent, if often unrecognised, cry for healing and a return to values which respond to the dignity, rather than the demands, of each individual."

He added: "Throughout our community there is a need for a more urgent response from Christians to be agents of Christ's love, compassion and healing, as an antidote to that indifference about people now giving rise to feelings of hopelessness and alienation."

Children from Sacred Heart Primary, Greenock, Raised over £1,200 for Charity

The pupils of Sacred Heart Primary School, Greenock, raised £1,218.23 for charity in 1991-1992. The various charities were presented with cheques at a Charity Service in the school.

The money was raised through a cake and candy stand, a sale of work, selling Telethon Bugs. The children also had a collection at the joint Christmas Carol Service with Larkfield Primary. Other ventures were selling Lepra tablets, donating to the Holy Childhood, a non-uniform day.

The children also showed their entrepreneurial skill by selling shares in their Christmas Card business and all shareholders as well as the Ardgowan Hospice were delighted to receive a share in the profits.

Miss Ellen Friel, headteacher, delighted with the generosity and ingenuity of the pupils, their parents and the school staff, commented, "Sacred Heart Primary is a caring and sharing school and our Charities Service is a celebration of the facet of this school."

The charities which will benefit from the children's fundraising are:

U.N.I.C.E.F.	£48.64
S.C.I.A.F.	£259.55
Missio Scotland (Holy Childhood)	£288.09
Romanian Children's Fund	£308.00

Study Day for Galloway Clergy

Bishop Logan of Dunkeld led a study day for the priests of Galloway Diocese on the subject of the ongoing formation of the clergy. This topic was chosen because of the emphasis that is now given to the matter, especially in the Apostolic Exhortation Pastores Dabo Vobis. The Scottish bishops are anxious that all priests should see their continuing growth as important and necessary, indeed the right and duty of every priest. We are only at the initial stages of a process, trying to become convinced of the need for ongoing formation and to discover what in practice it will mean.

First Scottish Christian Gathering at Bearsden

The first Scottish Christian Gathering, organised by ACTS in terms of its constitution, took place on the splendid Campus of St. Andrew's College, Bearsden, in fine weather.

The presentation of the theme "What must die and what must be renewed in the Churches", required the nearly four hundred participants to follow the way of the Cross in the grounds, as well as listening to Professor Hamilton of Glasgow University, Professor Mary Grey of Nijmegen University and Bishop Richard Holloway of Edinburgh, speaking of baptism as an initial bond of unity, and the need for the Churches to develop their openness to the world, to each other, and to those who felt excluded in terms of their gender. Work-shops on a number of issues of the day were available while all participated in a non-eucharistic ecumenical service held in the college Assembly Hall. Mass was celebrated in Notre Dame Convent Chapel on Campus. Bishop Conti of Aberdeen, as first Convener of ACTS Central Council, presided at the opening session and preached at the Sunday Mass.

St. Paul's, Ayr, Silver Jubilee

It was in 1967 that the new church dedicated to St. Paul in Belmont, Ayr, was opened. The circular building (with presbytery and hall alongside) is an impressive landmark in the area and serves all of the southern part of Ayr. The twenty-fifth anniversary was celebrated liturgically and socially with events for various age groups as well as the whole parish. In addition the parishioners marked the jubilee by collecting and donating £5000 to charities. A striking and visible commemoration of the anniversary is the large tapestry of the conversion of St. Paul (on the road to Damascus), made by a group of parishioners, which hangs in the church.

Galloway Pilgrimage to Lourdes

Every second year the Galloway pilgrimage goes to Lourdes, there to join up with our friends from Aberdeen. The usual Mass and devotional exercises took place, Bishop Taylor carrying the Blessed Sacrament one afternoon at the open-air procession and blessing of the sick. Another noteworthy event was the International Mass in the underground basilica of St. Pius X – Bishop Taylor was principal celebrant, leading bishops, priests and many thousands of pilgrims from all over the world in the celebration of the Sunday Eucharist. The Galloway pilgrims were delighted to leave from and return to Prestwick Airport, sadly one of the very few passenger flights that this friendly and convenient airport sees these days.

Once again the merry band of motley pilgrims completed the 100 miles walk from Carfin to St. Ninian's shrine at Whithorn. The theme this year was "Our Vocation: what is God saying to me?" Bishop Taylor of Galloway was on hand in Whithorn on the Friday evening for the celebratory Mass of thanksgiving. The annual pilgrimage attracts youth (and others) from all of Scotland (and elsewhere too) and is under the direction of the Holy Ghost Fathers. For years, Benny McGaffney has been a tireless, resourceful and cherished organiser of the back-up services; but sadly this was to be his last pilgrimage. He died suddenly, early in 1993. May he have happily reached the goal of his earthly pilgrimage.

The sisters are still in Dumfries, less kenspeckle perhaps in their reformed dress and with a wider apostolate now in various pastoral activities in the parish, the infirmary and the town.

An exhibition of artifacts, pictures and religious memorabilia, chronicling 500 years of Glasgow archdiocese, opened at the People's Palace on Glasgow Green.

Vestments worn by Pope John Paul at Bellahouston Park in Glasgow, Lourdes' pilgrimage banners and priceless chalices from penal times were among the hundreds of objects making up the impressive display.

"This is the first time that the treasures have been brought together", said Harry Dunlop, assistant keeper of social history at the museum.

"Some of the earliest items have been difficult to trace because many sacred vessels and images were destroyed in the reformation. But we have put together an amazing picture of Catholic life in the city down through the centuries."

Offspring or offshoot from the older Carfin to Whithorn Walk, the Ayr to Whithorn Walk is now an established event in the Galloway Diocesan calendar. With overnight stops at Girvan, Colmonell and Newton Stewart, the walkers wearily, painfully but triumphantly entered Whithorn on Friday evening and celebrated a Mass of thanksgiving in the church of St. Martin and St. Ninian on Saturday morning. Bishop Taylor thanked them for the witness of faith and fellowship which they gave to so many people and asked them to report on their feelings and experiences during the pilgrimage. Each had a story to tell (and several did so, quite movingly). The bishop said that, just as everyone had a story to tell of the pilgrimage, so each of us has a story to tell others of our journey in faith through life.

"Church is Political" – Bishop at Civic Mass

Bishop John Mone of Paisley celebrated and preached at Sunday's Civic Mass in St. Conval's, Linwood, to mark the new term of office for Renfrew District Council. In his sermon he said, "The Church must be involved in politics, but not caught up in party politics."

Over 50 people attached to Renfrew District Council gathered in Linwood to mark the newly formed Council. Provost William Orr is a parishioner of St. Conval's which led to the Linwood Church being chosen for Sunday's service.

Bishop Mone in his sermon spoke of his experience of the churches working together in the Third World for the poor. He then said, "I am happy to say that the Churches work together here on behalf of the poor – because here too in our own country we have the helpless, the poor, the disadvantaged, homeless, jobless, voiceless people.

"The Church must be where the people are. The Church must be involved in politics, but not caught up in party politics... It is only the voice of fear of losing power that causes some to accuse the Church of being in politics."

Speaking directly to the civic leaders in the congregation, the Bishop said, "The leaders in the community have been given authority to speak on behalf of the disadvantaged. You are entrusted by the people with the charge to uphold the values they cherish: family life, life itself at all stages of development, education, employment.

"The gift you have been given of leadership and abilities of administration is God-given and meant to be used in the service of all."

After Mass the members of the Council were entertained in the Parish Meeting Room.

Miss Mary Duffy, Diocesan Adviser in Religious Education (Secondary Schools) spoke about the opportunities that the programme presented for the Diocese of Dunkeld. The delegates were also given the opportunity to share their own views, hopes and fears regarding the programme in a number of small seminars. In the afternoon an "Open Forum" was led by Mr. Daniel Sweeney and Miss Mary Duffy, and "The Way Forward" was discussed in a series of Discussion Groups based on geographical areas within the Diocese. Sunday, 6th September, 1992St. Margaret, Queen and Patroness of Scotland

Preaching at the national pilgrimage at Carfin honouring St. Margaret, Queen and Patroness of Scotland and in anticipation of the 900 years since her death being marked in 1993, Bishop John Mone of Paisley said the treasured values about family life are being eroded.

"Values once taken for granted can no longer be presumed to be valued or even accepted by many of our young people. It isn't only royal marriages which are under pressure; all marriage is under attack... Christian marriage offered the world hope but that hope is under attack.

"Life itself is being attacked; abortion, euthanasia are regretted but tolerated and even preferred. Married and family life is under attack; the ease of divorce and the damage caused to young people, the innocent victims of marital breakdown... St. Margaret had given Scotland hope 900 years ago – it was time Scottish Catholics were shamed into action calling upon them to shake off their apathy in the face of current social values. It's time we stopped letting the world change us. It's time we changed the world."

Tuesday, 29th September, 1992Monastic Unity at Largs

The history of the Benedictine Priory took another decisive and important step today. The community of nuns was founded in Dumfries in 1884 and moved to Largs in 1988. For the past eight years, the sisters have had the help and support of the Tyburn Benedictines (especially in the provision of prioresses to lead them). More recently the Tyburn community acceded to a formal request from the Largs community (made with the approval of the Holy See and Bishop Taylor, the local Ordinary) for full integration. The process was completed today during a Mass at which Bishop Taylor was the chief celebrant and at which the Largs nuns, one by one, publicly and freely joined the Tyburn community and accepted its Mother General as their religious superior. The amalgamation is a very logical step for the Largs sisters since the way of life of the two communities is so similar and, without the fusion, the future of the Largs community was very doubtful. We hope that the courage and generosity of Tyburn, in consenting to the change, will be rewarded by the interest and support of the church in Galloway and indeed in Scotland.

Churches Write to Prime Minister

Parishioners throughout Scotland were invited to add their names to a letter, the origin of which was a call in the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland for the Churches to make a common appeal to the Prime Minister for the needs of the Third World.

This letter, finally formulated and distributed through the agency of ACTS, urged the Prime Minister, particularly during the period of the United Kingdom's Presidency of the European Community, to take a lead by increasing Britain's contribution to real aid, and to agree to meet the United Nation's target of 0.7% of Britain's G.N.P. before the year 2000. Furthermore, it requested that common action be taken among members of the community to resist food dumping, and to target food aid carefully, and to promote the growth of fair and diversified trade between North and South. The final point was to call upon the Government to cancel up to 80% of the total debt of poor nations to the United Kingdom, and to urge commercial banks to make a comparable response.

The letter was presented to the Prime Minister, Mr. John Major, by the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, the Right Rev. Hugh Wyllie, on behalf of all the signatories.

Bishop Speaks Out Against N.H.S. Trust Proposals

Bishop Logan of Dunkeld, replying on behalf of the Diocesan Commission for Pastoral and Social Care to a consultative document issued by Tayside Health Board, issued a statement regarding the proposed N.H.S. Trust Application for Dundee Teaching Hospitals. In the statement Bishop Logan attacked the claims that such a move would give patients a greater choice. He stated that the N.H.S. Trust would have a "monopoly in the City" and patients would "have no option but to use the local Trust hospitals". He saw that the real effect of the market approach to local health care would be to provide "a stimulus to the provision of private medicine".

Bishop Logan also highlighted his concern that the proposals would affect the wages and conditions of staff working in the hospitals, and attacked the Trust's claim that its creation would result in less restrictive practices and more freedoms - "The suspicion must arise that these new freedoms include the freedom to make annual profits, the freedom to close down and sell-off public assets without consultation and the freedom to drive through local wages and conditions which undercut previous national agreements."

Edinburgh Archdiocesan Assembly

Over 450 men and women, lay, religious and priests, met in Holy Rood High School, Edinburgh last Sunday afternoon for what was a unique venture in the history of the Church in Scotland.

Archbishop O'Brien, preparing for his Ad Limina visit to the Pope later this month, opened the Archdiocesan Assembly by welcoming the delegates from all over the East of Scotland, representatives from the whole People of God in the archdiocese.

"In going to Rome each bishop is asked to strengthen his awareness of his own responsibilities", said the Archbishop. "I hope to have more time to myself so I can give more time to God and to my people. I hope to bring the views of as many of you as possible along with me to Rome".

Following the Archbishop's introduction, a dramatised exploration of the many comments sent from the archdiocese to the Archbishop took place. This was acted by students from Gillis College and other young people and powerfully portrayed the issues which emerged from the People of God. Putting flesh on problems such as violence in marriage, contraception and young people, the stresses of priesthood and ecumenism, (all linked by the masterly hand of Simon Hughes on vocals and at the keyboard), sent a living charge through the Assembly which carried over into the sixty small groups, each of which discussed one of the issues before the Assembly.

Commented committee member Father Michael Burns "I think that the dramatic presentation was very powerful indeed. It was not necessarily what people wanted to hear, but it was a fairly accurate representation of what we'd heard of people's views. Overall it was bringing something that was on paper to life and helping to put people in touch with varied opinions in the diocese about a large spectrum of topics."

"It was a wonderful afternoon," said Sister Shiobhan, an Ursuline from St. Margaret's Convent, "the Holy Spirit really has been here. Our group were talking about women. We had a very open discussion about the role of women in the Church. It's made me hopeful in one way, but in another way, no. The group in general were happy with the role of women as it is in the Church. They didn't have much of a vision of how things could be different. But it's a start!"

Jim Norman from St. Luke and St. Anne's, Mayfield and Dalkeith, found the day "a super experience. I loved the dramatic presentation and hated it as well!" "The presentation was extremely thought-provoking," added Alan Glancy from St. Mary's Cathedral. "At times it induced anger but there was also great joy and the emotions came out well in the groups. It's great to see so many people coming from so many parts to talk about so many of the key issues. This has to be the start. It cannot be the end. It cannot just stop today." Christine Harfield, a group-leader from St. Mary's, Bathgate, commented that "the small group session went very well and was very positive. The people in the group shared what they perceived to be problems about women in the Church. There was an awful lot of hope there and a great belief among the men and women in the group that men and women are equal and that the Church is moving in the right direction. One day there will be true equality".

Paisley Diocesan Newsletter Launched

Diocesan Family the newsletter of the Diocese of Paisley is launched this week. The aim of the publication is to share ideas and develop the identity of the Diocese.

In his column, Bishop John Mone acknowledges the importance of improved communication within the diocese: "This newsletter is a response to the need to foster and continue to build up our unity and identity as a diocese." To achieve this aim it is hoped that the publication, eventually, will reach every home in the diocese.

The title, Diocesan Family, was chosen to highlight the idea that just as a family is made up of different people, rich in personalities and gifts, so to the Diocese has that same richness to be used in building up the local Church and God's Kingdom.

The first edition, which was available in all churches throughout the diocese, looked at some of the committees and commissions at work in the diocese. Some of these groups and the work they do may not be widely known and so Diocesan Family took the opportunity to inform everyone in the diocese of the role each group fulfills.

Father Daniel McLoughlin, editor of the new publication, spoke of his hopes for the news letter: "The launch of Diocesan Family is exciting: We now have a vehicle to share our ideas not just among different groups within the diocese but a means to allow every single person in the diocese to know and feel part of what's happening. For me the important element of this newsletter is that it will help true communication in the diocese which is, of course, a two-way process."

Diocesan Family, a four-page, full-colour publication, will, initially, appear twice yearly.

Mount Carmel School, Kilmarnock 1967-1992

Mount Carmel Primary School, Kilmarnock, today celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. Situated in the Onthank area of the town, it is one of the largest primary schools in the diocese of Galloway.

The celebrations began with a Mass of Thanksgiving at which Bishop Taylor gave a homily on the chosen theme of Community. Thereafter there was a reception in the school for parents, former teachers and others, all of whom enjoyed going round the exhibition of photographs and memorabilia arranged in the classrooms.

Saturday, 17th October, 1992Rally Against Abortion

Around 1000 people marched through Glasgow in protest at the passing of the Abortion Act in 1967.

Addressing the crowd at a rally in George Square, Dr. Margaret White of the Society for the Protection of the Unborn Child said: "Though 25 years is a long time, the fight may have to go on for another 25 years. But we are not going to go away and leave the baby-killers to carry on their vile business unimpeded."

Wednesday, 21st October, 1992Faith and Courage Recalled

Lunchtime worshippers filled Glasgow's St. Andrew's Cathedral for a Mass to celebrate 200 years – to the day – since the opening of the first publicly acknowledged Mass centre in the city since the reformation.

Recalling the courage of the Highland immigrants for whom the Mitchell Street Chapel was opened in 1792, Cathedral Administrator, Mgr. Hugh N. Boyle said: "Even when that first chapel was opened the problems facing Glasgow Catholics were far from over. Insults and sometimes brickbats were thrown at those attending Mass. We all marvel at the faith and courage of those people."

Thursday 29th October, 1992Bishops with Pope

Bishop John Mone of Paisley concelebrated Mass with Pope John Paul and his fellow Scottish Bishops in the Pope's small Vatican chapel. The congregation included the staff and students of the Scots College Rome. The Bishops were in Rome on their Ad Limina visit to deliver their five-yearly reports on their dioceses.

Later the Pope addressed the Bishops of Scotland's eight dioceses. He spoke of his concern for an outreach to Scottish youth, an appeal to parents to support Catholic schools, which he described as "an immense treasure", and encouragement for Catholics to become more involved in public life as a way of safeguarding the dignity of the poor, unemployed and marginalized.

The Holy Father lamented the growing indifference to religion and the "distorted individualism" which springs from such a tendency. He also praised the Bishops for their "zeal in defending the sacred right to life" and he urged all Catholics to take on the responsibility to work to combat the decline in the number of priests.

The Parish communities, which the Pope stressed should be "more than a structure" rather "a fellowship inspired by the spirit of unity", are envisaged as "centres of charity, open to the spiritual and material needs of the wider community" and as the antidote to "a distressing isolationism which marks contemporary society".

In the area of ecumenism the Pope commented, "The rancour and prejudices that sometimes marked past relations have, with God's help, been replaced by a notable growth in mutual understanding." The work of re-establishing unity among Churches must continue, the Pope stated.

Bishop John Mone said, "The Pope has given us great encouragement while also making ever clearer the challenge we have to reach out to the whole of our society with the fullness of Christ's Gospel. On a personal note, I took the opportunity to pass on the best wishes of the people of the Diocese for the Holy Father's continued recovery."

Saturday, 7th November, 1992Social Concerns Day in Galloway

A major event in the life of Galloway diocese occurred today: a "Social Concerns Day", designed to be a follow-up to the National Conference held at Stirling at the end of August. The general theme for both events was our commitment to being "A Church in the Heart of the World", one of the five Objectives of the Scottish Bishops' Decade of Evangelisation document "A Challenge for the 90s".

The organisers of the Galloway Social Concerns Day were delighted at the very high numbers of people from all over the diocese who participated. The keynote speaker was Maryanne Ure, secretary of Justice & Peace (Scotland) who challenged us to accept the very radical demand of the Gospel for Christians to be at the heart of the world, not only as a theoretical ideal but in the practical, concrete ways which she described and which called for change, sometimes painful, in our lifestyle and behaviour. The afternoon saw the participants break up for a series of seminars presented on a whole range of topics by speakers and groups specially invited for the occasion.

Dedication of Holy Family Church, Dunblane

Bishop Logan of Dunkeld solemnly dedicated the church and altar on Thursday 12th November. Assisting the Bishop was Canon Basil O'Sullivan, parish priest of Dunblane, and a number of local clergy. Among the invited guests were ministers from the local churches as well as parishioners and children from Dunblane Primaries, High Schools and the Queen Victoria School.

In his sermon Father Kenneth McCaffrey, Dean of St. Mungo's Deanery and parish priest of St. John Vianney's, Alva, highlighted the fact that the ancient ritual of dedication uses the four elements of creation – fire, water, earth and air. These remind Christians that they worship an incarnate God who speaks from the inside out, rather than the other way round. Speaking of the future, Father McCaffrey added, "Our children will gather round the altar, celebrate the memorial of the Paschal Lamb and be fed with Christ's word and His body. Here may the poor find justice, sinners forgiveness and, above all, here may we find hope – hope for the future as we strive for the Kingdom."

Dunkeld Diocesan "Follow-Up" to National Conference

A day conference organised by the Diocesan Commission for Pastoral and Social Care took place in St. John's High School, Dundee, on Saturday 14th November. The conference was chaired by Mr. Ivan Carnegie, Chairman of the Commission, and was designed as a "follow-up" to the National Conference held in Stirling in August of this year. The central aim of the day was to raise awareness of the plight of the unemployed and the homeless. In support of the conference Bishop Logan stated that "At a local level the Church is involved in different areas such as helping the homeless, those in prison, the unemployed and the alienated in society. But so much more needs to be done and parishes and individuals are being encouraged to use their talents to address the needs in their own areas." During the conference Father James McCrudden, assistant priest at St. Francis', highlighted the plight of the homeless and spoke of the urgent need for more accommodation. Brother Joseph spoke of the work of the Jericho Benedictines especially their work with the homeless alcoholics; Mrs. Mary Mudie, a parishioner of Our Lady of Sorrows, Fintry, spoke of her parish's plans for providing day care facilities for elderly people, including transport to and from the church hall and a lunch club. The work of HOPE, a project designed to encourage involvement of the community with those in prison, was highlighted by Father Thomas Shields, assistant priest at St. John the Baptist's, Perth.

Bishop Logan highlighted the social demands of the Gospel in his homily at the annual civic and academic Mass on the feast of Christ the King, Sunday 22nd November, in St. Andrew's Cathedral. He said, "The kingship of Christ is about service, pastoral care, truth, fullness of life, holiness, God's grace, justice, love and peace. These are the ideals set before all who would belong to his kingdom. The more you reflect on the social demands of the Gospel and the values of the Kingdom, the more you come to recognise kingdom values wherever they are to be found."

Kilmacolm's New Church

The new Catholic church of Kilmacolm, St. Colm's, was dedicated by Bishop John Mone of Paisley. Built in the centre of Kilmacolm it replaces a modest structure which had served the villagers since 1945.

Bishop Mone referring to the previous building said: "Though small in size, it provided adequately for the spiritual needs of the small Catholic community of that time. The community has now grown to about 300 souls and this made a new modern church not only desirable but necessary."

Before 1945 Catholics had to go either to St. John's, Port Glasgow, or St. Fillan's, Houston, for Mass although by the early 1930s Mass was celebrated in the village hall. On Christmas Day 1944 a property in Smithy Brae became available and was purchased for £200. That building became the first Catholic church of St. Colm in Kilmacolm in modern times and continued to serve the community until the site was cleared to build the new church. The last Mass was offered in the old church on Easter Sunday, 19th April, 1992. While demolition and building were taking place Kilmacolm Episcopalians kindly allowed their St. Fillan's Church to be used by the Catholic community.

The new church – the 21st Catholic church in Scotland to be dedicated to St. Columba – was designed by Greenock architects, J.G. Quigley & Partners, and reflects the quiet, integrated role which the church perceives the parish will play in the village life of Kilmacolm which itself means the Cell or Church of Colm. Both spiritual and social needs are provided for with the opportunity in the design to enlarge either area. A feature of the building is that the sanctuary area is naturally lit from above.

Significantly oak is the predominant wood in the new church linking up with the Oak Grove of Columba. A rather striking adornment in the sanctuary area is a solid oak lectern depicting St. John with an eagle. Columba's link with Iona is also marked with a stone from Iona Abbey church which was acquired by Father William McDade and was incorporated in the porch area as a memorial stone associating the past with the present.

A twenty-eight page booklet on the new St. Colm's Church by Canon Bernard J. Canning, Paisley diocesan archivist, traces the origin of faith to St. Columba who is reputed to have spent a night in Kilmacolm in A.D. 590 long before the first church there was built in the 12th century.

The parchment conveying the Papal Blessing of John Paul II to the clergy and people of Kilmacolm was made by the Good Shepherd Sisters (Contemplatives) Bishopton and colourfully gives the arms of Pope John Paul II with the Paisley diocesan arms and those of the three Bishops of Paisley – James Black, Stephen McGill and John Mone.

The church building contract was placed by the Paisley diocese with Russell & Pearson Design, Kilwinning, on 9th June, 1992, feast of St. Columba and the works were completed on 4th November, 1992, within the agreed cost limit.

The second diocesan gathering of young people took place at the Pastoral Centre, Newmains. The Liturgy for the Sunday was the cornerstone of both prayer and reflection.

In the first session all those gathered were asked to identify a "John the Baptist" in their own life (i.e. someone who had helped Prepare the Way of the Lord for them) and also to describe the characteristics of such a person. The responses were both illuminating and encouraging.

In the second session the young people reflected on how they could be a "John the Baptist" for those of their own age group within the diocese and also in their parish. The common denominator was a need for a very strong sense of a spiritual humanity.

Thursday, 10th December, 1992Bishop's Comment on Separation of Prince and Princess of Wales

The Right Rev. John Mone, Bishop of Paisley, made the following comment after the announcement of the separation of the Prince and Princess of Wales.

"The news of the separation of the Prince and Princess is very sad. It is always sad when any marriage breaks down and in this respect the Royal Family is no different from anyone else.

"The sadness is all the more acute because of the children. Children suffer so much when they see the two people they love so much not loving each other."

In June the Bishop, as President of the Catholic Marriage Advisory Council, had commented on media scrutiny of marriage. While not naming the Prince and Princess, Bishop Mone asked if "the intrusion by the press in one particular marriage" had not made his congregation question "if your own marriage could withstand such scrutiny and pressure". The bishop's concern for the Royal marriage was passed on to the Princess of Wales shortly prior to her visit to Paisley in June.

26th World Day of Prayer for Peace

A pastoral letter on peace from Bishop John Mone, President of the Justice and Peace Commission, was read on the feast of the Epiphany, today's date. In it he said:

"Making peace is another name for the Christian way of life. It offers the Gospel values of love, compassion and forgiveness. The threats to peace which are hatred, greed and strife, are all rooted in fear; looking over our shoulder in case anyone is getting more, or doing better. Love casts out fear and empowers us as peacemakers..."

Massive Oil Spillage Off Shetland

The wrecking of the oil tanker Braer off the southernmost tip of Shetland led to an initial high degree of oil pollution of the coast and adjoining land. This was compounded by the toxic effects of the chemicals used to disperse it. Wild life was affected, people's health and livelihood put at risk, and their lives disrupted.

Bishop Conti of Aberdeen wrote to Father Barry and the people of St. Margaret's parish in Shetland expressing his condolences. He joined also with the Moderator of the Church of Scotland, the Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Aberdeen and Orkney, and the leader of the Methodist Community in Scotland, in a letter to the Convener of the Shetland Islands Council, expressing concern as pastors for the well-being of the people of Shetland, particularly those most intimately affected by the disaster.

A similar letter was sent to Sir Hector Monro, Scottish Office Minister for Agriculture and the Environment, strongly urging Her Majesty's Government to act swiftly to provide immediate financial assistance by way of compensation to those whose livelihood had been affected.

Since the crew were largely Filippino and Catholic, Father Barry visited them and celebrated Mass. Parishioners helped with visits and entertainments. Father Barry said, "Sailors have a strong emotional attachment to their ship; so the crew are upset over the disaster.

I have been struck by the strong faith of these men." Father Barry, who is known as a keen ornithologist, was also concerned about the damage afflicted on the bird life of the Islands.

Pray and Fast for Peace, Bishop Urges Scots

Right Rev. John Mone, Bishop of Paisley, appealed to all Scots to join with him in praying and fasting for peace in Europe.

In his capacity as Chairman of the Scottish Bishops' Justice and Peace Commission, the bishop travelled to Assisi to represent Scottish Catholics at a Meeting of Prayer and Fasting for Peace in Europe especially in the Balkans (Jan. 9-10). The Week-End of Prayer was led by Pope John Paul II.

Bishop Mone hoped that as many Scots as possible would join with him in spirit by uniting in prayer and fasting that week-end.

"The situation in the Balkans is very serious and my heart goes out to all those who are suffering so much in these cold winter months," the bishop said. "The Christian tradition links prayer with fasting, as do other religious traditions" he continued, "I would ask all Scots, irrespective of denomination or religion, to deny themselves a meal this week-end and offer that fast and their prayer to God. Calling on God's help peace can be achieved when we work together for justice."

Bishop Mone was accompanied in Assisi by Mr. Muhammed Tufail Shaheen, M.B.E., Chairman of the Islamic Council of Scotland.

Bishop Conti Attends Local Ecumenical Events

On the eve of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, Bishop Conti of Aberdeen preached at Holburn Central Church of Scotland in Aberdeen, where he was warmly received by the Minister, the Rev. Allan McDonald and his congregation. The following day he expanded his theme on the role of the Apostles in the historic and ongoing mission of the Church, in an address to the Newman Association at Queen's Cross Convent library.

On Thursday, 21st January, he attended the 26th Annual Combined Service of Aberdeen's three Cathedral congregations at St. Andrew's Episcopal Cathedral. The congregation was addressed by the retiring Minister of St. Machar's, the Rev. Dr. Stewart Todd, who included in his examples of progress achieved in the quarter century, the joint construction of St. Columba's, Bridge of Don.

At the week-end the Bishop travelled to his home parish of Elgin where St. Sylvester's Church was full for the joint Service of Prayer for Christian Unity. In his sermon, Bishop Conti said, "Just as a building cannot stand without its foundations, neither can the Church without the historic continuity of the faith and teaching authority of the Apostles on which it was founded.

"There are theological implications which we need to consider together, for example, how, where and when is that Apostolic function and authority exercised today. There are also historical implications which need to be acknowledged. The Churches and other communities of Christians which issued from the Apostles and even today base their legitimacy on their words (in Holy Scripture), need to recognise their relatedness, even in division, and to own each other's histories. Insofar as these histories are memories, there needs to be a joint healing of memories."

A collection of £300 was taken up in Elgin and subsequently presented to Dr. Gray's Hospital for the Moray Scanner Appeal of which the bishop is a patron by Canon Robert McDonald.

Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, Motherwell Observances

A diversity of events took place throughout the Diocese. Just to mention a few:

Airdrie: On Saturday 26th January a Vigil was held from 10.30am to 4.00pm in the Session Room of the West Parish Church (Church of Scotland).

Calderbank: The joint service was held in Corpus Christi Church, and Canon Barry preached an excellent sermon to the huge crowd who turned up despite the blizzard.

Coatbridge: As Father James Foley is the Diocesan Agency Leader for Ecumenism it is not surprising that the Churches in his area of Coatbridge have marked the Octave of Prayer with joint services for well over a decade. This year the prayer service took place in Blairhill-Dundyvan Parish Church (Church of Scotland). Rev. J. Black welcomed everyone warmly. Father Paul Morton preached on friendship – the encircling friendship that knows no restrictions of race or creed.

Wishaw: This year prayer and meditation led by members of the Methodist Church, Catholic Church and Church of Scotland was held in the local library every day from 12 noon till 2.00pm.

During their official visit to Aberdeen Bishop Conti accompanied the Right Rev. Hugh Wyllie and Mrs. Wyllie, the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland and his wife, to the Catholic Chaplaincy at Elphinstone House. They were received by the Chaplain, the Rev. William Anderson, and introduced by him to a representative group of Catholic staff and students.

After refreshments and a brief tour of the chaplaincy, the Moderator took part in a short service of the Word. In his address he warmly underlined the practice of personal daily prayer which he considered to be characteristic of the Catholic Church, and part of the riches of the Church brought by her to the ecumenical movement. He cherished help in the past through the prayers of a community of Nuns who, in response to Father Anderson's personal request, had faithfully remembered him at a certain time each day.

The Moderator and his wife, the Chaplain to the University, and other guests were entertained to supper by the Bishop at his house. Galloway Lay Leadersip Day

Nearly every parish in Galloway diocese had representation at the Lay Leadership Day, held in St. Paul's Hall, Ayr. Bishop Vincent Logan of Dunkeld was the principal speaker. He emphasised that lay ministry derived not from a shortage of priests but from the very nature of God's call to the laity through their baptism and confirmation. Sharing in the priesthood of Christ, they also share in his priestly work. Similarly, lay leadership does not imply usurpation of the priest's ministry of leadership but is seen as a complement of that, since leadership in the Church is to be exercised as loving service of our brothers and sisters. In the afternoon, several workshops and parish groups gave presentations of their experience of lay leadership, allowing the participants at the day to hear about and discuss various practical possibilities.

Bishop of Paisley Threatened in Somalia

President and Treasurer of the Scottish Catholic International Aid Fund, Bishop John Mone, was convinced that he was going to be shot by a 13-year-old boy wielding a Kalashnikov assault rifle in Somalia. The youngster confronted the Bishop 48 hours before Irish nurse, Valerie Place, 23, working with the charity Concern, was killed by Somali gunmen. The Bishop saw evidence of warlords, famine, lawlessness and genocide in the region. In the previous year S.C.I.A.F. raised £700,000 for Africa and in 1993 spent £50,000 on emergency food aid and £200,000 on child care and wells in Somalia.

Rite of Election in Ayr

Nearly forty people (catechumens and those already baptised), who are preparing to enter into full membership of the Church at the Easter Vigil in their own parishes, assembled today in Good Shepherd Cathedral, Ayr, for the Rite of Election. This annual ceremony, held on the first Sunday in Lent, continues to attract growing numbers from all over the diocese – families and friends, R.C.I.A. teams and just "ordinary people" conscious of the role that every Catholic has of accompanying the catechumens and others on their journey of faith.

After these have all signed the Book of the Elect and been greeted personally by the bishop at the end of the Liturgy of the Word, they leave the cathedral and proceed to the hall to continue to reflect on the day's readings while the rest of the congregation remain to celebrate the Liturgy of the Eucharist. This temporary separation is a powerful sign to all present of the importance of the R.C.I.A. process and of the privilege of the Eucharist for those who have been fully initiated into the communion of the Church.

R.C.I.A. Rite of Election in Motherwell

34 Catechumens and 31 Candidates from 25 parishes throughout the Diocese, who had been preparing themselves through Scripture, Prayer and Faith-sharing were present with family, friends, sponsors and R.C.I.A. team members in Our Lady of Good Aid Cathedral, Motherwell, for the Rite of Election. This is the moment when the Catechumens and Candidates express publicly their desire to become full members of the Catholic Church.

This year the Rite of Election was different as it was celebrated around the Liturgy of the Word by Bishop Devine assisted by Canon Noel Carey and several other priests. The Catechumens and the Candidates inscribed their names in the Book of Enrolment.

St. Kieran's College Scottish Union

Four bishops led by Bishop John Mone of Paisley joined in the 62nd annual re-union of St. Kieran's College (Kilkenny) priests in Scotland at Mass in St. Joseph's Church, Clarkston. The other bishops were Bishop Laurence Forristal of Ossory (Kilkenny), Bishop Stephen McGill, Bishop Emeritus of Paisley and Bishop Kevin Rafferty, Auxiliary of St. Andrews and Edinburgh, a former student of St. Kieran's. The President of St. Kieran's College, Mgr. Michael Ryan, was one of the con-celebrants.

At the luncheon afterwards in adjoining church hall Bishop Forristal was presented with a decanter of Scottish make bearing his own episcopal arms and St. Kieran's College Scottish Union. It was noted that St. Kieran's College gave the biggest number of priests to Scotland than any other Irish seminary in the 160 years since Catholic Emancipation of 1829 with at least 144 in various dioceses particularly in the West of Scotland.

Moderator at Kilbirnie

The Auld Parish Kirk in Kilbirnie, a splendid pre-Reformation building, was host to a large number of people for the visit of the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, the Right Reverend Hugh R. Wyllie. The event coincided with Central America Week and, during the service, the Moderator preached a sermon and Bishop Taylor was invited to share with the congregation his experiences in Central America and his insights into the causes of the situation, the present state of affairs and the future prospects for peace and progress in that part of the world.

The efforts of Eileen Milton, a parishioner of St. Ninian's, Dundee, and Margaret McGivern, a parishioner of St. Joseph's, Dundee, enabled Sr. Aloysius, superior of Lawside Convent, Dundee, and Sr. Marie-Therese, of the Lawside Community, to return to the Budimex Hospital in Bucharest with a much needed Pulse Oxymeter, which is used to measure the level of anaesthetic administered during operations. Part of the £2,000 raised was through the efforts of Eileen and Moira Cardosi, a parishioner of St. Joseph's, who undertook a sponsored swim which raised £800. Another £400 came from St. Joseph's Faith-Sharing Groups and local children raised £500 through a sponsored spell.

He held the post of temporary Sheriff in Forfar for the past nine years, and has also been the Diocesan Solicitor for 22 years. In recognition of his years of service to the Diocese of Dunkeld Sheriff Veal was honoured with the Knighthood of St. Gregory the Great, one of the highest honours that the Pope can bestow. Speaking of his award Sheriff Veal said: "It has been a great privilege to serve the Church in so many different ways over the years, and I never expected it to culminate in this unique award. But although it has been given to me, in a way it is for all the other people who have worked with me over a period of time, and reflects the continuing element of lay service and involvement in the Church". Frances Finds Silver City's Heart of Gold

Under this heading the Press and Journal reported the tremendous response made locally to an appeal for food, clothing and other items of personal need for Bosnia: "Big hearted Frances Wregg has been knocked out by the generosity of Aberdonians and businesses in the City. She has collected £4,500 and more than 42 tonnes of relief supplies only a month after appealing for relief aid for Croatian refugees." In fact, two days later it was reported that 60 tonnes of aid materials was leaving Blairs College on the first stage of its transportation to Bosnia. Two lorries belonging to Balmoral Group took their loads to Dalmally in Argyll where the goods were transferred to a convoy of trucks which left for Zagreb on 14th March. There they were handed over at the headquarters of Caritas, the Catholic International Aid Charity, for distribution to refugee camps. Companies and individuals throughout the northeast donated a bewildering variety of goods including 6,000 baby-feed bottles and teats, six machines for administering anaesthetics, £3,000 worth of plasma, 500 sleeping bags and duvets, 2,000 blankets, in addition to a vast quantity of cereals, pasta and pulses, first-aid equipment and toiletries.

Mrs. Frances Wregg with her daughters Michaela and Emma, supported by her employer, Mr. Kelly of Fastlink Courier Services, and an increasing number of people within the Aberdeen community, continued thereafter to collect many tons of material and, in conjunction with the McFarlane-Barrows of Craig Lodge, Dalmally, saw to their transportation to Bosnia for relief work there. The empty spaces of Blairs College were utilised for storage purposes to the great satisfaction of all who hoped that the building would continue to serve in some way the needs and purposes of the Church. Father Edward Traynor of Buckie and Father James Birrell of Kincorth were among the drivers who assisted in the work of transportation, taking lorries and ambulances as far as Bosnia itself.

Galloway Religious Meet Together

A day for religious of Galloway diocese took place in Ayr. In the morning a presentation was given by the Diocesan Pastoral Planning Team on the subject of "The Ministry of Religious in Today's Church". This was followed by a lively discussion in which most of those present took part.

The forthcoming Synod on Consecrated Life was the afternoon topic. Bishop Taylor, who will be attending the Synod as the representative of the Scottish bishops, took the opportunity of introducing the lineamenta (or introductory document) issued by the Holy See and asked the religious of the diocese for their considered views in response to the questions listed in the lineamenta.

Guatemala Refugee Visits Scotland

As a result of the violence and repression carried out over many years by the Guatemalan Army, tens of thousands of indigenous people have fled from their homes and villages, some hiding in the forests and mountains in conditions of extreme deprivation, others seeking asylum in Mexico.

A representative of the latter, Santos Juan Pedro, visited Scotland and spoke at public meetings in Linlithgow, Ayr, Dumbarton, Glasgow and Perth.

He told of the sufferings of the exiles in refugee camps in Mexico and of their indomitable spirit and resourcefulness. In recent months a first contingent returned to Guatemala to be re-settled. This is proving a hazardous and difficult experience since the authorities, despite their stated willingness to help in the process, have not proved very co-operative and, in some cases, have even threatened the refugees and made them feel very vulnerable. Santos Juan Pedro asked us, as members of the European Community, to do all we could to encourage our governments to insist that the Guatemalan authorities treat the refugees properly in accordance with human rights.

Friday, 26th-Sunday, 28th March, 1993The Rhind Lectures Given by Abbot Mark Dilworth

The Right Rev. Mark Dilworth, O.S.B., Abbot of Fort Augustus, was Lecturer in the distinguished series of Rhind Lectures given at the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland in Edinburgh. He took as his subject Scottish Monastic life on the eve of the Reformation.

In his first lecture, Abbot Dilworth spoke of the shaping of Scottish monasticism from the eleventh century and its strong connections with the monastic movement in Europe.

In his second lecture, he demonstrated that the monasteries became notable corporate land owners, their Abbots in consequence becoming great feudal lords.

In another lecture, he spoke of the quality of monastic life showing that monastic observance was maintained in almost every house despite interruptions due to war, invasion and unrest. He sketched attempts to reform discipline and observance throughout the centuries.

In his fourth lecture, he spoke of the economic state of the monasteries, how they were affected by changing conditions as well as by inflation and taxation. He looked at the personnel of the Religious Houses noting that recruitment continued right up to 1560.

In his fifth lecture, he demonstrated how the monasteries helped to maintain education, social services and the parish structure. Their role in Scottish life was undoubtedly substantial and important.

In his final lecture on monasteries and the Reformation, he unearthed interesting evidence of the way in which monks made a notable contribution to the Reformed Church though some opposed it. Remarkably Scottish monasteries in Germany remained as Counter-Reformation Centres. From some of these came Priests to Scotland in the dark penal days.

These lectures were very well received.

Thursday, 1st April, 1993Bishop Conti Enters Fray over Condoms in School

Responding to a report in the Press and Journal of 24th March which appeared favourable to a proposal of senior students at a local Secondary School for the provision of a condom dispenser within the school building, Bishop Conti responded by a letter to the Editor in which he said,

"Education and 'safe sex' has everything to do with young people knowing that sexual intercourse is wrong outside marriage, not simply on the basis of a religious ethic, but because such behaviour is injurious to healthy relationships between people who are still developing towards sexual and psychological maturity, and are as yet unready for the commitment to one another and to a family which such intercourse implies. Education on 'safe sex' has, therefore, conversely, little enough to do with the free distribution of condoms in places of education. Indeed, in the judgment of many, including evidently those with authority in and over such places, it would signal a contradiction, in appearing to reduce such education to ways of avoiding merely one possible consequence of promiscuous behaviour, namely the contracting of infection."

This letter was following by other letters taking a like stance on this issue which had been publicly aired. The local Education Committee, through its Chairman, indicated that it had no intention of changing its decision not to provide such dispensers in the schools of the Region.

Archbishop Condemns I.R.A.

Archbishop Winning condemned membership of the Irish Republican Army as "absolutely incompatible with membership of the Catholic Church". In an interview published in Flourish, following an I.R.A. bomb in Warrington which killed two youngsters, Archbishop Winning said:

"Such actions by the I.R.A. are totally inhuman and barbaric. They are totally incompatible with the teaching of the Catholic Church and are to be unreservedly condemned."

He added: "A top priority now should be to build on the new spirit of disgust for violence by pressing political leaders to leave no stone unturned in the search for new political arrangements to exorcise the fears of both communities in Ulster."

Tuesday, 6th April, 1993Galloway Mass of Chrism

Good Shepherd Cathedral, Ayr, had the usual huge crowd from all over the diocese of Galloway, come together to celebrate the annual Mass of Chrism. The clergy, of course, were there to renew their commitment to priestly life and service but it is always heart-warming and affirming to see religious and lay people in such large numbers and, in many cases, from the most distant parts of the diocese. Why it is the Mass of Chrism which attracts so many of the laity is not entirely clear, probably there are several inter-related reasons. But it is the diocesan liturgical event of the year and for that we give thanks.

Wednesday, 7th April, 1993Packed Cathedral for Mass of Chrism

Paisley's St. Mirin's Cathedral was packed to capacity on Wednesday evening as members from every parish in the Diocese came together to take part in one of the solemn ceremonies of Holy Week: the Mass of Chrism.

Some 40 priests present renewed their ordination commitment to serve God's people. In his sermon Bishop John spoke of this renewal of commitment as "a very poignant moment when all of us, bishops and priests, recall that moment in our personal faith journey when we committed ourselves to serve God's people".

The bishop continued by challenging both priest and people present, "An important part of serving you, his people, is to awaken you to your dignity, your call to holiness and your call to serve others. That means helping you to identify the God-given gifts you have received, and to convince you that you are called to use them in serving your local church and building up that local community."

"Tonight" he concluded, "is one of those precious moments when I can be with my brother priests, in the presence of you who come from all parts of the Diocese, as we re-affirm our friendship, unity, brotherhood and commitment to work together to build up the kingdom of God in our Diocese. A kingdom and a community where each one feels welcomed, valued, cared for and loved."

Sabbaticals Come to Galloway

Father Joseph Boyd, V.G., parish priest of St. Paul's, Ayr and St. Francis Xavier's, Waterside, left today to spend three months in France. This may seem of no great significance, hardly "a noteworthy event". But its importance is in the fact that this was the first "sabbatical" taken by a Galloway priest, sabbaticals being one of the elements available for promoting the ongoing formation of priests. In fact, Father Boyd went to France to do pastoral work in the diocese of Nantes. He was assigned to Pomichet (on the Atlantic coast) where, due to a sudden illness of the parish priest, he found himself acting parish priest for the three months of his stay.

Easter New Lease of Life at Barrhead Home

St. Mary's Home, Barrhead, got a new lease of life when five new self-contained units were officially opened.

Bishop John Mone formally blessed and opened the new units after Mass which he celebrated in the Barrhead home which is run by the Sisters of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary.

The five new units each provide accommodation for six residents with special needs. The refurbishment of St. Mary's is a joint venture by the Congregation of the Sisters and Argyll and Clyde Health Board.

The opening of these units marked the opening of a new chapter in the history of the presence of the Sisters in Barrhead since they first arrived in the community in 1911.

As well as the Bishop and Canon James O'Connell, St. John's, Barrhead, the community of Sisters were joined for the formal opening by architect Brian Adams, and representatives from the builders Ken Park Construction and Argyll and Clyde Health Board.

Stenbath Kristu

Bishop Taylor was one of the main speakers at the National Charismatic Conference of Malta. The numbers attending – over 2000 – were really impressive for such a small country. On the final day the bishop was the principal celebrant of the closing Eucharist. He astonished the participants by using Maltese for some of the parts of the Mass – a somewhat risky gamble given the orthography of the language but which evoked a moment's stunned silence followed by generous applause from the tolerant Maltese.

Friday, 23rd April, 1993400th Anniversary of Marischal College, Aberdeen

Bishop Conti was one of the guests at the celebration to mark the Fourth Centenary of the foundation of Marischal College. It was established by the Earl Marischal subsequent to the Reformation as an alternative University to King's College, which was suspect to the Reformers for its maintenance of a sympathetic attitude to Catholic doctrine and Church order. Its endowments included the lands formerly belonging to the Franciscans on whose site it was founded and of the black and white Friars. The white Friars, better known now as the Carmelites, whose former presence in Aberdeen is still marked by street names such as Carmelite Row, had, by happy coincidence, already planned to return to Aberdeen later in the same year, after a lapse of over 400 years, to serve the Catholic Chaplaincy to the University of Aberdeen of which Marischal College is now a constituent part.

Saturday, 24th April, 1993"Bishop Breaks his Silence"

Under this heading the Aberdeen Press and Journal published in full a long statement made by Bishop Conti clarifying the Church's position on Father Morrow and the activities of "RESCUE" which had been receiving wide public attention and were the source of very considerable controversy. These reached a high degree of intensity following the publication of the Law Lords' Judgment in the so-called "Tony Bland case". This victim of the Hillsborough Disaster was comatose but was still able to digest food which was provided for him by a gastro-nasal tube. The Judgment was that this tube might be removed and he no longer be given nourishment or hydration. It raised important moral and legal questions at the same time as raising the temperature in the controversy over the defence of life at its most vulnerable, at conception and towards the end of natural life, particularly in the case of patients in a permanent vegetative state.

The Bishop distanced himself and the Church from some of the activities of "RESCUE" under the leadership of Father Morrow, on the basis that such methods as were being adopted neither met their criterion of being more effective in the saving of lives at risk, nor in changing public opinion towards a more pro-life stance. Bishop Conti strongly defended however the cause for which they stood. With specific reference to the Tony Bland Judgment, he wrote: "what must concern us most in this case is that a majority of the Law Lords accepted the proposition that those who have the care of patients in a condition such as his may rightly adopt a pattern of care 'with the intention, purpose or aim' of bringing about their death". The Bishop continued "it can be reasonable to stop tube feeding if a patient is in the final phase of dying or if it involves excessive risks or burdens for a patient but it cannot be morally right to withdraw it precisely to end a patient's life".

Marriage Preparation in Galloway

The approved method for marriage preparation in Galloway is a series of one-to-one meetings of the engaged couple with a "married helpers" couple. Today there was a reunion of these married helpers from different parts of the diocese. They heard suggestions for updating the content of the meetings and for persuading more priests to make use of their skills. General discussion showed a high level of satisfaction with the system among the married helpers themselves and among the "clients", the engaged couples. In particular, it is important that "Evenings for the Engaged" should be seen not as teaching sessions but rather as sharing experience. The discussion also brought out the disappointment that the married couples felt at the lack of recognition in many parishes of the benefits of the programme.

Light of the North

Present at the opening in Edinburgh's City Art Centre, of a fascinating exhibition on the life of Saint Margaret of Scotland, were Archbishop Keith O'Brien, Bishop Richard Holloway of the Episcopal Church, the Moderator-Designate of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, Bishop Mario Conti and Abbot Mark Dilworth of Fort Augustus.

Among the many exhibits was the Gospel Lectionary of St. Margaret, lent by the Bodleian Library in Oxford, which fell into a river but miraculously survived with minimal damage to the illuminated paint and the ink of its script.

Speaking about St. Margaret, Archbishop O'Brien drew attention to the great stability of her family life with her husband, King Malcolm Canmore. While there were inevitable tensions in the royal household, she had eight children, three of her sons later becoming kings of Scotland.

"As we celebrate the United Nations Year of the Family," continued the Archbishop, "perhaps her life-style might be an example to all married people. In spite of great insights into psychology and child behaviour, we know that of those couples who do get married, around one third end in the divorce courts. We must be aware that there are also many people who do not bother to commit themselves to a stable union, simply 'living together' and bringing children into the world who do not have the stability of a married family".

Margaret had an outstanding preferential option for the poor. Her biographer Turgot wrote that 'of all the living persons I know or have known, she was the most devoted to prayer and fasting, to works of mercy and almsgiving'. "While in Scotland", continued the Archbishop, "we have a wonderful record through our overseas agencies, we must also look to the poor around us.

"When coming into the exhibition this evening," added Archbishop O'Brien, "I was aware of drunks, drug addicts, (young and old), lying in the streets and alleyways of this area. These are the poor at our city gates whom we must consider.

"I would join my voice to that of the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland in replying to the Secretary of State, Mr. Ian Lang, that the Churches must have a voice in speaking out at this present time for those who have no other voice than ours. The Churches must be the conscience of the politicians in crying out for the poor."

The Archbishop concluded by saying that Saint Margaret was a citizen of Europe – born in Hungary, brought up in England, Queen in Scotland. "She ensured that Scotland entered the mainstream of European life and opened for Scotland many doors into Europe."

Since the Renew process was completed several years ago in Galloway, small faith-sharing groups have continued to meet regularly in many parishes, usually for six weeks in Lent and six weeks in the autumn. For the proper organisation of these groups and their efficient conduct, a parish should have a Small Group Co-ordinator and each group should have a leader. The Diocesan Pastoral Planning Team held two meetings, one in the south and one in the north of the diocese, for these people. The agenda was partly a review of recommended methods but even more an opportunity for those present to hear others speak of their experiences, their successes and disappointments especially regarding recruitment to the small groups. So often it is merely a question of overcoming initial reluctance and shyness.

The Missal will be presented soon to each English-speaking Conference of Bishops. If a Conference approves the I.C.E.L. material, it is then sent to the Holy See for final confirmation for that country.

Galloway Diocese Celebrates Pentecost

Pentecost Sunday witnessed another big R.C.I.A. occasion in the Galloway diocese. Those who had been received into full communion in the church in the past twelve months, especially at the Easter Vigil last month, assembled in the Cathedral with their families, relatives, sponsors, catechists and many well-wishers to celebrate a Mass of thanksgiving. In his homily, Bishop Taylor reminded everyone present, not only the Neophytes, that we received the Spirit with the gifts at our baptism and confirmation; and today, on Pentecost Sunday, we prayed for a new outpouring of the Holy Spirit on us and on the whole diocese.

The annual Neophytes' Mass on Pentecost Sunday is rapidly becoming an impressive diocesan occasion with more and more people coming each year to rejoice with the new Catholics and to ask that the Holy Spirit "renew the face of the local Church".

for the local Church. He spoke of the changing Church in a changing world and the challenge of that change to our perception of the Church, both world-wide and local. He went on to consider certain essential features of the local Church: communion, collaborative ministry and lay leadership. Finally, after insisting that we be aware of the need to be credible and relevant in today's world, he described the Diocesan Pastoral Council as the realisation in microcosm of an authentic local Church.

The participants numbered about sixty – one representative from each of the forty-seven parishes, the six deans representing the clergy and a few nominated members (religious, youth, Diocesan Pastoral Planning Team).

In the afternoon the members of the assembly were invited to respond to the bishop's address, share their experiences and offer suggestions for the future of the Diocesan Pastoral Council. Somewhat surprisingly, the Council voted down the bishop's suggestion that, at least for the time being, it meet annually. No, said a large majority, we should meet twice a year.

Vision of Communion for Pastoral Council

Building a community where people know and help one another must continue as the main goal of pastoral renewal, Archbishop Winning told the Diocesan Pastoral Council meeting in St. Francis Primary School, Newlands.

"Our vision of the church is that of a communion of communities, where a feeling of real togetherness is experienced," he said. "We only learn how to live once we have learned how to live in community."

"As a community – people with mutual relationships – we can, and must, build a counter-culture to selfishness and individualism."

Galloway Clergy Study Days

A pleasingly large number of Galloway priests assembled in St. Peter's Pastoral Centre, Newlands, Glasgow, for two study days. In addition to the very welcome opportunity for meeting and socialising with our brother priests, the study material on offer gave the participants much food for reflection, thanks to the skills of the two presenters: Father Michael Doyle of Heronbrook House, spoke on Psychosexuality and the Priestly Life; and Dr. Joseph Rhymer occupied the second day, sharing his expertise on various aspects of the Scriptures.

ACCOMMODATION AND AMENITIES

St. Mary's can accommodate 53 visitors in 16 twin rooms and 21 singles. (The twin rooms can, of course be used as singles, to make 37 single rooms).

There is a small chapel for the use of visitors providing an excellent location for the celebration of liturgy and personal prayer.

There is a conference room, small library and a visitors' TV lounge. A pay-phone is also available. St. Mary's has a spacious garden and the surrounding countryside offers a great variety of walks. At the same time, it is only 20 minutes walk from Perth city centre.

WHAT'S ON OFFER? PARISH WEEKENDS

Throughout the year we offer the opportunity for parishes to come on retreat. Parishes which are preparing for a mission or for the implementation of a renewal programme find such a weekend very helpful.

PRIESTS RETREATS

An opportunity for priests to come together with their peers to reflect on their life and ministry.

RELIGIOUS RETREATS

In the peace and quiet of St. Mary's with an opportunity to share in a 6 day preached retreat with fellow religious.

PRIVATE RETREATS

We welcome people throughout the year who may wish to spend some time in peace and quiet. It is sometimes possible to arrange for direction from one of our resident community.

Our Mission and Renewal Centre, situated on Kinnoull Hill, overlooking the "fair" City of Perth, enjoys a most peaceful seclusion. Perth is within easy reach by British Rail, National, Scottish City Link and Stagecoach services. St. Mary's is a short taxi ride from both rail and coach stations.
